

Nobody's Business

By BRUCE HAMBY

VIENNA, Austria, Nov. 22.—(By Special Cable)—From my new retreat, I gladly send the following football predictions to my friends at Oregon. They have been compiled after considerable research, and I trust they will be of value.

Crystal W. Ball.

- Oregon 13, St. Mary's 2.
- U. S. C. 20, Washington 6.
- W. S. C. 14, U. C. L. A. 7.
- Idaho 6, Utah State 0.
- N. Y. U. 12, Carnegie Tech 0.
- Penn 7, Cornell 0.
- Brown 7, Colgate 6.
- Alabama 6, Vanderbilt 6.

And here are Saturday's games, with Crystal's predictions:
Gonzaga 13, Montana 7.
Tulane 13, Louisiana State University 6.
Loyola (Cal.) 0, Santa Clara 7.
Notre Dame 6, Army (West Point) 7.
Pittsburgh 10, Stanford 14.

Attached to Crystal's letter was a personal note to this writer. Despite the great man's reluctance to have his methods of reasoning printed, we are doing so. With Crystal in Vienna there is not much chance of his seeing this.

Just how did the little fellow pick the Webfoots to drop St. Mary's? In the first place he believes that the boys are going to do everything possible to show up those nasty old newspapermen down in Los Angeles. The Oregon team is considerably heavier and its reserves equal to those of the Gaels. Both teams will score, Crystal opines, and Oregon's chances rest upon its ability to stop a St. Mary's passing attack.

Southern California over Washington? Even if it does rain the Trojans are two or three touchdowns better than Jimmy Phelan's eleven. It should be a good game to watch, however. Bufkin, Sulkosky and Muczynski may make things interesting for the Trojans.

In Crystal's opinion, the U. C. L. A. Bruins are about due to lose a conference game. Washington State's record is not quite as impressive, but the Viennese Seer writes us that the Cougars are set to win. That's enough for us.

From his eastern correspondent Crystal learns that Army is due to upset the Notre Dame Ramblers. Last year the West Pointers did the same thing and from confidential sources Crystal has found that West Point has an even better team this season.

Crystal states that Stanford, after a poor season on the coast, is due to come back and hand the touted Pitt eleven a trouncing Saturday. Remember the 32 to 6 drubbing Pop's lads dealt Dartmouth last year? Crystal evidently recalls it, too.

Crystal thinks Tulane will score a close victory over Louisiana state, Oregon's inter-sectional opposition next month. "Don Zimmerman should break away at least once," confides Mr. Ball.

St. Mary's Stars Suspended for Breaking Training Rules

Oregon Seen As Favorite In Bay City

Angelo Brovelli Is Among Players Ousted

Madigan Refuses To Say Whether Trio of Luminaries Will Appear Against U. of O.

OAKLAND, Cal., Nov. 22.—(Special)—St. Mary's chances for a football victory over Oregon

Thanksgiving day were dealt a stunning blow this afternoon when it was announced that three of the Gaels' foremost performers were under suspension for breaking training rules.

Those out of Slip Madigan the good graces of Coach Slip Madigan are Angelo Brovelli, triple-threat fullback; Charley Baird, slippery halfback; and Mike Stepanovitch, star guard.

It was announced that the trio had been suspended for breaking training after the U. C. L. A. game which St. Mary's won, 14 to 7.

The announcement also said that Garry Vivaldi, end, previously suspended, had been reinstated. The startling news from Moraga's hills disintegrated the Gaels' as favorites in Thursday's game at Kezar stadium and established the Oregon Webfoots as slight favorites to win the annual Thanksgiving day encounter.

Slip Madigan did not announce whether Brovelli, Stepanovitch and Baird would play. St. Mary's chances of victory without them are regarded about as good as those of the Boston Red Sox to win the world's baseball championship next summer. The dark-thatched Brovelli is the spark-plug of the Raiders' offense.

With the plaudits of several hundred student supporters ringing in their ears, Oregon's Webfoots left for San Francisco yesterday noon in quest of a victory over the Galloping Gaels of St. Mary's. Twenty-nine of the 40 men out for the team made the trip, accompanied by two student managers.

The morale of the team was at a better pitch than it has been this season, and expert observers predict that this is the Ducks' year to knock over the Saints. Oregon's chances were enhanced by the news from St. Mary's that several of their star performers are ineligible.

The squad will arrive in the Bay city this morning, and will have a short workout early this afternoon to limber up and run through signals. Coach Callison had the boys running around the new field yesterday just before they embarked for the South, and every man, with the exception of "Red" Bailey, was in tip-top shape. Art Clarkson, versatile halfback who was injured just before the U. C. L. A. contest, is back in shape again and will probably see action against the Gaels.

Men making the trip were Morse, Wishard, Bailey, Pozzo, Nilsson, Morgan, Clark, Frye, Bishop, Pope, Cupoletti, Gagnon, Hughes, Eagles, Codding, Gemlo, Swanson, Temple, Parke, Peplink, Gee, Koska, Clarkson, Terjeson, Bowerman, Bobbitt, Mikulak, Geisecke, and Brown.

