

Nobody's Business

By BRUCE HAMBY

You can look for the final announcement on the Oregon State college coaching situation within a very few days. According to reports from Portland yesterday afternoon the Beaver athletic board had sent their recommendation to Chancellor W. J. Kerr. Kerr will pass on their selection and send it on to the next state board of higher education meeting, where final judgment will be given.

Dr. Kerr stated last night that he had not yet received the recommendation and knew nothing of the situation. There will be no board meeting this week, he said, so there could be no final announcement until then.

The Portland report stated that Lon Stiner was the man named by the Beaver athletic bosses for the position of guiding the Orangemen through the next season. It is likely that he will be offered a one-year contract similar to the one given Prink Callison a year ago.

The retention of Stiner will mean that Oregon State will continue in the same style of play which won them so many laurels during Schissler's regime there—at least in inter-sectional games.

Those who know Stiner in Corvallis say he is a very likeable chap, with plenty of ability as a coach. According to these Beaver athletic followers, Stiner never had a chance to show much as Schissler usually ran the whole show, leaving his assistants on the side picking their teeth. He has been strongly backed by members of the football squad and is evidently quite popular on the campus, which should mean a great deal toward his success.

In case the recommendation was given to someone beside Stiner, your guess as to the next Beaver coach is as good as mine. Percy Locey, former Denver university coach, has been prominently mentioned, as has Red Grange, Pop Warner, the Four Marx brothers and Joe Cooks' four Hawaiians.

College of the Pacific, new home of Amos Alonzo Stagg, will meet St. Mary's in a football contest next fall in the first major engagement for the Stockton school. All of which goes to show what a big name means. The Pacific eleven was a member of the Far-Western conference, composed of such schools as California Aggies, Cal Tech, Chico State. Next fall they branch out into the big time with the Gael contest.

The game was made possible by the Stockton American legion, which is sponsoring the encounter. Slip Madigan is member of the post and agreed to sandwich the contest in his schedule between the game with Fordham in New York and with Santa Clara in San Francisco. It will be played in Stockton on Armistice day.

Ducks Leave For North To Battle Purple

Reinhart Remains Behind First Squad

Two-Game Series at Seattle Vital To Championship-Minded Washington Five

By BILL EBERHART

Oregon's basketball squad left Eugene yesterday noon for their annual invasion of Seattle, where they will meet the University of Washington in a two-game series tonight and Saturday. Coach Bill Reinhart did not accompany the main squad of 10 players and a manager, but remained in Eugene until this morning, due to the serious condition of Homer Stahl, in the Pacific Christian hospital with double pneumonia. Reinhart left for the northern city this morning, accompanied by Ed Kunkle and LaGrande Houghton, reserve players; Bruce Hamby, Emerald sports editor; and Bud VanDine.

10 Make Trip

Besides Art Derbyshire, student manager, the squad included Roberts, Stevens, Olinger, Robertson, Watts, Berg, Simons, Rotenberg, Miller, and Rourke.

The Webfoots' chances against the Huskies are considerably better than when the two teams played in the Igloo three weeks ago. Without Johnny Fuller, star and captain of the game, with a broken ankle, Washington split both series on their recent trip to Pullman and Moscow. They lost their first game to a Fox-coached hoop team Monday night and barely eked out a victory the next evening by one point.

Huskies Need Win

If Oregon can upset Hec Edmundson's team at least one game out of two, the best the Huskies can do toward the conference title is end in a tie with Oregon State. Washington will be entirely out of the picture if Oregon can manage to cop the series. On the other hand, if Reinhart's men drop both games at Seattle but turn around and take one from the Beavers next week, the conference will end in a tie. If Gill's team wins both tilts from the Webfoots and Washington gets the present series, the coast conference play-off will land in Corvallis.

Callison Decrees No More Football Until Next Term

"No more football is term!" This was the statement made last night by Prink Callison, head football mentor, when asked to confirm rumors to that effect. "The bad weather that we have been having added to the nearness of final exams make it necessary to postpone further practice until next term," he said.

