

Nobody's Business

By BRUCE HAMBY

WITH water, instead of more desirable (?) beverages, as the substance in question, the wet or dry issue comes to the fore this Saturday. On this occasion Bell field, and not cocktail glass is the receptacle, and the question before the house is to-wit, and viz., as follows: Will Oregon meet Oregon State on a dry or wet football field?

The direction in which the wind blows will be a factor of considerable importance. The weather is destined to play a prominent part in the outcome of the struggle. The College Side coaching staff, great masters of the gridiron, at gatherings of the counter, have started some great arguments on the issue.

In the opinion of this column, the advantage will go to the Beavers in case of a muddy field. That advantage is the powerful kicking toe of Keith Davis, Beaver punter. Against Washington State, on a field as muddy and slipper as Jupe Pluvius and his assistants could conjure, Davis gave a wonderful demonstration of punting with a soggy ball. The wetter the day and heavier the ball, the farther he seems to kick.

Taking up the opposition case, many claim that a wet field will favor the Webfoots. Supporters of this argument hold that a wet field will stop Oregon State's passing attack. This will be a great help to Oregon for the Webfoots' passing attack is undeniably weak.

Still others claim that a wet field will give neither team an edge. This belief is based on the claim that the lines of the two elevens are on a par. The backfields are equal in strength. Oregon's reserve strength is balanced by Oregon State's punter, Davis.

Wet field or dry field, Oregon should be favorites. Prink Callison has the most promising material gathered on the Webfoot campus in years. It equals that of any coach on the coast. The Webfoot line is as strong as any in the Northwest. Backfield material is a drug on the Hayward field grid market.

But one important factor—a factor little considered by the average fan—may upset all other prognostications. The morale of the Oregon eleven is not of the best. Witness the lackadaisical performance of the Webfoots against Gonzaga. Oregon State, on the other hand, has its back to the wall. It is ready to go, as attested by its splendid comeback against Washington State, after losing to Stanford and U. S. C.

The Orangemen are always dangerous when everyone thinks they are on their last legs. In 1928, under circumstances similar to those of this year, they overcame New York university's finest team, 25 to 13. A year later they ended Detroit's long 20-game winning streak with a 14 to 7 victory. In 1930, to redeem themselves and their coach, they downed Doc Spears' eleven, 16 to 0.

This year they have lost three conference games. Coach Schissler is in danger of being released if he doesn't come through against the Webfoots. Oregon will need every bit of team spirit next Saturday. There can't be any friction or lack of spirit when the whistle blows.

WANT AD: Missing, young man, 5 feet 10 inches tall, blond hair, distinguished appearance. Answers to the name of Crystal W. Ball. Has not been seen since Saturday afternoon when he was noticed on the freight car on the Southern Pacific lines heading north.

Eugene's highly efficient police force, notified at once, is putting forth every effort to locate the missing man. Scotland Yard, the Royal Mounted police, Department of Justice and Junction City town constable are working on the case. All agree dependency is the cause of the disappearance.

Persons implicated in the case are William H. Spaulding, Glen S. Warner, Heartley Anderson, Jock Sutherland. A man by the name of Michael Pecarovich is also believed to be mixed up in the mystery.

This column offers as a reward to the person leading us to Mr. Ball, inside information on next Saturday's predictions.

Ducks Work In Rain For Beaver Tilt

Webfoots Point Toward 'Big Game'

Clark, Mikulak, and Kostka Back In Lineup Following Injuries

By NED SIMPSON
With the rain helping to cool off fevered brows, the young gentlemen who comprise Prink Callison's 1932 football juggernaut, last night indulged in their usual practice session. The practice differed, however, in that there seemed to be a new, electric sort of tension in the air. The backs didn't fumble, the linesmen hit with more determination, and everyone on Hayward field seemed imbued with a new enthusiasm. The answer to all this is simple. Just two words are needed to explain Oregon State.

After the dust had settled last Saturday, it was discovered that with only one exception the Webfoots had come through one hard game without suffering an injury. The one exception was "Dutch" Clark, varsity right guard, who had to leave the game because of a partial concussion. Clark was in suit this afternoon, however, and feels no ill effects from his injury. Mike Mikulak and Stan Kostka, powerhouses of the Green backfield who had been out for several weeks with injuries of one sort or another, came through the battle unscathed.

Coach Callison ran his charges through some dummy scrimmage, after which the linesmen had individual blocking practice, and the ends and backfield men ran through some pass defense against Orange formations.

Latest Novels Added To Library Collection

Among the most recent additions to the shelves of new books at the old libe are "The Best Short Stories of 1932," compiled by Edward J. O'Brien; "Anne Boleyn," by E. Barrington; "One Hundred Red Days," Edgar Sisson; "Sons," by Pearl S. Buck, Pulitzer prize novelist; and "Behind Moroccan Walls," by Constance Lily Morris.

Officials at the old libe are eager to arouse the interest of the students on the campus in all types of literature. The freshmen and undergrads, especially, are urged to show more enthusiasm for the library; according to unofficial statistics, the graduate students and upperclassmen compose the largest portion of the libe's patrons.

