

Nobody's Business

By BRUCE HAMBY
PORTLAND, Oct. 7.—(Special) Those University of Washington press agents weren't exaggerating a bit when they told of Jimmy Phelan's new sophomore backfield finds, Muczynski, Bufkin and Sulkosky. They're just about as big and rough looking as anyone would care to see on a football field. The trio arrived in Portland tonight along with the rest of Phelan's gang on the football special from Seattle.

Jimmy Phelan Portland tonight along with the rest of Phelan's gang on the football special from Seattle.

"Music" Muczynski is the lad Irish Jimmy expects to flash tomorrow on Multnomah field. The Husky coach believes Musy is the best halfback prospect Washington has had in several generations. He comes from Chicago, where he was an all-city and all-state back at Crane Technical school.

Last year he captained the St. Martin's eleven. Along with Sulkie and Jay Hornbeck, Husky reserve back, he led the Rangers to an undefeated season. He weighs 180 and his specialties are kicking and running with just a dash of passing.

For the past week he has been the southland a year ago and Phelan. Following a brief appearance in the Montana game he received a charley-horse that kept him out of scrimmage until Thursday.

The second member of the three Irishmen is Colonel Burl Bufkin of the Emerald, Texas Bufkins. "Rebel" Bledsoe, the Husky's star half last year, brought him up from the southland a year ago and Phelan promptly sent him over to St. Martin's for a bit of seasoning.

The Texan was a bit handicapped in high school by a rule prohibiting participation in more than three sports, but Burl managed to win letters in football, baseball and track. In football he was all-state twice. Being a track man he goes in for open-field running as a specialty. He weighs around 170 and Phelan plans to keep him away from Mikulak long enough to give him a chance to show his speed in the open.

Socko Sulkosky is a neighbor of Diamond Joe Paglia's. He comes from Puyallup, Washington, which the maps inform us is only a few miles from Black Diamond. Socko is built on the general lines of Mikulak and is reputed to be great on defensive play. Along with Johnny Cherberg, Husky quarterback, he will do most of the blocking for Muczynski and Bufkin. Washington fans are eager to see how he stacks up with Oregon's fullback in line-plunging. They're sure he can hit the line just as hard—maybe harder.

Seven Tilts Feature Conference Teams on Coast Today

Oregon Given Edge in Grid Battle Today

new coach makes his first Pacific coast conference appearance on the bench today. He is Prince Gary Callison. A few years ago, he was one of Oregon's greatest centers. Tomorrow he faces an experienced gridiron mentor in his initial appearance before northwest fans.

Oregon's football team this year is regarded by experts as one of the greatest eleven ever to come from Eugene. For the first time in years the Webfoots stand a chance to represent the northwest for Pacific coast honors, now held by the warriors of Howard Jones behind the walls of Troy.

Material Good

Both Phelan and Callison are gifted with an abundance of high caliber material. Sensational backfield performers have fought for first-string positions on both elevens. The Huskies have a forward wall composed entirely of veterans. Oregon's line displayed its power against Santa Clara.

Both teams claim to be weakened by injuries of star players. But setbacks such as these mean little in a game like tomorrow's. There are always reserve players eager for the chance to outplay themselves in these traditional games.

The injury of Stan Kostka, the sensational Webfoot halfback who led Oregon to a victory over Santa Clara, will leave a hard spot to fill. But Callison has Leighton Gee, Art Clarkson, Bob Parke, and a number of others to fill his place.

The Huskies announce that Matt Muczynski, their sophomore star, will be handicapped by a charley horse. Heralded as Washington's greatest halfback prospect in generations, he is expected to play, however, in a major portion of the game.

Backfields Strong

Phelan's backfield combination of Muczynski, Sulkosky, Bufkin, and Cherberg will match skill with Oregon's ball carriers: Temple, Bowerman, Gee, and Mikulak. The battle between Mikulak, recognized as the greatest defensive back on the coast, and Bufkin, seeking like fame, is expected to be one of the major features of the encounter. But it may be some unknown player who is the hero. In a struggle between teams as equally matched as Oregon and Washington, breaks may decide the outcome.

