Nobody's Business

By MALCOLM BAUER
 Have patience, sport fans. Bruce "Westbrook" Hamby, your usual ballyhooist, was called to Portland unexpectedly yesterday (maybe to help Bill coach the Webfoots, who knows?), and the game is called for a substitution . . . the usual red tape . . . now, time in!
 Speaking of Bill and his Webfoots. With eight straight losses to their credit in the first eight starts, the record of Oregon's hoopsters would not look so encouraging to the casual observer. In fact, a "casual observer" in the Oregon State Barometer concludes that the lowly Ducks can not possibly win more than one more game, and that against the Idaho Vandals.
 Reasoning so, the gentleman from Corvallis seems to concede the fact that the up-and-coming Beavers are going to topple our lads four in a row. That's a little more than we can swallow. Has any team of "Slats" Gill's ever done that to a Reinhart coached team? For that matter has any Gill coached team so much as taken a series from a five tutored by "The Commodore"?
 Just puggle these thoughts a little, prophets before you make any undue predictions . . . why, Oregon court fans here in Eugene, after seeing the Webfoots go down to four straight defeats on their home floor, will put their last shirt on a bet that the Staters won't take more than two tilts from Bill's team.
 No mention has been made yet of the would-be sprinters, milers, and hurdlers who have been braving the cold winds of Hayward field in order to be in shape when Oregon's crippled track season rolls around. Colonel Bill Hayward isn't worrying any over the slashes made in his pet sport, but is putting the boys through their paces every night.
 If the Webfoots don't make a creditable showing at Pullman, May 30, it won't be the old master's fault . . . and he has a lot of evidence that the Webfoots will make a creditable showing . . . and then some . . . There's lightning swift Paul Starr in the sprints . . . Fuzzy Dolloff and Bob Hunter, two sure-fire point getters in the distance runs . . . Fred Nowland, Mason McCoy, and Bill Palmer in the hurdles and high jump . . . a mile relay team to be picked from such quarter axes as Marrs, Holman, Burr, Greenough, and Emmett . . . not to mention the host of big boys out playing with the shot, discus, and javelin.
 Just mention javelin, and we think of Warren Demaris, sophomore hope, who should put the spear out of the lot this year.
 How about the status of independent men in intramural sports? It has been the practice for some time to group all independents into one group, the Yeomen, and permit them to choose teams from all the unaffiliated ranks.
 Is there anything fair in this, either to the fraternity teams, or to the independent students themselves. Any one could form a winning team in any sport out of the some two hundred athletes at the call of the Yeoman organization. These green-shirted warriors walked over everything last year to take the intramural trophy, and they are doing the same thing again this year.
 Split the independents up, and you will also give them more opportunity to engage in intramural athletics. (Isn't that the real purpose of the donut sports?)
 Let's have a new deal.

Frosh Wallop Rooks in First Tilt of "Little Civil War"

Rogers' Five Upsets Dope At Corvallis

Ducklings on Long End of 31-27 Score

Stroble Turns Tide of Battle in Favor of Invaders; Orange Babes Outplayed

By JACK CHINNOCK
 Oregon State's highly touted rooks went down to defeat last night at the hands of the Oregon frosh, 31-27. The frosh outplayed the Orange babes in all departments of the game. The score at half time was 13 to 10 in favor of the ducklings.

The rooks opened the scoring in the first minute of play, but a cripple by Buck tied the score. The rooks again took the lead, only to be tied, 4 to 4, after eight minutes of play. The frosh found themselves and went into a scoring spree that put them ahead, 11 to 4, a few minutes before the half time. A rally by the rooks was good for six points to the frosh's two in the last two minutes of the half.

The rooks continued their rally in the first few minutes of the second half, taking a lead of 18-16 before the second half was five minutes old. The yearlings settled down, though, and by making the best of their foul shots and crimples, overcame the rook advantage to take the lead, 24-23 by the time the second period was half over.

Stroble Goes Wild
 Marv Stroble was substituted just seven minutes before the final gun and with the aid of his teammates, who gave him his chance by perfect blocking, scored four baskets in addition to two foul shots. The rooks attempted a belated rally a couple of minutes before the game ended, shooting from any place. Palmberg managed to drop through two shots from the center of the floor, but it was not enough to overcome the lead that the ducklings held.

The first period was slow, with both teams playing cautiously and feeling each other out. The frosh settled down and played smoothly and steadily, showing excellent teamwork, and overcame the early rook lead.

The game was rough, 18 fouls being called, of which 10 were on the frosh and 8 on the rooks. The frosh sank 7 of the 11 free tosses, while the rooks were only able to garner 5 out of 16. Glenn Sanford was put out of the game in the last few minutes on personals.

Bill Gets Tip-off
 Bill Harcombe consistently took the tip-off, giving the frosh the advantage. Almost every time the ball was tipped-off the ducklings got it and were able to work down into rook territory. The frosh had hard luck in trying to keep the ball in the basket, having it roll out time after time. All of the frosh scores were from short shots, while the rooks found it necessary to shoot often from the center court, being unable to consistently crack the strong duckling defense.

Palmberg and Bergstrom were the stars for the Orange babes, the former scoring 10 points, to tie with Stroble of the frosh for high-point man, and the latter ringing up 7. Buck starred offensively for the frosh in the first half, dropping in four baskets for a total of 8 points, while "Flash" Stroble took over the burden in the second half. Sanford and Milligan starred defensively, breaking up any play that tried to break through. Clayton James and Norm Hampton both showed well, and Harcombe's jumping at center was invaluable to the green-shirted lads.

