

Nobody's Business

By BRUCE HAMBY

Anyone caring to achieve the doubtful fame of having his name carried in the newspapers up and down the coast is urged to apply at the sports department. This writer has found a sure-fire method. It's not guaranteed, but most likely will work probably very unexpectedly.

The first requirement is to write a column. In this column the writer should refer in one way or another to professionalism in college athletics. Charges that your own school subsidizes its football players is good for the sport page at least. In order to get on the front pages shoot the works and slander the whole conference! It works. Just ask this writer.

A week or so ago this column carried a re-write of portions of an article found in the Tuesday, November 15, issue of the University of Idaho Argonaut. In this story Paul Jones, sporting editor, had quoted L. H. Gregory of the Morning Oregonian on the various means by which coast schools allegedly attracted and kept athletes. The article was reprinted solely because this writer thought it was interesting.

Someone down south evidently pointed out the article to sports writers and the column was the recipient of considerable comment. Stanford and California authorities came out with statements characterizing the "charges" as silly and untrue. The Stanford official went so far as to state that only nine members of the freshman football team received scholarships.

This column makes no apology for carrying the comments. It is unfortunate, however, that the fact the article was a re-printed one, merely a quotation—not at all charges. To date this writer knows nothing of the athletic situation at other coast schools—beyond hearsay.

To any school that interpreted the article as direct charges against its athletic integrity, we do apologize, however. We believe whatever rumpus came from the story was not because the story was printed, but because those who read it did not realize that it merely was quoting the statements of someone else.

L. H. Gregory writes the following about the football situation here at Oregon: "Oregon winds up the coast conference season in a tie for fourth place, though if Washington beats U. C. L. A. next week it will be a tie for fifth. That's not so bad. Certainly not for the first season's effort of a young coach, especially when the young coach, Prink Callison, not only was making his

Thanksgiving Day Grid Games Provide Many Thrills

Washington Tally Throws Scare Into Jones; Brovelli Whole Show In Gael Battle

By DICK NEUBERGER
Editor, Oregon Daily Emerald
SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 28—(Special)—The score was 9 to 0. The Trojans of Southern California were ahead. ART Ahonen dropped back to pass. Dave Nisbet ran over to the right to catch it. Palmer, Brown and Clark surrounded Nisbet to prevent the feat. Ahonen threw the ball. It soared over the line of scrimmage. From somewhere in a leaping, clawing mass of humanity Nisbet jumped into the air. He speared the wobbling oval. He tottered back and fell across the goal line with Palmer on his shoulders.

Dave Nisbet

Touchdown for Washington! The echo of the crowd's roar reverberated across Lake Washington to the Queen Anne hills and back again. Six minutes later the battle ended. The score was 9 to 6. Southern California had survived its closest conference game in two years of competition.

Homer Goes Places
The difference between victory and defeat at Seattle Thanksgiving day was a dashing roly-poly fellow named Homer Griffith. Because he happened to be playing for Southern California, that team won. Griffith was to the Trojans what Napoleon Bonaparte was to the French army. He punted; he passed; he ran the ball. On defense he was a sharp-shooting tackler. His blocking, after Irvine Warburton scampered into action, was perfect.

The turf of Washington stadium was mud-splotted and looked as trampled as if a herd of horses had plodded over it just before the game. Even loyal Husky adherents admitted that the precarious footing thus afforded slowed up the Trojans on their cutbacks and reverses. Several times Griffith and Warburton and Getz appeared to be headed places, only to find themselves unable to change their direction quickly enough to avoid Washington tacklers.

The celebrated Mr. Jones was as cool as a cucumber until the Huskies scored their touchdowns. Then he jumped into direct action. He walked up and down before the bench, sending players in, pulling players out.

After the game, Jones said Washington was the best team Southern California had met since the Notre Dame game last year. debut in collegiate football circles, but was following so resourceful and famous a football leader as Dr. Clarence W. Spears.

"Way back in September I told you that Prink Callison, or any other young coach starting in the Pacific coast conference, would make some mistakes and that there would be disappointments. He made 'em, and there were, but that's all over now. That game Oregon played St. Mary's, even though the Webfoots lost, makes up for a lot of things.