For the past two weeks about 15 men have been turning out every night that it has not been raining, or snowing or hailing, but have only been able to get in four days of real workouts. Practice will start anew next term, however, and for four solid weeks there will be enough scrimmage and hard work to satisfy even the most football minded man on the squad. Following that, there will be light workouts for backs and ends and centers, who will brush up on their pass offenses and defenses.

Infirmery Has Five

The infirmery reports five patients, Mary Bohoskey, Alice Hessler, John Phillips, Kenneth West, and Lyale C. Smith.

Board of Control Hands Choice for Mentor to Kerr

OREGON STATE COLLEGE, Corvallis, Ore.—(Special)—From a list of approximately 80 applicants, the board of control of Oregon State college today submitted its unanimous choice for head football coach to Chancellor Kerr and the state board of higher education.

While the board refused to make known its choice, it was generally understood on the campus that Lon Stiner, assistant coach under Paul Schissler, was favored for the position.

The competition for the Seller cup will end today, being between the Alpha Omicron PIs, Pi Phis, and Thetas. This cup is given to the house having the best swimming team.

SHELDON TRACES DEVELOPMENT OF COLLEGES

ment toward the improvement of professional schools. Daniel C. Gilman, in founding the university endowed by the Quaker John Hopkins in his will, established a graduate scientific school. Although in that time this was a dangerous experiment, said Dr. Sheldon, it gradually popularized the opinion that entrants to scientific and professional schools should be graduates of a regular college course.

"From 1890 to 1892 a number of other institutions began to develop graduate schools and put their institutions on a more scientific basis," stated Dr. Sheldon. "The most significant of these new institutions was the University of Chicago." The summer quarter, extension course, university press, junior college movement—all these characteristics of the modern university were first established by the University of Chicago.

In the years 1892-3, several new universities sprang up, and the old ones rapidly improved, until at the middle of the nineties there had been firmly established in the United States a basis for the future.

Rook Defeat Marks Frosh Grand Finale

Ducklings Finish Season Even Up on Rivals

Rogers' Quintet Comes Back To Avenge Early Defeats; Seven Games Won

By JACK CHINNOCK

Coach Rogers' yearlings ended a successful season last Saturday night, when they trounced the rooks 39 to 23 in the final game of the little "civil war." The ducklings completely upset the dope by splitting the rook series.

The opener was taken by a 31 to 27 score, when the frosh flashed a sterling offense in the second half. The rooks took two close ones in a row, 29-27 and 31-30, but the frosh came back in the final to overwhelm the embryo farmers.

Victories Equal Setbacks

The frosh played a total of 14 games this season, winning seven for a percentage of .500. They found it hard to get started and dropped three straight games at the first of the season, two of which they later avenged. St. Mary's took the opening tilt from the frosh. Rogers' squad looked good by mid-season, upsetting the Eugene Fruit Growers 18-17, and giving the DeNeffe outfit a strong bid, only to fall behind in the last few minutes to lose 57-43.

After splitting the first rook series the yearlings met the strong Multnomah club intermediate quintet and came from behind to win 30-28. A few days later the frosh took revenge on the Yeomen, and then went to Silverton lose to the scrappy preppers, 30-23.

Frosh Lose Heartbreaker

The third game of the little "civil war" was played at Corvallis, the frosh losing a close one, 31-30. The lead was tossed back and forth throughout the game with the rooks getting it last. The final game, played as a prelude to the O. S. C. game, gave the fans an idea of how good the babes were and how well they were coached.

EERIE BUSINESS MARKS PLAY; TO SHOW TONIGHT

And Elizabeth Scruggs as the Lady Anne was admirably cast.

The rest of the cast was very adequate. Charles Shoemaker was full-blooded, nay, husky as the seductive, caddish brother of Pettigrew. Betty Buffington played her role as Helen very sincerely, and in her earlier scenes, beautifully. Louise Marvin was very, very graceful, and quite charming in a role not nearly so sympathetic as others. Hagan Moore did a good bit as the drunken princeling.