Lines Rated Even

Washington's forward wall, veterans from end to end, will face an Oregon line that displayed unbelievable strength against Santa Clara. Player for player, the two lines are equal. The Webfoots here have a slight advantage in reserves.

Battering Rams of Callison's Grid Machine

On the left we find Mike Mikulak, the Webfoot terror, and on the right is Bill Morgan, the esteemed captain and one of the powerful stalwarts in the Oregon line. Both will figure in Prince Gary Callison's first conference game today.

And here is Art Clarkson, Seattle boy, who has been doing his best to secure a varsity berth and may see action today in the annual grid epic in Portland.

Ducks and Huskies Battle In Classic; Bear-Gael Fray Draws Attention in South

SUNDAY'S GAMES

- Oregon vs. Washington at Portland.
- St. Mary's vs. California at Berkeley.
- Idaho vs. Gonzaga at Spokane.
- Linfield vs. Monmouth at Monmouth.
- Nevada vs. Utah at Ogden.
- O. S. C. vs. U. S. C. at Los Angeles.
- Santa Clara vs. Stanford at Palo Alto.
- Willamette vs. W. S. C. at Pullman.
- Montana vs. Carroll at Missoula.
- California Aggies vs. Fresno at Fresno.
- Menlo vs. Salinas J. C. at Menlo.
- Chico vs. Sacramento J. C. at Sacramento.

TODAY'S GAMES

- U. S. F. vs. W. C. Army at San Francisco.
- St. Mary's Frosh vs. Stockton Leg. at Stockton.
- Olympic vs. W. C. Navy at San Pedro.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 7.—(Special)—Nine Pacific Coast conference elevens will swing into action tomorrow on seven different battle fields in contests which should throw a great deal of light on potential challengers for Southern California's conference flag. Only two conference games are scheduled, however, with the mighty men of Troy meeting Oregon State at Los Angeles, and Oregon tackling the Washington Huskies at Portland.

Slip Madigan games are scheduled, however, with the mighty men of Troy meeting Oregon State at Los Angeles, and Oregon tackling the Washington Huskies at Portland. It is on the northern game that the attention of coast fans will be focused, as the eleven which emerges on top at Portland will be the Northwest standard bearer this year. "Prink" Callison's Oregon team, fresh from a 7-to-0 victory over the strong Santa Clara Broncos, will be at its full strength except for the loss of Stan Kostka, star half, and should make things hot for Jimmy Phelan's Huskies.

Webfoot Court Stars Practice During Summer

Hoop Squad Gets Jump On Other Members Of Conference

By BILL EBERHART
When Bill Reinhart calls out his basketball forces for the inaugural practice a week from Monday, there will be several among them not entirely out of shape. "Cap" Roberts, captain-elect for this season, Jack Robertson, Maurice "Red" Rotenberg, Hank Levoff, star last season, Sylvan Camp, captain of the freshman team last year and a number of other Portland players worked out twice a week throughout the summer at the B'nai B'rith Community house in Portland.

Another group of ex-Oregon players and varsity prospects gathered together on Wednesday nights at the Y. M. C. A. here in Eugene and kept basketball alive all summer. "Windy" Calkins, Oregon captain last year; Cliff Horner, three-year letterman; Max Rubenstein, LaGrande Houghton, Henry Simons, and a few high school stars took part.

One hot night in August the Eugene contingent, self-named "Eugene Scrubs and Has-Beens" invaded Portland by invitation and were rebuffed by a 54 to 32 score. These summer rehearsals watched over by Levoff in Portland and Reinhart and Calkins in Eugene, together with starting practice in mid-October will give the Webfoots a flying start over other conference fives.

Beavers Meet Trojans

In the South the U. S. C.-Oregon State game is looked upon as nothing more than a good workout for the gentlemen of Troy. The Oregon team's poor showing last week-end against Stanford does not mark them as a possible contender, while Southern California displayed some power in humbling the strong Washington State squad by a 20-point margin. The contest which draws the spotlight in California is the St. Mary's-University of California affair at Berkeley. The Golden Bears will be crippled with two of their backfield aces, Ken Moeller and Hank Schaldeck, scheduled to stay on the bench because of injuries. Slip Madigan, confident that he has the best team he has ever coached, expects to come out on the long end of the score, and he should do just that if his Gaels perform as they did last week in their 35-0 rout of Nevada.

