By WESTBROOK RICE
Noted All-Star Selector (Special)—Following the selections of the Associated Press and United Press, the Emerald editorial board last night selected its all-star faculty team for the 1932 season. James H. Gilbert captains the mythical eleven because of his seniority, his vast background of knowledge, and his long record of some forty years of classes without once being late or absent. He has been selected at fullback.

Carlton Spencer and Donald Erb play the end positions. Spencer was elected because of his brilliant record at Oregon, Erb because of his versatile passing attack, in the last session taking out Bill Morgan, varsity captain, and completely baffling Ted Robb, football manager.

Two Tackles Strong
George Turnbull and George Rebec hold down the tackle positions. Turnbull has put in some mighty fine work during the last season, and Rebec because of his authority in his field.

C. V. Boyer and Orlando Hollis obtained their positions by an at-most unanimous vote of the Emerald board of strategy. Their playing this season has been marked with brilliance and consistency.

Dean Eric W. Allen at center needs little introduction by the Emerald. He is a figure of national-wide importance, and will undoubtedly reach all-coast honors, if not all-American.

The backfield selection includes many famous educators. H. V. Sheldon occupies the quarterback berth, and has outguessed his opponents for a number of years.

Triple-Lateral Features
Victor P. Morris and Wayne L. Morse occupy the halfback posts.

Morris because of the clearness and conciseness of his lectures, and Morse because of his outstanding contributions to criminology. He is another contender for all-American mention, especially because of his noted triple-lateral, Morse to Moley to Roosevelt.

Honorable mention goes to the following, many of whom received many votes for first places:

Warren D. Smith, Ray P. Bowen, John J. Landsbury, Rudolph Ernst, H. R. Taylor, John Mueller, and W. R. B. Wilcox.

Prof. Herbert Crombie Howe, ex-fash from Cornell, is a unanimous choice for faculty representative and director of athletics.

It is rumored that Capt. Gilbert is dicker for an intersectional game with the strong University of Wisconsin all-star eleven.

In the zero hour before the finals, do you thirst for a time of forgetfulness? It awaits you, weary toiler o'er the arid wastes of education, and McArthur court shall be the oasis which enfolds you Sunday afternoon—with no cover charge!

At 3 o'clock, Director Arthur Boardman's baton will signal for the opening chords from chorus and orchestra in the third annual presentation of Handel's "Messiah" by the University Polyphonic choir and the University Symphony orchestra.

The concert will be free to all University students upon presentation at the door of their student body cards. Reserved seats at 50 cents for faculty and townspeople go on sale today at the University Co-op. General admission tickets at 25 cents will be sold at the court on the day of the concert.

Final rehearsals of the ensemble of 200 students are being held during the week, and Director Boardman reports that choir and orchestra are ready for a performance equal to the one which pleased an audience of 2500 a year ago.

Soloists will be Grace Burnett, soprano; Rose Simons, contralto; Victor Bryant, tenor; and Gifford (Buck) Nash, basso. All are well known student singers with established reputations gained in similar roles in previous concerts of the Polyphonic organization.

"The Messiah," which is generally recognized to be the most universally popular of all oratorios, has "held the boards" in half the world for 161 years. Written by Handel in 1741 during a stay in Dublin, and first presented the following spring in a benefit concert for Irish charities, it rapidly gained a wide recognition which has never since waned.

It is particularly popular at the Christmas season, for the libretto, drawn entirely from Holy Scripture, centers about the promise of Christ's coming and its fulfillment. Selections from "The Messiah," such as the "Hallelujah Chorus" and the aria, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," have gained places for themselves among the best of religious music.

Heads of Houses Asked To Turn in Money and Seals

Christmas Stickers Provide Hospitalization, Says Head

Heads of houses who still have Christmas seals or money issued them should turn them in as soon as possible to the dean of women's office, it was announced last night.

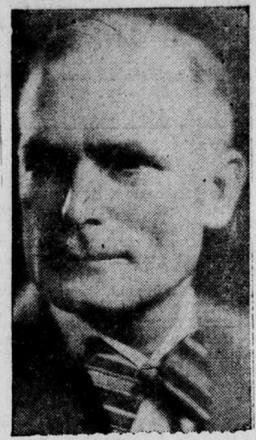

"There seems to be a common misunderstanding about the use of Christmas health seals," Mrs. J. Bishop Tingle, seal sale chairman of the Lane County Public Health association, said. "That they 'provide hospitalization,' as stated in yesterday's Emerald editorial, is not quite true.

"In Oregon, the state pays for tuberculosis sanatoria and preventoria. Of course, the Oregon Tuberculosis association helped to bring the need for these institutions to the attention of the legislature. Then, too, Christmas seal doctors and nurses are constantly on the lookout for 'the other case.' In this way, the seals do provide doctors' and nurses' care to those who would not otherwise have it."

Health education and disease prevention, however, are the chief aims of the Christmas seal sale. Research in ways to cure and to prevent . . . early diagnosis . . . teaching children health habits . . . these are some of the uses of seal sale money.

"Buying Christmas seals is buying health insurance," Mrs. Tingle said. "The more of them you buy, the safer you will be, because you, home town, your state, and your nation will be safer."

Captain

Here we have Dr. James H. Gilbert, named captain and full-back on the Emerald editorial staff's all-star faculty eleven. Cap'n Gilbert is reported to be a hard-grading line-smasher with an econ. book under his arm.

Drama Society Elects Five Student Players

Announcement of the pledging of five students by Mask and Euskin, local chapter of National Collegiate Players, was made yesterday.

Students pledged were: Ty Smith Hartman, sophomore, of Portland; Louise Marvin, senior, of Portland; Daisy Swanton, senior, of Eugene; Wilber Walker, senior, of Yoncalla; and Bill Anderson, sophomore, of Portland.

KOAC To Present School of Music

In announcing the soloists, Eugene Pearson, baritone and Jane Kanzler, pianist, for the first music program over KOAC winter term, Mr. Arthur Boardman stated that this first program of Thursday, January 5, will undoubtedly be the finest of the series presented over KOAC.

As reasons for this statement Mr. Boardman remarked that Jane Kanzler, who has studied for the past three years under Mr. George Hopkins of the music faculty, is well known on the campus for her many and successful appearances, while Mr. Pearson, a pupil of Mr. Boardman of the school of voice, is one of the most outstanding singers produced by the school of music in the last several years.
