

Nobody's Business

By BRUCE HAMBY

THERE comes a time in the life of every football coach when he becomes what the boys are wont to call a "bundle of nerves." Such a situation approaches this Saturday as Mr. Paul Schissler and Mr. Prink Callison make ready to introduce themselves to each other.

Football coaches are not the only ones who become jittery on the eve of a football game. Napoleon Bonaparte paced to and fro before the camp fires before a crucial battle. Herbert Hoover and Franklin Roosevelt will find it hard to rest easily on the day of election.

Saturday's game is "bread and butter" to both Schissler and Callison. Oregon State alumni frankly admit the present season has been a great disappointment. Schissler has threatened to resign if the Beavers did not beat Oregon. Renewal of Callison's contract for another year may depend upon a good showing Saturday. It is his first trial as a big time coach. A defeat Saturday and the Downtown Signal-Callers may be after his scalp.

Schissler is noted for his nervousness. He jumps from the bench and walks to and fro when the going gets tough. There is a story that he fainted after Oregon State lost to Washington State last year in Portland after the Beavers had rolled up 22 first downs to the Cougar's 3.

Doc Spears was one of the calmest of coaches. At least, if he became excited he never gave any signs. His only nervous habit was gnawing on empty penny-stamp folders. Pop Warner of Stanford smokes innumerable cigarettes during a game. There is always a small mound of butts in front of the bench following a Stanford game.

Callison is not as jumpy as Schissler nor as cool as Spears. His chief habit when worried is to jump from the bench, look at the team with a slightly disgusted look, and then return to his seat. Often, when some player makes a boner, or the referee gives a questionable decision, he tears his hat off his head and throws it to the ground.

Why don't the coaches think up something constructive to do during a game? For instance, Callison might very well put in his time writing a book. Spears could plan a surgical operation instead of the silly stunt of chewing up match folders. Jumpy Paul might operate a treadmill, which could generate power for spreading consolidation propaganda.

Or better still, they might invite in friends and play a few rubbers of bridge. Assistant coaches could very well semaphore signals from the benches.

Scoreless ties are mighty scarce in Oregon frosh-Oregon State rook football records. Only twice since the yearling elevens of the two schools opened hostilities in 1910 has the final whistle blown with neither team having a score. The first scoreless tie was in 1921. The second was two weeks ago at Corvallis.

In fact, tie scores of any kind are rare. Beside the two scoreless deadlocks, only one other is recorded. That was the 7-to-7 battle staged in the second meeting between the teams in 1913.

Friday night's game will be the twenty-fourth meeting between the baby gridders of the state schools. The Oregon freshmen hold a big edge in victories with 13 wins to only 7 defeats. They also hold the distinction of having rolled up the most one-sided score. That was in 1928, when Bill Reinhart was coaching. The score was 27 to 0. In the initial yearling game the frosh won, 26 to 0.

The biggest rook margin of victory was in 1917, when the Beaver Babes won 7 to 0. Twice, in 1919 and 1923, they won 3 to 0. All other Beaver victories have been by a one-point margin.

Ducks Meet O.S.C. Plays In Workout

Rain May Lessen Chances Of Callison's Crew

Kostka and Mikulak Likely To See Action Against Beavers Saturday

By NED SIMPSON
With an extra session thrown in for good measure, the Webfoots last night wound up the third from last practice in preparation for Saturday's Homecoming battle. In the afternoon the squad held the usual outdoor drill on Hayward field, and it was long after dark before they sought the showers. Their rest was brief, however, for skull practice in the Igloo was scheduled for 7:30.

Coach Callison is counting on a dry field to aid the Ducks, for the Beavers, with their heavier line and great kicker, Keith Davis, have a slight advantage if the field is wet. If rain should be falling Saturday afternoon, however, some of the mud-horses of the squad will undoubtedly see action. "Pepper" Pepelnjak and Kostka are probably the most consistent ground gainers on a wet field, with Mark Temple and Mikulak running close behind. Pepelnjak's uncanny ability of keeping his footing in the slip is a big help to the Webfoot attack when the field is soggy.

