Delta Zeta First In Oregon Drive

Delta Zeta was the first house to go over 100 per cent in the 1932 Oregon subscription drive, it was announced last night by Helen Stinger, in charge of the drive for women. Lois Margaret Hunt, representative, will receive the prize lamp donated by Whitcomb company for the first to reach the 100 per cent mark.

The drive is now at its height, it was said, with the goal still set at 1500 subscriptions. Unless this is reached there is some doubt that the book will be published.

Two more appointments were named yesterday to help in the campaign. Kathryn Liston will be in charge of the town women and Ethan Newman will get subscriptions from the independent men.

Brockman Says Japan Faces Difficulties in Manchoukuo

"Ruling 30,000,000 Koreans is one thing. Ruling 30,000,000 Chinese is another. The Japanese face almost insuperable difficulties in trying to develop Manchoukuo as a mainland empire."

Thus Dr. Fletcher S. Brockman, who has had 30 years of vivid experience in the Far East as an executive officer of the Y. M. C. A., summarized the practical difficulties of the Manchurian situation outside of ethical considerations.

He was speaking to the Thursday morning session of Dean Allen's senior students in editing, in the opening address of the last day of his visit on the Oregon campus.

"I wish to appeal to you young people who will be newspaper people of tomorrow to study and know the complex problems of the Orient. No nation has the possibilities for influencing the Far

Somebody Must Have Given 'Em A New Version

An enlightening feature of the election returns on the Zorn-Macpherson school-grab bill came to light yesterday when it became evident that fewer voters cast their ballots in favor of the Zorn-Macpherson measure than signed the petitions that placed it on the ballot.

About 29,000 signature were filed with Hal E. Hoss, secretary of state, for the bill, as a result of the activities of paid petition pushers throughout the state. In addition, the advocates of the bill claimed about 20,000 signatures were stolen from their headquarters in Portland, and still more signatures were invalidated when the ballot title was changed.

Almost complete returns yesterday showed that only about 40,000 voters voted in favor of the measure.

Grade Warnings Sent to Students With Low Ratings

Slips Will Be Sent to All Parents, Deans and Housemothers

A portion of the mid-term notices of low grades were sent out yesterday by the registrar's office, and are expected to be mailed by the end of the week.

The warnings are sent to the students doing failing work by mid-term, their parents, their advisers and to the deans of men and women, who in turn notify house presidents, house mothers, scholarship committee, sponsors, automobile regulation committee and other agencies.

Under new regulations, students who are flunking courses are not allowed to withdraw. In some cases where a student is obviously overloaded, and wishes to drop a course in order to concentrate his efforts on the remainder of his schedule, he will be allowed to do so providing his grades in that course up to the time of withdrawal are passing. The dropping of courses to escape the minus point per hour imposed on the grade point total for flunks, has been ruled out.

Students are to take their "red books" with them when they see their advisers. These may be borrowed from the registrar's office, and used by the adviser and student in order to enable them to work out an improved plan of study.

Upon receiving a notice from the offices immediate attention should be taken so that this matter may be settled immediately.

They Can Win

ONE THOUSAND miles from here, on alien soil Saturday, the Oregon football team faces its greatest test of the season. In such a situation, any messages or wires from home will be appreciated. Contrary to general opinion, Oregon has an excellent chance to defeat Southern California. The Trojans can be beaten, Oregon has the men with which to do it, and there is every likelihood that sunset over Olympic stadium will find the Webfoots on the long end of the score. With such a splendid opportunity to overcome the national champions, let us not be ungrateful in our support of the team. There should be no dearth of well-wishing messages Saturday. It is our duty to see to it that there is not.

The scene of this act of unusual valor was the front line trenches in front of the little town of Clerges, in France on October 2, 1918. Mr. Bullion, who was a private in Company C, 125th infantry, volunteered to establish liaison between two units which had become separated, and it was his courage while performing this extremely dangerous task that caused him to receive the medal. Mr. Brown Agouti and Rodent Friends Subject of Studies

"The best laid plans of mice and men..."

So goes an old saying, but it has remained for Dr. R. R. Huestis, professor of genetics at the University of Oregon, to observe mice, and through his observations glean information which may be of great value to the race of humans.

Recently, however, Dr. Huestis has selected two races of mice that exist in Oregon, races which might well correspond to the white race and the brown or yellow race. In Western Oregon dwells the Peromyscus maniculatus rubidus, while in Eastern Oregon lives the Peromyscus maniculatus gambelii. In physique the two are fairly similar, except that the Western variety has a longer tail, longer feet and is inclined to be a bit thinner. He also has a rich, dark color, while his cousin

AIR ATTACK FEARED

Trojans Worried by Strength of Big Green Squad; Team To Drill on Turf

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 10.—(Special)—Given more than an equal chance for a victory, University of Oregon football players will arrive here tomorrow morning in time for a workout on the turf of Olympic stadium. Saturday afternoon they face the University of Southern California in the same field.

The invading Oregonians have not forgotten the 53-to-0 trouncing handed them last year, according to word from the north, and have been pointing for this game all season. Coupled with the fact that they are said to have the strongest team to represent the Webfoot school in years, Coach Howard Jones and his assistants are doing considerable worrying.

Game Holds Spotlight The Trojans get their only bad break of the season in the schedule this week as they meet one of their toughest opponents after the hard California game. With the exception of U. C. L. A., which meets the badly battered St. Mary's team, the Trojan-Oregon battle holds the spotlight as the most important football scrap of the week.

With the Golden Bear hurdle successfully cleared, the Trojans went through a tough scrimmage this week in preparation for the contest. Coach Jones is no little worried about over-confidence among his players. Some of the experts even expect Oregon to win.

Trojans Work on Defense While Mark Temple's tricky open field running and Mike Mikulak's terrific line plunging are the features of the Oregon attack that have been giving the Webfoots' opponents the most trouble, the Trojans are expecting some heavy raids through the air, and considerable practice is being staged by Coach Howard Jones this week on aerial defense.

Although there is nothing seriously wrong with a pass defense that can make twice as many touchdowns out of opponents' passes as the opposition can score, which was what happened in the Trojans' convincing 21 to 7 defeat of California last Saturday, Coach Jones realizes that more experience against forward flings is needed by some of S. C.'s new backs, notably Fullback Bob Getz and Quarterback "Cotton" Warburton. Getz, however, is probably out of the Oregon game with an injured back.

Defense Record Marred Little Warburton, the "Galloping Flea," was covering his man in the most approved manner last Saturday when he slipped and fell on the goal line and allowed the only touchdown that has been made this year against the Trojans, and although he later came (Continued on Page Four)