Cards vs. Broncos

"Pop" Warner's Cardinals will line up against the Broncos of Santa Clara at Palo Alto, confident that they can turn back the conquerors of the Golden Bear. The Stanford eleven clicked in their game last week with Oregon State college, and Indian backers feel certain that the "Old Fox" has more tricks to show. All the other conference members will ease up, playing weaker teams. Idaho meets her match in the tough Gonzaga team at Spokane. W. S. C. rests up after her 20-0 defeat at the hands of U. S. C. meeting Willamette university. The Cougars should wade through to an easy victory here. Montana, still stunned from their defeat by Washington, plays host to Carroll university at Missoula.

MOVIE NOTES

By WILLARD ARANT
McDONALD—"Tiger Shark."
COLONIAL—"Beast of the City."
STATE—"Hell-Fire Austin."
REX—"McKenna of the Mounted."

McDonald
"Tiger Shark," aside from its thrilling and dangerous moments in the deep sea sequences, is commendable because of its intriguing story of human friendships and emotions.

The story, adapted from "Tuna," by Houston Branch, is about a Portuguese fishing boat captain (Edward G. Robinson) who is known by all as a stern taskmaster but a square dealer with men.

"Old Mike," as he is called, befriends the orphan daughter of one of his men who has lost his life at sea. Their friendship grows with the years, and the girl's gratitude to the old fisherman prevents her refusing his offer of marriage, although she is in love with the first mate, played by Richard Arlen.

When Mike learns of this, his insane rage motivates a series of mad events that ends in tragedy for the picturesque fisherman.

Colonial

Jean Hersholt, the underworld czar in "The Beast of the City," makes a study of criminals in courtroom trials as a means of improving his acting technique.

"The Beast of the City" is a story of the inside workings of the police force in American cities. Walter Huston is seen as a police chief battling against corrupt politics and underworld representatives, not the least of which is Daisy, a pretty blond in the person of Jean Harlow.

Of interest to language students is the Faculty club film, "A Nous, La Liberte," which will be shown at the Colonial Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday evening. Although the dialogue is in French, the acting is said to portray the story, even if the auditor have no knowledge of the language.

Sports In Review

By DUD LINDNER
PORTLAND, Oct. 7.—(Special) When Jimmy Phelan's charges step out on the field at Multnomah stadium tomorrow they will be making their first appearance in new uniforms. The silk pants and gold headgear of last year have been thrown into the discard for more serviceable attire.

Tomorrow the team will be attired in dark purple jerseys with gold numbers, moleskin colored pants, and light purple headgear with a white "W" painted on the back.

The Oregon players will wear the same uniforms that they wore in the Santa Clara game, lemon yellow jerseys, khaki pants and black headgear. The numerals on the jerseys are green.

Portland will see between three and four thousand Washington rooters when the special trains start pulling in from Seattle tomorrow. From advance notices the whole town of Seattle is pepped up for the battle as never before. This game is of special importance to the Huskies as it means a possible northwest championship, and Phelan's backers expect him to break the Oregon jinx that seems to prevail on the northern team. Washington has been unable to turn the tables on the Webfoots for four years. "We expect a crowd of between twenty-five and thirty thousand," Sam Wilderman, A. S. U. O. news director announced here tonight. The interest in this game has made it the biggest that Portland will see this year.

Approximately five hundred students arrived from Eugene today on the Southern Pacific rally special. Hundreds more rolled into town via motor bus, hitch hiking and . . . er . . . automobiles.

The thousands of spectators in the stands will not be the only interested people in the stands. There will be more than a dozen scouts and reporters on hand to get the low down on the two teams. University of Southern California, University of California at Los Angeles, and Idaho will have men in the stands watching Oregon's championship contenders in action. These schools lie in the path of the Webfoots march to the top and they want the inside dope on Prink Callison and his squad.

Washington's 45-piece band, is returning the visit paid Seattle last year by Oregon's colorful outfit. The two bands will put on a colorful spectacle during the half. Formation stunts and marching will be in order.

There will be many prominent public officials in the stands. The governors of both Washington and Oregon have announced that they would attend along with many city officials of both states who have set aside their cares in order to attend the feature game of the coast.