Regulars Back
The starting lineup Saturday will probably see Mikulak and Kostka back again for the first time since the Santa Clara game. Both played against Gonzaga Saturday, but were sent in by Callison when a last quarter Gonzaga drive threatened the Webfoot goal.

The varsity looked good last night as they repulsed Beaver formations run by the second string, and seemed to have little trouble in diagnosing the coming plays. The boys are all keyed up over the coming fracas and have great hopes of bringing back the Beaver's hide.

Committee Announces Faculty Sport Leaders

The intramural sports committee, consisting of Edgar E. DeCou, chairman; Paul R. Washke, Florence Alden, R. R. Huestis, D. M. Erb, Andrew Fish, and C. L. Kelly, has released the list of leaders of the various faculty sports for the year.

The heads are: volleyball, Robert C. Hall, John L. Casteel; handball, Waldo Schumacher, Pat Morrisette; golf, Robert H. Seashore, Donald Erb; tennis, Samuel H. Jameson, John M. Rae; horseback riding, Wayne L. Morse, Margaret M. Duncan; swimming, Howard Hoyman, Mary Jo Ivens.

A large turnout of the faculty is desired by the committee and the leaders, all of whom will assist in every way possible.

Here are Mike Mikulak and Stan Kostka, Oregon's pile-driving backfield performers. Both fully recovered from troublesome injuries, they will play against Oregon State college in the annual Homecoming game Saturday. It will be their initial appearance together since they collaborated in beating Santa Clara early this season.

Duckling Gridmen Drill for Second Clash With Rooks

First Year Players Ready For Tilt With Orange Babes Friday

By ART DERBYSHIRE
Irv Schulz, Oregon Duckling football mentor, assembled his horde on Monday afternoon for their first real workout in preparation for the second "big-little civil war" game with Oregon State Rooks. This classic will be played on Hayward field Friday evening.

The freshmen coaching staff was well pleased with their proteges' performance in the first "big" game played at Bell field on October 21.

"Tuffy" Leeman, battering full-back, and Withrow, center, will be ready for Friday night's game. Both Leeman and Withrow are hampered by leg injuries, but will be in first class condition for the next game. The rest of the freshman footballers are in excellent shape.

The "Sunday-Morning Quarterbacks" have just stepped out of a huddle, and have picked the two forward walls as being on an equal footing with the Rooks having the edge in ball-carriers.

Three Days Left To Place Orders For Big 'Mums'

Let's invade Corvallis Saturday with every girl wearing a big yellow mum with a fuzzy green "O." Just three more days are left in which to get that flower, so place your order now with your house representative.

Thursday and Friday from 10 until 4 orders will be taken at the Co-op, Edith Peterson, chairman of the sale, announced. Proceeds go to the student loan fund, so when you buy an A. W. S. mum your money goes to a worthy cause.

Remember, wear a mum and keep up the fighting spirit needed for the game of games.

Independents Steal Show In Donut Games

Gamma, Sigma, Yeomen Win Basketball Tilts

International House, Pi Kaps, Sigma Chi Lose Matches; McMillan Stars

Today's Schedule

Theta Chi vs. Sigma Phi Epsilon, 4:00 p. m. (A)
Sigma Alpha Mu vs. Phi Delta Theta, 4:40 p. m. (A)
Kappa Sigma vs. Sigma Nu, 5:20 p. m. (A).

By BEN BACK

Gamma hall stole the intramural basketball show last night in the men's gym when it defeated the International House, 32 to 15. In the other contests, Yeomen beat Sigma Chi, 10 to 5, and Sigma hall won over Pi Kappa Alpha by the close score of 12 to 10.

A long, lanky individual by the name of Don McMillan, who hails from Gamma, was the outstanding star of the matches. McMillan scored 12 points and aided his team-mates materially in running up the big score against the International House, who tried hard but were clearly outclassed.

Last Quarter Win

Sigma hall won over Pi Kappa Alpha in the last quarter when Blantz and Shepard came through with two beautiful field goals to put Sigma in the lead. Yerovich, a graduate student who has previously taken part in five other intramural basketball races, was the outstanding player for the Pi Kaps.

