Nobody's Business

Nobody's Business

By BRUCE HAMBY

ACCORDING to one of our leading poets, "all things come to him who waits." Perhaps his aphorism will come true. The Oregon Aggies have been waiting around for a long time, and maybe they are going to get a basketball championship. The agricultural school, proud owner of a $36,000 a year radio station, is all ago. They even are a-twitter. They are going to win a championship—maybe!

By gum, Si, it's a-goin' to cum true. Sure as my name's Lemuel Trout, they can't keep the Aggies out. The vittle and crop boys are a-goin' to win.

We are glad to see Oregon State come through. On Slats Gill's team are such a group of sterling sports and fighting athletes, with real, red blood coursing through their veins, like the crusaders of old, that one wants to jump up and holler "hurray, hurray, hurray" everytime they come on the court.

They are real red-blooded people, those Aggies. Like young Apollos, they look like D'Artagnans of old, they seem to have stepped out of the pages of history as they dash across the court in search of the gonfalon of success. One has but to close one's eyes and forget the game to imagine each Aggie clad in armour riding to battle over the plains of Turkestan. (Note geographical knowledge.)

There will be one nice feature if Oregon State does win the pennant. It means that the Coast conference playoff will be held in Corvallis, which will make it possible for Oregon students to witness the three games. As U. S. C. apparently has the southern flag cinched the title round will be between Oregon State and the Trojans. I always did want to see this lad, Jerry Nemer, in action.

Foresighted Beaver officials, with the championship so lightly in grasp, are already beginning to worry about seating capacity when the Trojans come north. The Corvallis gymnasium will hold only 3500. That many people witnessed Tuesday night's game. They might get around the certain large crowd by holding two performances each evening. Something on the style of the better vaudeville houses.

Of course, one must consider that student body cards don't count in games outside the regular schedule. That will cut the student attendance in half.

At that, maybe we'll have to go to Seattle to watch Nemer in action. Or maybe the Trojans will lose out yet.

Temple, Hughes Chosen As Co-Captains of Duck Gridders

Varsity Players Elect Next Year's Leaders at Meeting; Spring Practice Starts Soon

By MALCOLM BAUER
Oregon's 1933 football team will have two captains. In a meeting last night at McArthur court, varsity gridsters named Mark Temple, blonde back field flash, and Bernie Hughes, veteran center, as co-leaders of next fall's Webfoot eleven.

Temple will act as field general of the backfield, while Hughes will act in the same capacity on the line.

Although no official figures of the vote were announced, it was understood that the count was 15 for Temple, 6 for big Mike Mikulak, 12 for Hughes, and 9 for Charley "Sphinx" Wishard.

In adopting the co-captain policy, the players took into consideration the difficulties which beset them last fall when Bill Morgan, husky captain, was forced to spend a greater share of the season on the bench due to injuries sustained early in the season. Since it is imperative that the acting captain be fully acquainted with all the twists in the rules, and there is always danger of injury to the single leader, a solution was arrived at by the election of two men to fill the role.

System New One

This is a trend away from the common practice on the Pacific coast. California, U. S. C., Washington, W. S. C., U. C. L. A., St. Mary's, Gonzaga, and Santa Clara always elect one captain each. Oregon State and Stanford name no field leader, appointing a captain for each game, although the new coaches at those schools are expected to make changes to the one-captain system.

The late Knute Rockne always favored the one-captain system. So does Howard Jones, Doc Spears, Bernie Bierman, Babe Hollingbery, Andy Kerr, and other celebrated mentors.

Also, in other sections of the country the one-captain policy is followed by most of the outstanding teams. A glance over last year's leading elevens shows definitely the predominance of a single leader. Tay Brown led U. S. C. to the national title without help from another field general. Notre Dame boasted by one leader in Paul Host.

Many Have One Leader

Wisconsin has but one captain for the coming season, Hal Smith. Gregory Kabat led the Badgers in 1932. On down the list of one-captain winners we find at St. Mary's, Bill Beasley; at Michigan, Ivan Williamson; at Minnesota, Wally Haas; at Washington State, George Sander; at Columbia, Paul Montgomery; at Alabama, the colorful Johnny Cain; at Tulane, Don Zimmerman; at Pittsburgh, Paul Reider; at Tennessee, Beatty Feathers; at West Point, Milton Summerfelt; and at Colgate, the all-American, Bob Smith.