Pennants, Dolls On Sale Tomorrow

Pennants and rah-rah dolls go on sale tomorrow noon at campus living organizations, sponsored and made by the frosh commission of Y. W. C. A. Two members will visit each house during the noon hour with the articles, offering the dolls for 15 cents and the pennants for five cents, a considerable reduction from last year's prices.

Under the direction of Ann-Reed Burns, pennant chairman, groups of freshmen have been turning out quantities of green and yellow dolls and felt triangles daily. The goal of the commission, according to Gladys McMillan, president, is an Oregon symbol for every student. It is expected that they will be worn during the week, in anticipation of Saturday's homecoming victory. Pennants and dolls will be on sale at the Y. W. C. A. bungalow all week.

Dr. R. C. Clark Speaks
Dr. R. C. Clark spoke in Portland Friday at the annual meeting of the Oregon Historical Society, at the Hotel Benson, which was held in connection with the Portland civic clubs. The address, entitled, "Why History Needs to be Re-written," is to be published in the December edition of the Oregon Historical Quarterly.

Hobby Hobson Gets Going

Howard (Hobby) Hobson, ex-University of Oregon athletic star, whose Southern Oregon Normal school football eleven is sweeping through its conference like wildfire this autumn. Undefeated and possessor of a 12-12 tie with California Agricultural college. Hobson's eleven added to its laurels last week when it smothered Eastern Oregon Normal, 31 to 0.

Ed Stanley Wins Award for Work Done on Emerald

Harold Brower Receives Pass for Most Heads Written

Ed Stanley, senior in journalism, won the Colonial passes awarded to the Emerald reporter turning in the most stories each week, for the third consecutive week. Stanley had a total of 15 stories for the week ending October 22 and 17 for the week ending October 29.

Harold Brower, freshman, is the copyreader who received the Colonial pass for the week ending October 29, with a total of 19 heads. This is the third week that Brower has been at the top of the list. Ten heads, the second highest number for the week ending October 22, was his score for that week.

Ray Clapp, radio editor, wrote 10 stories, second highest number among the reporters, for the week ending October 22.

Barney Clark, freshman, took second place among the reporters for the week ending October 29, with 16 stories.

Marian Achterman and Edna Murphy tied for first place among the copyreaders for the week ending October 22, with 10 heads each.

Frances Rothwell took second place among the copyreaders for the week ending October 29, with 11 heads.

Beginning Monday, October 31, a new scoring system for copyreaders will go into effect. Credits will be given according to the size of the headline written. Headlines are divided into three classes. The total number of points will be added at the end of each week.

Residence Credit Given
At a meeting of the graduate council, it was decided that students who are taking their major work at the University but whose minor work was taken at the Corvallis campus may get residence credit on this campus. The minimum number of residence hours is 15.

Debating for Women Tentatively Arranged

The first subject to receive the attention of the women's debate squad, according to statement of J. L. Casteel of the speech department, will be some phase of socialized medical service.

Debates have been tentatively arranged with the University of Washington, Pacific university, and Oregon State college, Mr. Casteel announced. The question will also be debated before community organizations.

Squad work is to start Monday and is open to anyone interested. There will be no definite choice of debaters made now although try-outs will be held later and will be open only to those taking part in this preliminary work.

Education Honorary Tells Plans for Year

The program of Pi Lambda Theta, women's national education honorary, for the ensuing year was announced yesterday by Eleanor Clark, publicity manager. Their plans consist of discussion groups at which members of the faculty and prominent educators of the state will address the society on topics covering all phases of education. Several teas are also planned.

A dinner for the faculty of the education department will be held sometime in the future. At the business meetings the members will be entertained with a series of one-act plays. During the early part of December there will be a Christmas party.

Staters Witness Oregon-Gonzaga Game Saturday

O.S.C. Players Say They Are 'Satisfied' With Duck Showing

OREGON STATE COLLEGE, Corvallis, Oct. 31—(Special)—Entire Oregon State college football squad traveled to Eugene Saturday where they saw Oregon, the Orange homecoming opponent, in action against Gonzaga. Although several first string Oregon men who will start against Oregon State here Saturday afternoon were out of the Gonzaga game, the Orangemen were satisfied with what they were able to see and came home ready to "shoot the works" in the week's preparation for the Webfoot's invasion.

An injury curse has hit the Orange camp very forcibly of late so that the Oregon State team is generally rated the underdog in the coming battle. Norm Franklin, sensational sophomore halfback, will be out for the remainder of the season with a broken arm, as will his teammate, Dan Mitola, sophomore end, who suffered a dislocated shoulder in the West Coast Army game here last Friday night.

Ward Is Injured
It is also quite possible that Tommy Ward, two-year veteran halfback, and Harold Joslin, one-year letterman fullback, will be out of the Oregon game with injuries. Ward has a badly sprained ankle and Joslin has been bothered considerably due to a back injury. Tode McIntosh, a new man uncovered in the Army game, will be Johnny Biancone's understudy.