In the final game of the night, the Yeomen and Sigma Chi outfits put on another thriller for the audience with a very close game which was not decided until the final whistle was blown. This game was featured with rough checking by both sides and constant long shots.

Outstanding players for the Yeomen were Chatterton and Thom. For Sigma Chi, Page and Stenshoel occupied the limelight.

The New York Times has discovered, in a survey recently completed, that the chief effect of the depression on colleges in this country has been to reduce the number of student automobiles and the amount of campus gaiety, and thus to focus the attention of the student bodies on their studies.

Midwest Athletes Favored on All-Star Track Squad

IOWA CITY, Ia., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Midwestern performers are favored by George T. Bresnahan, University of Iowa coach, in his "All-America" college track and field team for 1932.

Eleven Olympic performers are in his selections, which are as follows:

Pole vault, William Graber of Southern California; high jump, Willis Ward of Michigan; broad jump, Lambert Redd of Bradley Tech.; hammer throw, Peter Zarenba, of New York university; javelin, Malcolm Metcalf of Dartmouth; discus, Robert Jones of Stanford; shot put, Hugh Rhea of Nebraska.

One-mile relay, Carr, Eastman, Warner and Fuqua; 220 yard low hurdles, George Saling of Iowa; 120-yard high hurdles, Saling; two-mile run, Charles Shugert of Miami university; one-mile run, Glenn Cunningham of Kansas; 880 yard run, Ben Eastman of Stanford; 440-yard dash, William Carr of Pennsylvania; 220-yard and 100-yard dashes, Ralph Metcalfe of Marquette.

Louisiana State Tilt Is Postponed

The post-season football game between Oregon and Louisiana State university has been postponed a week, from December 10 to December 17. Announcement of the change was made yesterday by T. P. Beard, athletic director at Louisiana.

Reason for the postponement is a conflict in dates. The southern conference meeting on December

Students Urged To Take Special To Ore-OSCTilt

Students and townspeople are urged to take the Southern Pacific special train to the Oregon State game next Saturday to avoid traffic congestion on the highway and at the field.

A rate of 85 cents round trip has been secured, and the train will leave from Villard at 11:15 Saturday morning, 11:20 from the depot down town, arriving at Bell field about 1:15. It will return to Eugene immediately after the game, arriving about 6 o'clock.

10 and a high school football tournament on the same date make a small crowd probable for the intersection contest.

The Oregon squad will leave for Baton Rouge around December 10.

Norman Thomas Club To Continue

Despite the fact that Norman Thomas was third in the straw vote held last Thursday, the "Thomas for President" club will continue its efforts in his behalf unabated, it was determined at a meeting held Friday night. The meeting followed an address by the Reverend Clay Palmer, who spoke on "The Present College Generation in Politics" before the members of the club.

Wallace Campbell, who presided at the meeting, announced that he had received a letter from the national organization, requesting that they contribute $10 toward financing a national radio campaign just before the election.

Ryan Is Signed To Grapple Pete On Armory Card

'Corvallis Terror' Is Sub For Jensen in Mat Show Tonight

Tommy Ryan, the "Corvallis Terror," will meet George "Wildcat" Pete in the main event of Herb Owen's wrestling card at the armory tonight. Ryan is substituting for Thor Jensen, conqueror of "Sneeze" Achiu last week, who is unable to appear due to an injured shoulder.

Jensen suffered his injury in the fracas following his win over Achiu last Thursday. He will probably meet Pete next week as both Jensen and the Wildcat are anxious to go.

Lots of Mat Work
According to Owen, tonight's match will make up in straight wrestling for the lack of color that would have been present in the Jensen-Pete match. Ryan has won his last few bouts with ease and has a large following in Portland and Corvallis.

Don Hill, Kansas mat artist, will meet an as yet unnamed opponent in the special event. Forty cent prices will prevail for tonight's card, Owen announced.

Hal Moe To Lead Staters Saturday

OREGON STATE COLLEGE, Corvallis, Nov. 1.—Hal Moe, veteran Beaver blocking halfback, will lead the Staters next Saturday against Oregon. He was chosen to captain his eleven by Paul Schissler, who selects a leader for each game.

Moe is a two-letter man and has played against Oregon twice.