The Marshal of Troy

Here he is, the head man himself, Howard Harding Jones, coach of Southern California's football juggernaut, who brings his Trojans north tomorrow to oppose Washington's Huskies at Seattle. Regarded as one of America's leading coaches, Jones has come to the forefront of the coaching ranks in the last five years. His lads are favored to overcome Washington tomorrow, although Jimmy Phelan's improved team may give them a hard scrap. Last autumn the Jones-coached team walloped the Huskies, 44 to 7.

HOW COMPARATIVE SCORES DOPE IT

- Oregon beat Oregon State, 12 to 6. Fordham beat St. Mary's, 14 to 0. Fordham beat Oregon State, 8 to 6. Therefore, Oregon is 18 points better than St. Mary's.
- U. C. L. A. beat Oregon, 12 to 7. St. Mary's beat U. C. L. A., 14 to 7. Therefore, St. Mary's is 13 points better than Oregon.
- St. Mary's tied California, 12 to 12. California beat Washington, 7 to 6. Oregon tied Washington, 0 to 0. Therefore, St. Mary's is 1 point better than Oregon. And you can only have 1-to-0 scores in baseball games. And this is not a baseball game. We give up. You figure it out.

Medical Aptitude Tests Will Be Given Students

The medical aptitude tests, which are given each year to pre-med students to determine their intelligence and ability, will be held on December 9 from 2 to 3:30 o'clock. These tests, which are required for entrance to most standard medical colleges of the United States, are to be taken by all students who will complete their pre-medical requirements in time for entrance to a medical school in the fall of 1933. Each applicant is to pay one dollar at the time the test is given.

These aptitude tests have been given in the University of Oregon for the past two years, being taken last year by 50 students.

4:30 p. m.—Kappa Sig vs. S. A. E.
5:00 p. m.—Betas vs. Theta Chi.
5:30 p. m.—Phi Psi vs. Yeomen.

Despite the heroic efforts of Willie Torrence and Hubert Allen, star international house players, the Sigma Pi Tau team scored a 16-14 win over International in a game that required 9 minutes of overtime before a winner could be decided, in the first of last night's donut encounters. In the other games Pi Kappa Alpha and Sigma Nu also battled into a 13-11 overtime contest with the Pi Kaps winning. The Phi Deltas trimmed Omega hall by a 22-2 score.

The international house squad provided the S. P. T. team with all the basketball they wanted yesterday afternoon when they forced them into nine minutes of extra playing time. Temple scored the winning basket.

Weber, of the Pi Kaps, was the whole show in their game with Sigma Nu. He was not only high point man but scored the winning basket as well.

Omega hall didn't have a chance with the much stronger Phi Delta outfit. Clausen starred for the winners.

OTHER LEADING TEAMS PARADE ON GRID FRONT

Oregon is feared far more by St. Mary's than is generally thought. Although they watched the Webfoots in their ineffectual appearance against U. S. C., the Gaels realize that Oregon is a team of many potentialities and have made elaborate preparations for the game. St. Mary's is lighter than the Webfoots, and there is every likelihood that Oregon will gain considerable ground through the Gael forward wall.

Angelo Brovelli, hard-hitting fullback, and Captain Bill Beasley, left halfback, are St. Mary's leading threats. Mark Temple and Mike Mikulak head the Webfoot attack. The Gaels are not nearly so formidable as the Trojans, nor do they possess U. S. C.'s host of reserves. Slip Madigan, Gael coach, and San Francisco sports writers pick Oregon to play the Raiders a close game or defeat them.

The Webfoots left here yesterday, determined to salvage their season with a victory over the vividly-clad host of Moraga. They are eager to show Los Angeles newspapermen that Troy's 33-to-0 victory was an exception, rather than the rule. St. Mary's is by no means unbeatable. It was licked by Fordham, a team which beat Oregon State only 8 to 6. And Oregon beat Oregon State, 12 to 6. So the Webfoots are by no means set-ups for the Gaels, comparative scores even showing Oregon to be considerably stronger than Mr. Madigan's performers.

Ping-pong Ball Put To Queer Use In Physics Class

Even if you are the world's worst ping-pong player and hate the game, there is a use for ping-pong balls—as an astonished Emerald reporter discovered yesterday.

This afore-mentioned reporter, peering in every corner for news, stuck her head around the door of Professor W. V. Norris' physics classroom, and began the stock inquiry. "Any news to"—but there she stopped, gazing in amazement at the desk in front of the room.

There, bouncing up and down in the air apparently of its own will was a ping-pong ball. Nobody was near it or moving it—but still it turned round and round in the air.

The reporter must have shown surprise, for suddenly Mr. Norris began to laugh and pointed to a hose-like arrangement underneath the ball. A swift current of air poured forth from the nozzle of the little hose, keeping the ball continually bouncing in the air. Even when the hose was placed almost horizontally, the ball continued to stay up, bouncing from side to side with the force of the air pressure.

"We're proving a physics theorem," explained Mr. Norris.

Gael Kicker

Slip Madigan, St. Mary's football mentor, uses this 200-pound boy for more than filling a hole at tackle. Carl Jorgensen by name, he is somewhat of a place-kicker. His toe won the recent game against Santa Clara with two perfect conversions.

Independent Pictures Must Be in Saturday

Independents! Saturday is your last chance to have your Oregon pictures taken. Any time of day is all right, but if you don't want to wait call Kennell-Ellis for an appointment or go down in the morning when they're not so busy.

The cost is 20 cents for the first cut and 15 cents for each extra place it is used. Four poses will be taken.
