

Departmental Grade Analysis Is Announced

All-University Average Remains Stable

LAW FLUNKS MANY

Latin GPA Highest, Greek Second; Military, Music, Education, Geology Follow

By DON CASWELL

Grade point averages and percentage distribution of grades in the 31 departments of the University for fall term have just been released by the registrar's office. The all-University grade point average of 1.37 was almost identical with that for the fall term in 1931-1932, when it was 1.364, although there was a total difference of 2.953 grades in the total tabulated.

The Latin department had the highest grade point average in the University, with 2.14 on 49 grades given out. Greek was second with 2.12 on 9 grades, and military third with 1.98 on 494 grades.

Social Science Severe
The social science department proved to be the most severe in grading, although not in the largest percentage of flunks. Social science grades averaged .87 points per hour. The lower division of political science turned in the lowest GPA of any division, with only .67.

The law school had the highest mortality rate, with 12 per cent of its 362 grades being flunks. The geography department, with 82 grades, was second with 10 per cent flunks. Mathematics and political science shared third position in this phase, with 8 per cent each.

Several departments turned in clean grade slates, with no failures. These were Greek, Latin, landscape architecture, and home economics.

Grads Rate Highly
Graduate students received the highest grades of any of the three divisions of students, with a GPA of 2.37. Upper division work averaged 1.52, and lower division work 1.27.

The largest number of grades was issued by the department of English, 2,088 in all, and the smallest, 9, by the Greek department.

In the all-University division of grades, it was found that A was given in 14 per cent of all grades, B in 31 per cent, C in 37 per cent, D in 14 per cent, and F in 4 per cent.

Nine Get All A's
Nine students in the University made straight A's in all subjects. The grade point averages for the 31 departments, in order of their rank, are: Latin, 2.14; Greek, 2.12; military, 1.98; music, 1.96; education, 1.74; geology, 1.73; art and architecture, 1.72; landscape architecture, 1.72; home economics, 1.72.

Military Course Opposed Rigidly

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—(AP)—The Student Congress Against War raised its voice in protest here recently against military training for students at colleges and universities.

Speakers denounced maintenance of reserve officers' training corps on campuses, and the resolutions committee presented the 650 delegates at the congress with an opportunity to vote for abolition of military training.

Military training is compulsory for colleges receiving government grants, the resolution pointed out, so another resolution proposing repeal of the Morrill land grant act by congress was formulated.

Names of Three Honor Students Omitted by Error

The names of Barney Clark, Jane Cook, and Eleanor Coombe were omitted from the list of honor-roll students published in the Emerald last Tuesday.

These students having compiled the enviable record of making a grade point average of 2.5 or over, the Emerald wishes to apologize for the mistake which so unfortunately occurred. May their names or those of any other prospective Phi Betas never be omitted again from the pages!

Student Body Government at U. of California Is Described

By JULIAN PRESCOTT
Student government at the University of California is faced by problems not encountered at the much smaller and non-metropolitan campus at Stanford. Because of this, such large control of student discipline as has been delegated to the Stanford student body has been denied the California group. Otherwise, the functions of the A. S. U. C. are virtually the same. It has charge of practically all extra-curricular activities.
Membership in the association is open to faculty members as well as students. This gives the professors advantage of student rates for athletic events and other activities. It also makes possible the forming of a bond between students and faculty that might otherwise be impossible on a campus so large.

Big Problems Will Be Faced By Washington

Big Deficit Looms; News From Phelan Awaited

COACH IS UNSIGNED

Evergreen State Legislature Must Find New Methods for Raising School Funds

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON, Seattle, Jan. 11—(Special)—Rigid economies in the scholastic affairs of the University of Washington are sharing the spotlight now with the football coaching situation. Thousands of sports followers here are wondering if James M. (Irish Jimmy) Phelan will sign a contract to continue his services for another three years. At present, Mr. Phelan is in the East, and it is feared he may go to the University of Chicago to replace the venerable A. A. Stagg, retired.

Athletic conditions are in somewhat of a muddle here and Mr. Phelan has been prone to criticize the interference of Washington alumni on numerous occasions. After Jimmy lost to Oregon, 13 to 0, in 1931, the alumni started to criticize Jimmy, but a brilliant record this fall reversed the tables again. It is feared that Mr. Phelan, who came here from the Big Ten, as Did Doc Spears at Oregon, may follow Doc's footsteps eastward. The latter now is at Wisconsin.

Big Deficit Faced
Mr. Phelan's reluctance to affix his signature to a contract was due to the uncertainty of receiving his pay. The season just closed showed a deficit of $34,000 in the university's athletic fund. The receipts amounted approximately to $73,000, while the athletic program calls for an outlay of $107,000. Interest and sinking fund to care for $403,000 in bonds issued to pay for the university's athletic pavilion account for a substantial part of the budget.

When the pavilion bonds were issued five years ago, the sinking fund allowance was based upon the income of 1927. It is everywhere agreed in view of the diminished revenues of 1932, that the bond payments were excessive. In order to save the Associated Students of the University of Washington from defaulting, it will be necessary to obtain a moratorium or to rewrite the bond contract.

Education Also Short
The unhappy prospect of a shortage in funds for education is a matter for the legislature to improve, while the problem of settling the athletic program at the university is immediate and urgent. Without athletics the institution would languish and without a capable coach and a winning football team, the student body must go deeper into the hole. The university is in no position to take over the obligations of the student body and there is a real necessity for continuing the present athletic policy.

