

Supervisor Of Dorms To Visit Kellogg House

Mrs. Turnipseed Will Look Over Iowa Plan

Late Statistics Show Demand for Introduction of Emerald Low-Cost Proposal

Oregon will learn how the University of Iowa is fighting high living costs. Mrs. Genevieve Turnipseed, director of dormitories, will stop at Iowa City and visit Kellogg house, cooperative living organization, on her return trip, it was learned from authoritative sources yesterday.

Details of the operation of Kellogg house were published in Wednesday's issue of the Emerald, wherein it was revealed that 23 men were boarding at a weekly cost of $1.54 each, and securing residence facilities for a like period for $1.

Mrs. Turnipseed is now attending a convention at Minneapolis, and will visit several mid-western universities to secure information on dormitory methods and living costs. She is in charge of all living institutions operated by the state on the Eugene and Corvallis campuses.

Proof Needed Shown
Statistics published in graphic form on this page today reveal the pressure that economic conditions have exerted on University students. Declining enrollment, depleted dormitories, and a well-defined trend of students to live off the campus are the outstanding features depicted by the figures. Data for this compilation were provided by the statistical division.

Boarding charges made by private householders off the campus run from $10 to $20, an Emerald survey yesterday revealed. Students who dine in campus restaurants pay an average of $18.80 per month, another investigation brought to light. This compares with a charge of somewhat over $6.00 paid by University of Iowa students living in Kellogg house.

Membership Limited
In a statement issued yesterday, Dick Neuberger, editor of the Emerald, declared that the new plan was intended only for students who could not possibly meet existing costs. "The proposal," he said, "is particularly feasible in view of the fact that food costs are now so low."

"With the men's dormitory only 34.2 per cent full, and the women's dormitory being utilized only 38 per cent of capacity, extensive facilities are lying idle that might well be turned into living quarters for hard-pressed students. We have found students spending but $3.25 a month for food paying rents of $7 and $8. Adoption of the Emerald plan, using University facilities, would reduce the rent charges and provide nutritious, balanced menus."

No Need of Scrip, Decision of Co-op Store Executives

Board Vetoes Plan for Issuance of Campus Fiat Money; Banks Re-Open

The Co-op store board decided yesterday that it would not be necessary for the store to issue any form of "scrip" for the relief of students whose remittances are in the form of checks on out-of-town banks and who might consequently be without funds during the three-day bank "holiday."

During the morning hours, a number of excited students sought to have checks cashed at the store, Marion McClain, manager, McClain, manager, reported but as the day wore on the realization was reached that the situation was not so severe as at first feared. The board felt that McClain would be wiser to wait until it becomes apparent that emergency measures are necessary before becoming involved in the complicated business of issuing scrip for campus use.

The First National and United States National banks of Eugene opened their doors at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, announced their expectation of staying open for the

Students Are Cigaretteless, Penniless, as Banks Close

By PIERPONT CASH
The unexpected bank holiday caught a penniless, cigaretteless campus on its uppers and played havoc with the social engagements for the week-end. Co-eds reported heavy cancellation of dates with many many offers and few taken. Amusements suffered most heavily, the theatres yesterday afternoon already feeling the curtailed attendance.

Heavy holding of out-of-town checks left many students with irredeemable wealth, but little cash. By actual tabulation, one fraternity reported checks held by members in excess of $200 and a total cash resource of less than $5.00. Cigarettes became a major problem with many formerly solvent students and campus eating places were importuned for short time credits.

Committee Acts To Raise School Appropriations

SALEM, Ore., March 2—(Special)—Legislative action to stabilize board of higher education appropriations was promised Thursday by the house taxation and revenue committee.

The committee, according to Chairman McCormack of Lane, at first attempted to provide for allotment of sales tax revenues to higher education in the sales tax bill.

This plan was abandoned, however, the committee deciding to make that provision in some other measure.

Representatives of the board, fearing a reduction in real property values, asked for revenue from the sales tax to make up any discrepancy in the millage appropriations.