"At any rate Prink Callison certainly is entitled to another season at the Webfoot helm. He'll get it, I feel sure. He was firing his range-finding shots this season, you might say. Now he knows windage and deflection, he has shot his "overs" and his "shorts." He can let fly next year bracketed on the targets.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 28—(Special)—They let the "Dark Angel" off the St. Mary's campus and led him right into Kezar stadium Thanksgiving day and St. Mary's is not sorry the least bit.

Angel Brovelli

It was Angel Brovelli, the lad that was almost benched because of an infraction of training rules, that swept Oregon off its feet in the last period and gave the Angel Brovelli Moragans their 7-to-0 victory. He entered the game at the half and on the first play swept around end for 25 yards, only to be called back and have a penalty imposed on his teammates.

It wasn't until the last six minutes of play that Brovelli again got away. This time he led the attack that carried the ball from the Gael 20-yard line to the Oregon end-zone for the seven points that was the margin of victory.

The first half was all Webfoot as far as statistics go. St. Mary's was on the defense with the exception of a long pass from Capt. Bill Beasley to George Canrinus which placed the ball on Oregon's 10-yard line. On the next two plays they were driven back 12 yards and lost the ball when Chuck Wishard intercepted a lateral pass.

Oregon's best chance to score came in the early minutes of the fourth quarter when a passing attack with Gee and Temple at the helm. With the ball on the 8-yard line, fourth down and six to go, Ted Giesecke, drop kick specialist, went in, but his try for a field goal was wide and the ball was brought out to the 20-yard line from where the Gael's started their touchdown march.

Roy Craft, Register-Guard sport editor, and Rush Hughes, former KORE announcer, held the press box down until St. Mary's made their touchdown. Where they went then still remains a week-end mystery.

During the half, Governor Rolph of California and Governor Meier of Oregon spoke over the public address system. They are from the two schools themselves and drew cheers and boos from the crowd of 25,000 as each had his turn.

The dairy herd at Cookeville State Polytechnic institute in Tennessee set an all time butterfat record for Jersey cattle.

Frosh Hoopsters Start First Week Of Real Practice

Rogers To Guide Destinies Of Yearling Quintet This Year

By BILL EBERHART
With Rockwell (Red) Rogers appointed yearling coach for the entire season, the frosh basketball squad has settled down to hard daily practices.

Although the official season doesn't start until some time in January, nearly 40 candidates are reporting and Coach Rogers wants to spend plenty of time sifting the squad down into a formidable team.

No official schedule has been released as yet. Outstanding stars from last year's high school circles who decided to cast their hoop hopes with the Webfoots are Stew Milligan, University; high star and frosh backfield ace; George Sanford, Salem, who was picked on the all-state team for three successful seasons; M. Strobel, Pendleton; Fletcher Johnson, Salem; Dwight Webb, Dallas; Wright, Springfield, and Al Leemahs.

The rest include: John Boyd, Dean Conaway, Harold Thompson, J. Miller, Donald Webb, Frank Levings, A. Adoman, Pete Buck, B. Thoman, Hugh McCredie, Bernie Butler; H. Shearer, Ed Wheelock, J. Hanley, C. James, G. Holland, Bill Harcomb, B. Seufert, Ed Vail, Joe Gordon, R. Garretson, Chuck Rickabaugh, Norm Hampton, E. Stansy, D. Ward, C. Cummings, Bud Johns, F. Lewellen, Bob Ryan, J. Campbell, Cliff Meredith, Al Kilborn, and K. Reeves.

The following list of boxers who have signed up in the intramural boxing tournament are urged to report to Mr. Boushey in the men's gym as soon as possible: A. Fajardo, G. Schenk, H. Lucas, M. Pease, R. Jones, W. George, G. Becktold, R. Rew, J. McKy, P. Beistel, J. Wilkinson, G. McGinn, H. Leggett, S. Shleifer, B. Ballard, A. Derbyshire, L. Anderson, F. Sears, G. Valentine, J. Denslow, G. Getty, H. Lambert, G. Schartz, E. Goodnow, F. Whittlesay, F. Kerby, J. Renner, J. Hayden, J. Halver, O. Newcombe, M. Pudio.

Mountain Winner In Initial Match

Tom Mountain drew first blood in the Yeoman ping pong tournament, which got under way yesterday, when he defeated Florendo Mangavil 19-21, 21-16, 21-18, 21-18. Sixteen men are entered in the event which will decide the king of the celluloid swatters in the ranks of the independent men.