View it in its entirety, and "Berkeley Square" cannot help but do credit to Guild theatre, Mrs. Seybolt, and cast. It was a capable production of a most difficult play. The ghost will walk again tonight and tomorrow.

Statewide Contest Of Independents Slated for Today

Sixteen independent teams of the state go into action today in the first games of the Willamette valley basketball tournament to decide the open state champion.

In the opening tilt, set for 10 a. m., DeNeffe's of Eugene will tangle with the Benton Athletics of Corvallis. These two teams are among those seeded to stage a hot race for the independent crown.

The Neighborhood house five of Portland, composed of many ex-college stars, is picked by experts as the team to beat for the title.

Johnny Londahl Announces Star Of Frosh Baseball

JOHNNY LONDAHL, who will guide the destinies of the 1933 freshman baseball team, announced yesterday that candidates for the yearling nine will begin practice today at 3:30 in the Igloo.

The early workout is primarily for pitchers and catchers, who should make it a point to report. All others who are interested should also turn out.

Emerald, won the Colonial theatre pass for writing the greatest number of stories for the past week.

Betty Ohlemiller, came second on the list with ten stories. To Robert Butler went the honor of being the best copyreader for the week with a total of 19 heads.

'War Whoop' Has Weakness For Athletics and Co-eds

By HAZLE CORRIGAN

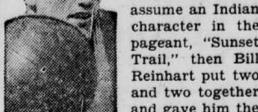

If you hear a great deal of unnecessary noise around McArthur court, don't be alarmed; it is only "War Whoop" Stevens. Kermit Douglas Stevens' interest in dramatics led him to assume an Indian character in the pageant, "Sunset Trail," then Bill Reinhart put two and two together and gave him the name "War Whoop."

"Best of all about basketball I like winning games, especially this year," Oregon's forward said at basketball practice. "I still have hopes that we will beat O. S. C."

"You can't have a team without material," he remarked in speaking of Oregon's disastrous season. "Oregon State has a one-man team, and the man is Ed Lewis. I believe that Lewis is the best center in the conference."

Baseball is Stevens' favorite sport. He is a three-year letterman, playing short stop for the varsity.

In addition to athletics, Stevens is interested particularly in dramatics, music, and a Chi Omega. Stevens is a member of Friars, Phi Delta Theta, was treasurer of his class last year, and will at the conclusion of the basketball season be a three-year letterman in two sports, basketball and baseball. He is an economics major and selects Dean Gilbert as his favorite professor.

GOOD JUDGMENT

On THEIR Part

Thirteen years ago the Executive Committee of the Associated Students, realizing the need of furnishing a convenient depot for the handling of text books and other supplies for the students, organized the University Co-op on a profit-sharing basis.

Such an intelligent move on their part has been recognized by the constant progress of the store. The Co-op during the 13-year period has sold over $750,000.00 worth of merchandise to students and faculty. It has at the same time incurred every expense of an independent firm. It has paid taxes, rent, insurance, corporation fees, income taxes, advertising, and salespeople.

A private store might well have shown a profit of $100,000.00 for this period. The Co-op because of the saving it passes on to you, a stockholder, and its policy of operating on a basis of cost plus a very narrow margin for safety and necessary expansion, can show a profit of only 4% or approximately $30,000.00. This fund is in constant use for merchandise, equipment, and betterment of service.

On YOUR Part

Every time you buy at the Co-op you save REAL money. You derive the multiple benefits of previous ingenuity and integrity. You are not faced with the necessity of pioneering for a satisfactory means of purchasing books and supplies at a minimum cost. If you were, you would do as they did.

But you can just as intelligently see that it is to your advantage to aid in the future progress and success of YOUR CO-OP by giving your support 100%.

You are proud of your organization and grateful to them, whom you have replaced and whose work you carry on—but if you are to adequately carry on—you must display the same common sense that prompted them in the beginning.