Coaching Group Will Be Formed By Old Students

A new scheme in the tutoring field is to be tried out for the first time on the Oregon campus this term by a group of graduate students known under the name of the University Coaching Service.

In this system regular evening classes in most of the elementary underclass subjects will be held preceding and during examination week. Work in these subjects will include a complete outline of the course to the end of the term and will be based on material gleaned from past examinations in that particular department.

All of these seminars will be under the leadership of graduates of recognized ability who have taken advanced work in the courses which they will give and who have a firm foundation in the fundamentals of the subject.

Besides the regularly scheduled evening classes, for which a calendar will be announced next week, any student or group of students who wishes drill in some

University Band To Give Concert At Igloo Sunday

John Stehn Selects Special Pieces For Program; "William Tell" Overture One of Best

The first and second divisions of the University concert band, playing together as a 70-piece ensemble for the first time at McCArthur court next Sunday afternoon, will have a program worthy of a big band. No small band could do justice to the "William Tell" overture which Director John H. Stehn has programmed for the occasion.

Suppe's overture, "Morning, Noon, and Night in Vienna" is another headline on Sunday's program. Moszkowski's Spanish dances Nos. 1, 4, and 5, and the "La Serenata" waltzes by D'Arcy Jaxone will put a good deal of rhythmic pattern into the program. Each of the Spanish dances has a distinct style, and the Italian waltz is quicker and more "piquant" (adjective copyrighted by John Stehn) than the German type of waltz.

The program will open with Graculla's march, "Washington Greys," which Stehn describes as "an old stand-by" of military marches. A very different type of march, the "Triumphal March," from Verdi's "Aida," will conclude the program. This number is one of the few operatic compositions particularly well suited for performance by a band.

Sunday's program will be the sixth of the series of 12 concerts sponsored by the Associated Students, and will be the last until spring term. It is to be free to students and the public.

CONVINCING PROOF

of the need of the OREGON DAILY EMERALD PLAN of reduced living cost for hard-pressed students

The need for a low cost living plan for hard-pressed students is vividly pictured in the following series of graphs which trace the decline of enrollment, the depletion of dormitories, and the increase in students living outside of regular organizations. Statistics are compiled from figures issued by the registrar's office which are based on "membership" rather than actual residence conditions.

ASUO Meeting Null And Void; Only 277 There

Third Attempt Will Be Made Next Term

RAIN STOPS CROWD

500 Quorum Necessary To Make Gathering Official, Says Constitution

Because there was only about half the necessary number of students present to constitute a quorum, yesterday's A. S. U. O. meeting at the music auditorium was ruled unofficial, thus making it necessary to defer action on the proposed constitutional amendments until next term. It was the second student body meeting within a week to be declared null and void. One held last Friday was ruled illegal by the judiciary committee because required notices were neglected.

An attendance of 500 was necessary to make yesterday's meeting official. This is required by the A. S. U. O. constitution. A count indicated that 277, slightly more than half the number necessary for a quorum were present. The tally was requested by Stephen Kahn. Those in attendance did not fill the auditorium, which holds approximately 480, thereby making it evident that a quorum was not on hand, even before the count was taken.

'Rain, Rain, Go Away!'

Those in charge and other parties ventured the opinion that the rain storm which swept the campus shortly after mid-day contributed to the absence of a quorum. A big brute of a rain flurry boomed up out of the south about 12:45 and even delayed attendance at classes for a time.

Following the session, Bob Hall, student body president, announced that a third meeting for the purpose of reading the amendments

Saturday—Oregon vs. Oregon State, Idaho vs. Washington State.

By BILL EBERHART

Now that the referee situation has been cleared up, Coach Bill Reinhart's team will take the floor at Corvallis in a peak stage of readiness to do battle against the league-leading Oregon Staters. Meanwhile, Reinhart has been carrying on hard workouts all week in preparation for the last series of the season. Practice last night was slightly shorter than usual, but none the less severe. The new offense was functioning better than at any time this week and should provide the Beavers with plenty of trouble.

