

U of O History Sketch Is Sent To Syndicate

Material Includes Photos Of Traditional Events

James H. Gilbert, Dean of Social Science, Directs Work On Papers

The University of Oregon will be included in a series of historical sketches, now under preparation by Norman H. Lea, artist of Chicago, for syndication to newspapers throughout the country.

The sketches, which will appear in two or three column size, will include reproductions of historical and important buildings, traditions, unusual athletic records and amusing anecdotes of college life.

Many Pictures Included
Material sent to Mr. Lea from here at his request included photos of Deady hall and Villard hall, the University's first buildings, the Fine Arts building, and the Pioneer Mother and the Pioneer statues done by A. Phimister Proctor, sculptor. Descriptions of the flower and fern procession and other traditional campus events were also sent. Names of noted graduates were also included.

To illustrate his aims in the series, Mr. Lea sent to the University here a sample sketch drawn about Northwestern university. This depicts the first building of the institution, shows a number of unusual campus traditions, and lists several outstanding graduates.

Material on the University of Oregon was prepared under the direction of Dr. James H. Gilbert, dean of the college of social science, and a faculty member since 1907.

Westminster Entertains

The officers of the Wesley club were entertained by the Westminster organizations at the last open house meeting of the term at the Westminster house last Friday evening.

Withdrawals Must Be Certified, Says Registrar's Office

Students who have entered petitions for permission to withdraw from classes are advised to make sure their petitions have been properly entered, passed on and filed, it was stated last night by Clifford Constance, assistant registrar.

No withdrawal is complete until it has been officially sanctioned by the scholarship committee, and notice has been sent to instructors. No petitions may be entered after the examinations start, and before then, only in courses in which a student is receiving passing grades.

'Big Broadcast' Will Be Featured At Fox-McDonald

Plans are complete for the Alpha Delta Sigma night to be held at the Fox McDonald theatre this evening, at which time "The Big Broadcast" will be featured. The announcement was made by Mahr Reymers, president of the advertising fraternity.

Beginning at 9 o'clock, added attractions will be shown which include a prominent Eugene stage band and a male review. Gibson Dames, of Alpha Delta Sigma, will be master of ceremonies. He was the Walter Winchell master of ceremonies during the Canoe Fete last spring.

Tickets can still be purchased from house representatives of members of the fraternity, and must be purchased from these groups if Alpha Delta Sigma is to receive any benefits. Reymers explained that the proceeds of the tickets will go to help defray the expense of the advertising conclave, which the local chapter sponsors for advertising men on the Pacific coast.

Official Journal For Oregon Bar Being Distributed

Magazine Published by Law School Faculty Members And Students

The December Oregon Law Review, the official journal of the Oregon Bar association, published by the law school faculty and students of the University law school, appeared yesterday and is being sent out to subscribers.

Contributors to the issue, which also contains the summary of the meeting of the Oregon Bar association last summer, include George Rossman, associate justice, state supreme court; Charles N. Paul, president of the Washington Bar association; and Wallace S. McCamant, formerly associate justice of the supreme court of Oregon.

Judge Rossman is the author of an article on "Approved Forms of Pleading"; Mr. Paul wrote on "The Legal Profession and the Incorporated Bar"; and Judge McCamant contributed "Washington as a Man." The article by Judge McCamant was delivered as an address before the bar association meeting at Gearhart.

Other items of interest include committee appointments for the coming year for the bar association, registration of law students, notes and comments on legal phases, and book reviews.

Vespers To Be Held
Christmas Vesper services at the Y. W. C. A. bungalow today at 5 will conclude the activity of that group for the term, when a program led by Mrs. Elizabeth Silver Armstrong will be open to all interested in attending.

O. P. C. Prexy on Campus
Mr. Thomas Nelson, president of the Oregon Press conference, met with the journalism faculty to arrange the program of the press conference that will probably be held on this campus January 20-21. The program will be released later.

Organ Concerts May Be Presented By John S. Evans

Whenever a group of three or four vacant Sundays occur next term, John Stark Evans is "willing, ready, and able" to present a short series of organ concerts, he said yesterday.