There is a growing conviction that the initiative measure adopted at the November election limiting the tax on real estate to 40 mills will have a depressing effect on education. It is estimated that the revenues for the common schools will be reduced approximately $8,000,000. In 1931, the state levied for the university, the state college and the three normal schools $3,523,316.

Clark Speaks at Round Table Meet

A paper, "What shall we do about war debts?" which explained the origin of war debt settlements, was given by R. C. Clark, head of the history department, last night at the monthly meeting of the Round Table, composed of University and business men, at the Ogden hotel.

Dr. Clark showed how the United States analyzed its settlements with foreign countries between 1924 and 1930. The total debt principal amounts to 11,000,000,000, over 62 years; 22,000,000,000 are to be collected by 1937. Up to the end of 1931, approximately $2,600,000,000 had been collected on debt installments.

The connection between debt payments and German reparations was also pointed out. Debts cannot be collected because the United States is unwilling to accept goods and services in payment. Unless the tariff policy is altered, a collection of debts is impossible.

Previous to the war, the United States was a debtor nation; now it is a creditor nation. In order to receive interest on private loans citizens have made abroad, an unfavorable balance of trade would have to be accepted.

Getting a man in, not keeping the male sex out, proved the hardest job of the senior cops at the Coed Capers last night. All the orchestra but the piano player came early, but the party couldn't start till he got there. When a search was instituted, he was found vainly arguing with Douglas Perkins, special watchman, who simply would not be convinced that he was necessary to the "women only" affair.

Of course, the senior cops had a little exercise in their rightful sphere. Two Theta Chi freshmen attempted to crash the gate in costume. The girls didn't blame them, because it was an initiation stunt. It seems that one of them had recited the Greek alphabet in three seconds and the other had won the pie-eating contest, and enforced permission to attend the Coed Capers was their "reward." Participants in the winning freshman stunt also had their lit-

Students Utilizing Fee Paying Plan

Approximately 550 students took advantage of the deferred payment plan for registration fees for the winter term, it was stated yesterday by E. P. Lyon, cashier.

This is almost identically the same number that was accommodated the fall term, when the plan was first put into use.

The registration fees are paid in three installments. The first is paid the day of registration and is $20 of the total $38. By the time the second installment is due, this term on February 4, $30 must have been paid. The final installment, by which time all of the fee must be settled, comes later in the term.

February 4 also marks the last day on which out-of-state fees can be paid at the cashier's office.

Cost Reduction In House Bills Will Be Sought

Fraternity and Sorority Managers Meet

DORM BASIS IS AIM

Further Slashes Must Be Made in Fixed Expenses, Taxes, and Utilities

Concerted and determined action on the part of all University of Oregon house-managers to devise means of bringing about lower expenses to members of fraternity groups on the campus was launched yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the House Managers' association in Johnson hall.

The house managers were unanimous in declaring that fraternity and sorority house bills will have to be greatly reduced in order that Greek-letter organizations may operate on a competitive basis with the dormitories and offer monthly housebills comparable to the lower dormitory rates.

Committees Named

Three committees were appointed by Ralph Walstrom, president of the organization, to investigate every possible means of reducing expenses. Names of the workers were not given out.

Walstrom pointed out that minor cost items have already been cut to the bone and that any further reduction will have to be in the major fields, such as fixed expenses, utilities, and property taxes. Groups were organized to secure accurate and complete data on all these items and to bring before the association such recommendations as may be acted upon immediately by the fraternities as a unit.

Information Sought

Complete information will likewise be secured upon the varying indebtedness of fraternities, the expense records of each house, the average housebills paid by fraternity and sorority members, and other material which has heretofore been jealously guarded by the individual organizations. The fraternities represented assured Walstrom of complete cooperation in releasing this information.

Fear that the state board of higher education will again propose a deferred pledging system in order to increase greatly reduced dormitory revenues is another factor in motivating the fraternities to immediate action, Walstrom said. The opinion was expressed by several of the house managers that if freshmen were prohibited from pledging during their entire first year, it would mean the extinction of fraternities on the Oregon campus.

The meeting was attended by Virgil D. Earl, dean of men, and Bob Hall, student body president.

Music Program To Be Presented Over KOAC

The University music program over KOAC tonight presents Edith Grim, pianist, Victor Bryant, tenor, and Teresa Kelly, accompanist. Mr. Bryant, who begins the program will sing "Maedchen mit dem rothen Mueandchen" by Franz, "Die Lotosblume" by Schumann, "Recit; 'If With All Your Hearts' and 'Aria' from Mendelssohn's 'Elijah', "Do Not Go, My Love," "Hegeance, and 'The Wanderer's Song' by Rasbach.

"Fantasy in C-minor" by Bach and "Rigaudon" by Raff make up Miss Grim's first group, while two Chopin numbers, "Nocturne in F-major" and "Scherzo from the B-minor Sonata" compose the second.

Dig Out the Album And Unload, Urge Oregon Editors

DO YOU have a picture of Mike Mikulak at the age of three years, clad only in his rompers?

Does your album contain a photograph of Parks Hitchcock describing a graceful parabola into the murky waters of the mill-race? If it does, please excavate it from its resting place and convey it either to the Oregon office in McArthur court or the office of the Co-op, where Edith Pererson or Maxine Rau will see that it is placed in the snap-shot section of the Oregon, for future generations to marvel at.

As a matter of fact, any snap-shot of campus personalities or happenings is welcomed avidly, so dig out the old album and unload.