Red Rogers' team meets the rooks again tonight at the Igloo at 7:30 in the second game of the "little civil war." The game is free of charge and will be preceded by a preliminary.

Hobbie's Pride --- and Loss

Here are two of the stars who helped Hobbie Hobson, Ashland Normal's basketball coach, start his remarkable winning season. "Wee Willie" Jones, on the left, is still going strong for the Sons, but Hobbie lost the dashing McLean recently when it was learned that he had not fulfilled all scholastic requirements for entrance to the normal school.
 Eugene fans may remember these stars as the leaders of the Sons' invasion of Eugene, early in the season, to split a two-game series with the Webfoots.

My Greatest Thrill in Athletics

By BUD POZZO
 (As told to Ned Simpson)
 PROBABLY the greatest thrill that I have ever gotten out of an athletic contest came during the game with

N. Y. U. in New York the fall of 1931. As you probably remember, our record up to that time was not so good, with that 53-to-0 beating at the hands of Southern Cal staring us in the face. The fact that we had been beaten so badly was a help, however, for it tended to make the New York team think we were easy. Just before game time it was announced to us that the betting odds were 10 to 2 in favor of the home team. You can imagine what our frame of mind was like!
 The thrill itself came when I saw Leighton Gee catch a pass and amble over their goal line for our first touchdown. That was the biggest part of the thrill, I should have said, for the whole process of beating those cocky easterners was one that left a very satisfactory feeling with us.

 Anselmo y Ferente de (Bud) Pozzo — and Hitchcock says that there are several more names to go — claims the sunny southland for his home. He has lived in Los Angeles all his life, and it was there that he began his football career. 'Way back in 1927 Bud started winning laurels on the grid-iron when he was selected as all-city running guard. He was playing on the Los Angeles high team at the time. The next year, however, saw Bud journeying northward to Menlo Prep and finally to Menlo junior college. Here — in 1929 — he earned recognition as all-state junior college half-back. Coming to Oregon in 1930, Bud was forced to wait a year before participating in conference football, so it was not until 1931 that he saw action with the Webfoots. Under "Doc" Spears he played blocking back, and was shifted to an end position under Prink Callison's tutelage. "Pose" will be back next year.

Students Provide Ways and Means For Iowa Sports

IOWA CITY, Feb. 3.—(AP)—University of Iowa athletes and coaches, with the aid of student organizations, have waged successful war on a threatened drastic sports curtailment growing out of the depression.
 A few weeks ago it was exceedingly doubtful, because of the athletic board's edict that each sport sponsored must be self-supporting, that there would be any winter-spring sports for Hawkeye athletes except basketball.
 Now 54 contests are listed in five sports other than basketball, and there may be even more, if money-raising projects continue to prosper.
 Building and operation of a public skating rink, dances, a swimming show and wrestling tournament have proved sources of revenue by which Hawkeye varsity baseballers, tracksters, swimmers, wrestlers and tennis players are promised fairly complete schedules. Only gymnastic and golf schedules were abandoned.
 A $350 donation by the junior class to the sports fund provided considerable impetus to the drive. Including basketball games, the winter-spring sports lineup now includes 54 dual contests, one quadrangular meet, and 10 other championship events—state, Big Ten or National Collegiate A. A.

PhiDelt Team To Play S.P.E. Six In Finals

Boys From Barn Defeat Kappa Sigma

Sigma Phi Epsilon 'B' Squad Wins Right To Meet Phis by Delt Victory

Monday's Schedule
 4:00—Theta Chi "A" vs. Yeomen "A."
 5:00—Sigma Chi "A" vs. Phi Delta Theta "A."

By BOB AVISON
 The Phi Delta Theta ball-swatters went into the finals in the "B" volleyball tourney with a crushing victory over the Kappa Sigs. Three games were played before the winner was decided. The boys from the mill race upset the dope bucket by taking the highly touted Phi Delt team into camp in the first game by a 15 to 13 count. This game proved to be a real thriller with the lead changing fully a dozen times before the winner was declared. The Phi Delt came back strong in the other two encounters and completely swamped the Kappa Sigs. The second game ended 15 to 7, and the third 15 to 3.

The other series played on last night's schedule was won by Sigma Phi Epsilon. The S. P. E. set through their ability to set the ball up completely smothered Delta Tau Delta. The first game ended in a 15 to 1 count, while the second was somewhat closer, the score being 15 to 12. Sphinx Wishard, Red Whitaker, and Ole Anderson formed a smooth working trio which completely vanquished the hopes of the boys from the hill.
 Sigma Phi Epsilon and Phi Delta Theta will play for the championship of the "B" league Tuesday. This should prove to be a game of games.

Watch Out!

Husky guards have to watch out for this fellow when he gets in this position. He is George Hibbard, flashy sophomore forward for the Oregon State Beavers who are meeting Hec Edmundson's University of Washington five in a crucial two-game series this weekend.

SEATTLE, Feb. 3.—(Special)—Oregon State hopped right back into a tie for second place in the northern division basketball race tonight when they nosed out Hec Edmundson's Huskies, 33 to 29.

The Orange team played inspired ball to turn back the Washington five, and put them again within easy shooting distance of the league leaders. Lanky Ed Lewis, Beaver captain, and "Skeet" O'Connell led the attack for the Staters.
 The two teams meet again tonight in the final tilt of their season's series. The Beavers hold an edge over the Huskies to date, having won two to the Seattle team's one.

Townsend Is Expected Back From East Today

Dr. H. G. Townsend of the philosophy department is expected to return to the Oregon campus today from a meeting of the Council of Learned Societies at Philadelphia.
 Dr. Townsend represented the United States Philosophical association, of which he is secretary, at the meeting.