Freshman Women Invited to Party

All freshman women are invited to a get-acquainted party to be given by the Thespians, members of the freshman women's honorary, tomorrow night at 7:30 in Gerlinger.

Plans have been made by this organization whereby all unaffiliated women will be personally invited and a series of games and entertainment has been arranged so that the girls may learn the names of the members of their class.

The committees for the affair are Louise Carpenter, refreshments; Reva Herts and Nora Hitchman, special features; Peggy Chessman, publicity; and Katherine Gribble, entertainment.

One Tilt Only Left On Coast Football Slate

Trojans Finish on Top Of Heap as Usual

U. O. Fourth; Ucla-Husky Fry To Terminate Conference Gridiron Play

By NED SIMPSON

The 1932 Pacific Coast conference football ends Saturday afternoon with Washington and U.

U. C. L. A. meeting in the curtain closer. The game will hold a lot of thrills and from pre-game dope it should be about even - Steven, with Washington having a slight edge due to its performance against U. S. C. Thanksgiving day. The game will have quite an effect on the final standings of the league, for should Washington win, teams now in a tie for fourth place would be relegated to a tie for fifth.

The finish of the season finds the Trojans of Southern California at the top of the heap for the second consecutive year. The Trojans clinched the crown Thursday by beating Washington 9 to 6, while the Cougars of Washington State were handing the Uncles a 3 to 0 beating. The Trojans' next clash will be with the great Notre Dame aggregation on Dec. 10 down in Los Angeles.

Out in Westwood, Coach Bill Spaulding is giving his Bruins the finishing touches for their game with the Washington Huskies. The Uclas, no matter what the result of the battle, will occupy third place in the league. They have just about finished a most successful season, chalking up victories over Oregon and Stanford, as well as over Montana and Idaho, and if they win on Saturday it will be a fitting climax to a thrilling series of wins.

Moving on up the coast we come to Palo Alto, where dwell the Stanford Indians. "Not so good," moan the poor Card alumni. Stanford lost its first inter-sectional game in years last Saturday when they succumbed to the attack of the Pitt Panthers by a score of 7 to 0.

Across the bay from Stanford we find California. The Bears, hailed as one of the dark-horse entries at the first of the season, find themselves only in the semi-gloom, occupying along with Oregon and Washington a three-place tie for fourth place in the race. The highlight of their year was a 7 to 6 win over Washington and a scoreless tie with Stanford.

Webfoots Start Well
Leaving the land of sunshine, we venture into the misty lands bordering the Willamette river, where we find the University of Oregon. Starting the season with probably the best prospects of any team on the coast the Webfoots find themselves halfway to the cellar, with Washington and California, as companions. Something went wrong with the Ducks about mid-season and they never did pull out of the hole.

Oregon State finds themselves in a tie for next to last with Idaho keeping them company. Washington State, with several men of all-American calibre to bolster their attack, has done very well for itself, landing in second place. Idaho has had only a very mediocre season, losing all but one conference tussle. Montana, the "man in the basement," has not done a thing all season except lose games, mostly by big scores.

Beta Five Moves Into Semi-Finals In Donut League

Other 'B' Teams Advance With Easy Victories; Race Nears End

Today's "A" League Schedule
Sigma Chi vs. Phi Gamma Delta, 4:00 p. m.
Theta Chi vs. Alpha Upsilon, 4:40 p. m.
Sigma Alpha Mu vs. Phi Kappa Psi, 5:20 p. m.

The winners of yesterday's donut encounters had little trouble in downing their respective opponents. S. A. E. romped over Kappa Sig, 21 to 1, Beta had a little more trouble with Theta Chi in a 22 to 5 game, and in the last game the Yeomen beat Phi Psi, 14 to 2.

Led by Fred Lieualen, former Bend high fash, the S. A. E. team just merely played around with Kappa Sig and scored points almost at will. Lieualen was high point man of the contest with 13 counts.

What was expected to be a close contest between Theta Chi and the Betas turned out to be a route in the Betas' favor. Yesterday's victory won the league title for the Betas and the right to a place in the semi-final bracket.

Phi Psi did not have a chance with the flashy Yeomen.