However, the presentation of concerts will be coordinated with the University musical calendar. Therefore they will probably be given in February, since January is well filled with programs by the Portland Symphony orchestra, the Eugene Gleemen, and possibly the University orchestra.

Student recitals will begin the second Tuesday after the new term opens. They will continue throughout the term.

Seal Proceeds Due
Proceeds from Christmas seals issued to heads of houses, or un-sold seals, should be turned in to the dean of women's office today, it was announced yesterday by Eula Duke, secretary of the dean of women's office. The stamps were issued to the various living organizations last week for distribution and are a part of the 26th annual drive that is conducted nationally to fight tuberculosis.

Emerald Of the Air

The "newspaper of the air" comes to you over KORE today at 12:15, with a resume of current Emerald news.

The Emerald-of-the-Air brings this term's broadcast to a close at the end of this week. News will feature tomorrow's program. Thursday will offer another 15 minutes of music. Bruce Hamby will give his weekly sports talk on Friday, and Saturday will wind up with a news broadcast.

MOVIE NOTES

McDONALD—"Big Broadcast." COLONIAL—Are You Listening?

McDonald
Bing Crosby, needing no further identification, makes his debut as a big time actor in the "Big Broadcast," supported by Stuart Erwin and Leila Hyams, not to mention the Mills brothers, Kate Smith, Boswell sisters, Arthur Tracy, Cab Calloway, and Vincent Lopez. And now that that is done the picture needs hardly any further identification. Interesting enough, inasmuch as you at last get yourselves introduced to the face and personality behind the voice.

Throbbing Bing is no great shakes of an actor, but all his fans will be satisfied. He sings his allotted number of songs in his own inimitable style, shows his profile enigmatically, and is there in person to be looked at as well as listened to.

The story is inconsequential, but after all, it was simply a peg to hang the program on. Alpha Delta Sigma is sponsoring tonight's showing. They urge you to buy your tickets from a member.

Colonial
William Haines takes his crack at the radio, and, strangely enough, tries his hand at being a big time actor, also. In this "Are You Listening?" romance of the microphone, the wise-cracking Willy is conspicuous by his absence. Nevertheless his story, one of the first to feature radio, moves fast, is enlivened by a murder or so, radioing racketeers, and has a happy ending.

Leila Hyams is the appeal here also, and is as pretty as she ever was, and a distinct addition to the picture. But Willy-tut. They tell me he has returned to his old time smart-cracking role for his next. We'll be listening then.

DEAN ADVISES FROSH TO PLAY UP TO FACULTY

trate and do more than merely "read up the assignment."

"Cramming" No Good
The dean took a stand against last-minute cramming. He advised his listeners not to pore over their books on the day of an examination, explaining that practically everything learned at this stage would be forgotten within a short while.

"But if you study a lesson and can remember the points involved for an hour, you've got it. Try to connect the points of the assignment with personal associations, as vivid as possible, whether imaginary or real. Things that have been vivid and outstanding in your life you never forget."

That every student who has study problems should take a course in general psychology as soon as he is eligible for it was one of the speaker's points.

Many Ways To Study
"Different types of minds remember facts in different ways," he pointed out. "As soon as a student can classify his own type of mental operation, he can adapt his methods of study to suit his own personality."

A student writing an examination which requires long "essay-type" answers to questions should go through the paper rapidly, tak-

Alumni. Stanford has passed through a period of depression athletically and the prospects for the future are much brighter than at any time since I have been here.

"I will always feel very kindly toward Stanford and I wish my successor the very best of success." (Signed) "Glenn S. Warner."

Alumni who have been urging a change have hinted that Ernie Nevers, 1925 All-American full-back at Stanford, may be given a promotion on the coaching staff.

He has been assistant coach to Warner this year. Dick Hanley, coach at Northwestern, was also mentioned as a possible successor.

Blend... AND YOU GET A DIFFERENT TASTE

Cross-Blend... AND YOU GET A BETTER TASTE

That's the reason Chesterfield not only blends but cross-blends its tobaccos.
Blending mixes the tobaccos together. Cross-Blending welds them together... into one tobacco of milder, more pleasing taste! And what's more, a taste that's uniform, always the same.
It's like creating a new and better tobacco for cigarettes. It makes Chesterfields milder, gives them more fragrance... and makes them taste better.