"Prink" Callison stated last night that the choice of the new captains and the adoption of the new system of leadership was left entirely to the initiative of the athletes themselves. The balloting was done by varsity players only.

Hughes, who played his first football under "Prink," his present tutor, at Medford high school, has been a pillar of strength in the line for the past two seasons. Under "Doc" Spears he alternated at guard and center, and was considered one of the outstanding sophomore players on the coast.

Order of the 'O' Has Important Meeting Tonight

ORVILLE "RED" BAILEY yesterday reiterated his call for all Order of the "O" men to be present at an important meeting to be held at the Phi Delta Theta house tonight. Dinner will precede the business meeting.

Plans are underway to convert the lettermen's organization into a service honorary, giving it wide-sweeping functions on the campus. The purpose of tonight's convale will be to determine a plan for such a reorganization.

It is extremely important that every wearer of the lemon "O" attend.

son, Hughes has confined his driving power to the pivot position, and as has been stated above, is one of the outstanding ball-snappers in the West. He is "rough and tough" and can hold his own in any company. In addition to this, he has a cool head, a prerequisite in a good field general, and is far famed for his ability to diagnose enemy's plays.

Temple, one of the greatest Webfoot ball-carriers since Johnny Kitzmiller, has made a name for himself in his two years of varsity competition. Scaling only a mere 160 pounds, he conceded from 30 to 50 pounds to nearly every other back on the coast, and still managed to pull through with his share of all-star honors.

Temple Oregon Product

Temple, like Hughes, is an Oregon product, playing his prep ball at Pendleton high school. In his high school days he didn't confine his athletic activities to the gridiron, but also gained fame as a state all-star in basketball.

Mark's greatest day came in the 1931 season under "Doc" Spears when his name was in the headlines of every newspaper in the country as the driving force behind Oregon's startling upset of the highly-touted New York University Violets.

Oregon's grid forces get down to business Friday in the first practice session of the spring grid. The varsity and freshman aspirants who reported yesterday crammed the small classroom in the Igloo, and an equally large turnout on the sawdust is expected. If the weather does not improve before the time scheduled for the initial workout, Callison may confine his instructions for the time being to indoor skull practice.

stronghold of liberalism. He is an eminent executive. Long associated with Century magazine, at one time being its editor, he has written numerous books and articles, and is well-known for his literary skill as he is for his fearlessness and progressiveness.

The three Oregon students also till are receiving numerous expressions of commendation and praise from various citizens of this state. A letter addressed to Neuberger, Kahn, and Morse arrived yesterday from State Senator Joe E. Dunne, who said he had received their communication and was in full accord with the sentiment expressed therein.

While at Salem, the three students wired and wrote various educational leaders throughout the nation. Mr. Frank included, asking for opinions on the matter.

Down to Business

"Prink" is going right out after gridiron laurels for his 1933 mole-skin edition, and already he has the boys at work. At a meeting held last night at the Igloo, the Webfoot men outlined his plans for spring practice sessions, and today the pigskin tatters get down to brass tacks with their first workouts since they ran wild over the Louisiana State Tigers last December.

Clubbers Vie With Rogers' Frosh Tonight

Tip-Off To Be at 7:45; Yearlings Ready

Multnomah To Bring Strong Five For Duckling Conquest At McArthur Court

By JACK CHINNOCK

The frosh are in for a stiff test tonight when they meet the Multnomah Intermediates at the Igloo at 7:45. The Portlanders have a crack quintet that is said to be one of the best intermediate outfits ever turned out by the club.

Against this group stars, Rogers will probably start his two strongest forwards, Pete Buck and Marv Stroble. The guard positions will go to the usual strong bulwarks of defense, Glenn Sanford and Stew Milligan. Sanford, who forced Palmberg, rook star, to shoot most of the time from the center of the floor, will probably get the assignment of holding Garber, club ace, in check. Milligan will then probably attempt to hold down Miller, the club's other forward.