Oregon State's line is expected to be at its peak Saturday as several gaping holes have apparently been filled to advantage of late and the Orange phalanx is a well oiled, hard driving machine. Considerable difference is found in

Chi Psis Nose Out Yeomen in Final Water Polo Fray

O.S.C. Players Say They Are 'Satisfied' With Duck Showing

A last-second goal in a second over-time period made by Reissmuller, star Chi Psi swimmer, won the water polo championship for his organization in the final meet of the season against the Yeomen last night in the men's gym. The score was 6 to 5. Reissmuller was the star of the meet and practically won the meet for his team. Toward the latter part of the second contest the Yeomen had two men check the Chi Psi flash, but he still scored the winning marker.

Kiddle, Yeoman goalie, made some good stops throughout the game. He kept the score down considerably and made a heroic effort to stop the last shot of Reissmuller by leaping high out of the water.

In the first overtime period Reissmuller scored twice and both Kirby and Smith, of the Yeomen, came back to keep their team in the running by shooting sensational goals. In the second overtime Gould and Reissmuller, of Chi Psi, both beat the Yeoman goalie by just a hair's-breadth to score two goals.

The outstanding stars of the Chi Psi team were Gould and Reissmuller, while Yeoman stellar performers were Kirby, Kiddle and Smith.

the backfield, however, as injuries have wrought havoc with the Beaver offensive drive and may mean defeat unless hasty repairs are made.

Carl Lodell, Oregon State graduate manager, is expecting a sell-out for the homecoming contest and advises an early purchase of tickets to avoid missing the state's greatest football classic. General admission prices are $1.65 and reserved seats sell for $2.50.

Vesper Service at Y. W. C. A.
Vesper services of the Y. W. C. A. will be held this afternoon at the bungalow at 5 o'clock, with Eleanor Wharton as leader. The program will include readings and musical selections by Norma Lyon, who has been appointed pianist for the group.

Santa Clara Falls Before St. Mary's

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 31.—The Galloping Gaels from St. Mary's, driving towards national recognition as an unbeaten team, Sunday afternoon chalked up their ninth consecutive victory over their traditional enemies, the Santa Clara Broncos. Trailing the Broncos by 13 points at the half, "Slip" Madigan's cohorts came back in the closing minutes of play to score two touchdowns and two conversions, for a 14-13 win. Spectacular forward passing contributed to the thrills of the encounter, and each team scored one touchdown by the aerial route. The Gaels one-point margin of victory resulted from the accurate kicking toe of Jorgenson, big tackle.

SATURDAY'S SCHEDULE TO SEE CRUCIAL TILTS

State Cougars ran wild over Montana to win 31 to 0. The Cougars are close on the heels of the league leaders, having won three out of four games.

Next week the conference teams start the second half of the race with the strong teams fighting each other.

The feature is the Bear-Trojan encounter in Los Angeles. This game should prove the worth of Howard Jones' outfit. Some feel that his boys are a little overrated and are lucky to be one of the undefeated teams on the coast.

At Palo Alto, the Indians will try to come out of their slump of the last two weeks, and take the Huskies from Washington for a ride. The northerners have shown a great deal of strength this year. Their only defeat came from the Golden Bear and that by only one point. They also played a scoreless tie with Oregon.

Washington State is not expecting much opposition from Idaho. The Vandals have played spotty ball all year and unless they flash some unexpected strength they are due to lose to the Cougars.

The annual classic of the Northwest is scheduled for Corvallis as Oregon clashes with Oregon State in their annual Homecoming game. These two teams are rated

Today's Schedule
Sigma hall vs. Pi Kappa Alpha, 4:00 p. m.
Gamma hall vs. International house, 4:40 p. m.
Sigma Chi vs. Yeomen, 5:20 p. m.

Intramural basketball got underway yesterday with Friendly hall victorious over the Delta Tau Delta five by a score of 9 to 5. In the second game S. A. E. walked over Sherry Ross hall with the final score being 28 to 2. In the final game of the day Omega hall defeated Phi Sigma Kappa, 17 to 6.

In the first game both teams were exceptionally well-matched with neither showing any marked superiority until the final minutes of play when Friendly forged ahead.

The second game, between S. A. E. and Sherry Ross was a rout despite the exceptional court ability of Kidwell, Sherry Ross guard. Kidwell's work on the defense saved many points from being scored by the S. A. E. sharpshooters.

In the final game another star was uncovered. He was Webb, Omega forward and high point man of the game. With his deceptive floor work he found the Phi Sig basket an easy mark for eight points.

on par, with a slight advantage going to Oregon for stronger reserves. Oregon State will feel the loss of Norm Franklin, star back, but seems to have a find in a lad by the name of "Tode" McIntosh. He got into the West Coast Army game Friday night and showed great possibilities.

THE INDIAN RAID
"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the celebrated artist, Fred Mudan... inspired by that wild, bloody scramble of covered wagons in the Colorado Gold Rush (1858), as described in the National Geographic Magazine. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.