The Time for Action!

Remaining in last place in the northern division, Oregon has nothing to lose tonight or nothing to gain as far as conference standings go. The nearest team to Oregon is Idaho, and they are five victories ahead of the lowly Webfoots. The Gillmen, on the other hand, are out ahead in the race for the northern pennant and have everything to lose.

The Oregon team would rather see the Beavers win the championship than second-place Washington, title-winners for the last five years, but tradition decrees that every Webfoot-Beaver tilt shall be close and hard-fought, and a Rein-

Hardison Chosen New Secretary of Y.W.C.A.

Marygolde Hardison, sophomore, took the position of secretary on the executive cabinet of Y. W. C. A. yesterday, in another day of close competition. The previous election ended a tie last Wednesday between Miss Hardison and Elizabeth Bendstrup. Voting was not as heavy as the day before, but members showed interest in breaking the tie which was the surprise event of Wednesday's elections, when Helen Binford was chosen president of the Y. W. for the coming year.

Walsh One of Nation's Finest Legislators, Says Economist

"One of the finest men that ever held public office," was the tribute paid by Dr. Calvin Crumbaker, professor of economics, to Senator Thomas J. Walsh, who died yesterday before taking over his post as attorney-general for the Roosevelt administration. "As I knew him," stated Dr. Crumbaker, "he was outstanding in every respect, clean in body and mind and a determined worker. During his early senatorial days he was quite picturesque with a long Texas ranger mustache and western manners. These characteristics he carried with him to the United States senate. His rise was extremely gradual yet almost unstopable. Never a 'pork barrel' legislator but a representative of the American people, he fought his way slowly to one of the coveted positions in the land. His stirring

Red books or some other record of the pre-medical courses taken should be brought to the conference.

At 1 o'clock Monday in room 105 McClure hall, Dr. Meyers will address all pre-medical students on "Modern Developments in Medical Education."

Oregon Wins Argument On Official For Tilt

Oregon State Officials Agree To Oregon's Terms; New Official Suits Reinhart

By BRUCE HAMBY (Emerald Sports Editor)

If Emil Piluso is at Corvallis tonight he will be there only as a spectator. Oregon State officials finally decided to come around to Oregon's way of thinking late last night and obtained Jimmy Mitchell of Spokane to referee the Beaver-Webfoot clashes. So the final games will be played, after a week of dispute had made cancellation and forfeiture imminent.

The decision was reached only after Oregon athletic powers, namely Hugh Rosson, Bill Reinhart and the A. S. U. O. executive council had announced that they intended to stand firmly behind their edict that the Webfoot squad would not play if Piluso was referee.

Merit Counts—They Say!
Slats Gill, Oregon State coach, and Carl Lodell, director of athletics, announced last night after their conference that Oregon State would rather win the championship by merit, rather than by forfeiture through cancellation of the game by Oregon.

Mitchell is a well-known referee in eastern Oregon and Washington. He is very popular there, according to athletic followers here, and is considered an excellent official.

Emil Popular at O. S. C.

Until last night Oregon State officials had been insistent that Piluso officiate tonight's contest. They had agreed to substitute any other man on the following night, but would not agree to the removal of Piluso, who is a great favorite with both the Oregon State student body and team.

Reinhart stated last night that he considered Mitchell a fine referee and was glad to see Oregon State come to an agreement. Mitchell, he informed the Emerald, has officiated in a number of

Business Man Speaks Before Law Students

Mr. John Bell, president of the Lane County Abstract company, yesterday at 1:30 p. m. spoke before the law school student body and faculty on the "Title Recording System." In his talk Mr. Bell explained the methods of recording the titles of real property in Oregon and pointed out the weaknesses of the Torrens system.

Mr. Bell, who is a graduate of the Oregon law school and a member of Phi Delta Phi, legal honorary society, will speak again today at 1:30 p. m. This address will be on "Abstracting Problems."