Red Rogers is as yet undecided as to who he will start in the center position. If Kidd, the club pivot man, is tall, he will be opposed by Bill Harcombe. If he is not so tall, then James will probably get the call. In this way Coach Rogers hopes to throw his strongest offensive quintet on the floor.

Rogers has a strong bunch of reserves and all of them will probably see action before the final gun. Norm Hampton, Fletcher Johnson, and "Bunny" Butler will act as reserves in the forward positions, while "Bud" Johns, Hugh McCredie, and Russ Humphries will be ready to take over the guard positions.

CASWELL GIVES MODERN VIEWS ON MECHANICS

tem of new mechanics, especially the quantum theory, illustrating with equations drawn on the board. He stated that the new mechanics is still consistent with the old, showing that the two main phases of new mechanics, relativity and the quantum theory although developed independently of other theories, are in reality special cases of the old classical mechanics.

In conclusion, Dr. Caswell said, "The new mechanics gives promise of combining into one consistent whole the older classical physics of mechanics and the various forms of radiation—the relativity theory and the quantum theory—and incidentally it gives us new and powerful tools for examining the atom and its behavior, resulting in great advances in the sciences of chemistry, physics, and astronomy. And sooner or later these advances will be reflected in practical applications of direct benefit to mankind."

Point-a-Minute

Sport fans who sneer at the court prowess of the fair sex should first take a look at the three-year scoring record of Lillian McDannell, star forward of the Arendtsville Vocational school for girls in Pennsylvania. In 35 games over the last three seasons Lillian has averaged better than a point a minute for the time she was on the floor, piling up a total of 914 points. Her highest total for a single game was 47 points.

This group will act with the Thespians, freshman women's honorary, and will meet and act under the directorship of Florence Kelly, vice-president of the class. The men and the houses they represent are as follows: El Nielson, Alpha Tau Omega; James Watson, Alpha Upsilon; John Clabaugh, Beta Theta Pi; Ed Labbe, Chi Psi; Loren Ford, Delta Tau Delta; Bob Thomas, Kappa Sigma; Bill Martin, Phi Delta Theta; Drew Copp, Phi Kappa Psi; Ralph Macartney, Phi Gamma Delta; John McConnell, Phi Sigma Kappa; Edwin Raudsep, Pi Kappa Alpha; Stanley Bromberg, Sigma Alpha Mu; Bud Johns, Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Clarence Nye, Sigma Chi; Maurice Winter, Sigma Nu; Bob Welch, Sigma Phi Epsilon; Barry Pennington, Sigma Pi Tau; Bill Paddock, Theta Chi; and Frank Levings, dormitories.

Groan, Grunt Artists After Donut Crown

Many Last Year's Champs Are Back in an Attempt To Retain Titles

By BEN BACK

Groan and grunt artists will hold the campus spotlight starting this coming Monday when intramural wrestling is slated to begin.

In the 125-pound class Norman Barker, present champion, will attempt to keep his title but will probably have some tough competition in the form of another wrestling ruffian, Maurice Pease. Ray Clapp, present 145-pound title-holder, intends to enter the 135-pound class this year due to his decreased weight since last year's tournament. He will have some stiff opposition in the form of two other promising lightweights, Bennie Hargreaves and Micky Vail.

Rough and tough Floyd "Honey" Hawn and Phil Dale ought to offer some real old-time wrestling in the 165-pound class which also has numerous contenders out for that crown.

Chuck Johnson is generally thought to be the most experienced man in the 175-pound division. However, he is likely to be defeated by some of the following boys; namely, F. Smith, W. Miller, or D. Kokon.

One lone football star will try to show what he learned from Prink Callison to some of the other heavyweight contenders. Dutch Clark, another champion of his class from last year, is out to show some of the other "big boys" how it feels to be tackled on the football field. Last year's 175-pound champion will be one of the boys entered in this class. Other good boys including this champion, Francis Keltner, who looked good in their work-outs are Al Wall and Walt Wicks.
