700 Students Expected To Attend First Contest To Be Held On Oregon Campus

By ED STANLEY
Bands and approximately 700 students from high schools of all parts of the state will meet on the University of Oregon campus April 14 and 15, for the tenth annual Oregon State high school band contest to determine the best organization in each of three classes. This was announced yesterday by John H. Stehn, director of the University band and chairman of the event.

During the past nine years the contest has been held annually at Oregon State college, but last year the state board of higher education ruled that the contest should be alternated between the two campuses.

To Be Three Groups

The high schools will compete in three classes. Class A will include all high schools over 600 enrollment, class B those from 400 to 600 and class C those schools under 400. Any band organized less than one year may step down one class. With 20 bands segregated in the various classes, University students, faculty members, and Eugene townspeople will have an opportunity to hear some of the finest high school bands in the state.

Commenting on the contest Stehn said, "I think the contest will be a wonderful thing to entertain such a large group of young people and will give the University students, faculty, and townspeople an opportunity to hear and see competitive musical talent."

Hubert Totton, who has been appointed as student chairman of the affair, has selected chairman and committeemen who will assist in making preparations for the contest. Following are the appointments: registration committee: Norval Hamilton, chairman, Stanford Smith, John McConnell.

The Weather

Temperature dropped to 32 degrees as the minimum yesterday morning, but warm weather tempered by a gentle breeze prevailed throughout the day. Although freezing temperature was reached last night, warmer weather is predicted for today.

Daily forecast: Fairer and warmer today with gentle changeable winds offshore.

Local statistics: Minimum temperature yesterday, 32 degrees. Willamette river, 3 feet. Wind from north.

Three Former Art Students Featured in 'Spring Salon'

By CYNTHIA LILJEQVIST
What purports to be the first annual "spring salon" opens Wednesday in the gallery of the Art building.

Of exceptional interest are the contributions of three former students of the University of Oregon: Mary Kirkwood, Lynn Forrest, and Ben K. Weatherwax.

The oils and water colors of Mary Kirkwood are large, dominating and carefully designed. Her color is varied to suit the different motives and on the whole the drawings are powerful and moving. The older students who have known and worked with Miss Kirkwood are delighted to mark her progress and the sincerity with which she has undertaken her work. Mary Kirkwood is now head of the department of drawing and painting at the University of Idaho. She took her M.F.A. degree under the late Michael Mueller in 1931.

Free Shows for Students

College men and co-eds are stepping out to their dates as usual at Wittenberg university, since students of the Ohio college devised a series of free entertainments for the penniless members of the student body, to prevent "dateless nights."

Dateless Nights of Wittenberg Co-eds and Swains at an End

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, April 4.—(AP)—No more do lonely co-eds at Wittenberg college gaze forlornly from their windows on "date nights" wondering whether to spend the evening thumbing through a magazine or playing solitaire.

And no more do campus swains, on those same nights, mournfully wander alone, unable to do anything about it because of an epidemic of empty pockets.

Student body cards must be presented in order to vote. The candidates for the various offices are as follows: president, Jean Failing; vice-president, Virginia Hartje and Carolyn Card; secretary, Virginia Howard and Marie Saccomanno; treasurer, Josephine Waffle and Peggy McKie; sergeant-at-arms, Betty Gearhart and Roberta Moody; reporter, Ann-Reed Burns and Henriette Horak.

Phi Chi Theta Will Give Dessert Party April 11

Plans for a dessert party to be held Tuesday, April 11, were made by Phi Chi Theta, women's commerce honorary, at a meeting held in room 106, Commerce building, today. The Phi Beta Phi sorority is being considered as a place where the party will be held.

The Phi Mu trio will entertain during the evening, according to arrangements made by Miss Maryellen Bradford, '33, president of the Phi Chi Theta.

Betty Betkel with Hilda Fries and Greeta Kirkpatrick are to make arrangements for refreshments for the party. Invitations to the party will be given out by Francis Bert and Ardith Hutichen-son.

F. S. Dunn To Address Lorane P.-T. A. Meet

Frederic S. Dunn, professor of Latin, has been invited by the Parent-Teacher association of Lorane to address that group tomorrow evening on the subject of "A Trip Through Ancient Rome."

Professor Dunn has been an active speaker at Parent-Teacher meetings in the county during the past year, and his talks on ancient Greece and Rome have been of interest to his audiences.

A. W. S. Carnival Will Be Held at Igloo Saturday

Money Obtained From Dancing, Concessions To Be Placed In Women's Loan Fund

Get out those easy-going shoes, and start saving up your shekels for the A. W. S. annual all-campus carnival, to be held next Saturday night, April 8, at the Igloo.

The orchestra has been selected—so practice up on that latest step and be ready to trip the light fantastic to Sherwood Burr's six-piece music-makers, the well known Campa Shoppe favorites. Bill Seavers, "knock-em-down" boy, will sing, the rest of the orchestra will entertain with short features—so get to work, fellows, and surprise the women at the carnival with that double side turn. There will be jitney dancing, tickets five cents, each good for one dance.

And then, if by chance you don't dance, save those shekels anyway—you can use those five cent tickets to play roulette and craps, shoot at a target range, buy hot dogs and soda pop, and do a dozen other things in the 17 booths which will be placed around the sides of the Igloo, each booth having a different sort of concession.

If your heart longs for one of the rather slapstick sideshows of the childhood fair, there is one booth in which, if the player tosses a

Committee To Select Heads Of Publication

Petitions Must Be Brief As Possible

APRIL 10 DEADLINE

Editorial Ideas, Financial Needs, General Policy, Basis of Selection

The publications committee of the University will consider candidates for the editor of the Emerald for next year on Tuesday. The business manager of the campus daily and the editor and manager of the Oregon also will be selected.

At a special meeting yesterday the committee set midnight of April 10 as the final hour on which petitioners for the post may submit their statements of policy and qualifications. Members of the publications committee decided that the following points should be embodied in the petitions of those seeking the editorship of the Emerald:

Points Set Forth

1. Past experience.
2. Financial needs of individual.
3. Statement of general policy, regarding makeup, editorial ideas and content.

The committee went on record as not desiring any letters of recommendation and requested that the petitions be as brief and as pointed as possible. If the petitioners wish they may submit several samples of their work along with their statements.

50 New Students Sign for Spring Term's Session

Registration Passes 2000 Mark; More Than 750 Paying Fees On Installment Plan

Registration for the spring term in the University passed the 2000 mark Monday and by Monday night 2006 had enrolled. The registrar's office said that about 20 more are expected to enroll before April 15, the last day to register.

More than 50 students who were not enrolled in the University last term were among those registering.

Approximately 750 students are paying fees in installments, an increase of 200 over last term.

April 15 will not only be the last day to register, but also the last day to withdraw from courses without a passing grade.

The second installment of the fees will be due on April 22. Non-residence fees will also be due at this date. New students, who may pay in three installments, must make the final installment before May 6.

E. P. Lyon, cashier, said the fees were payable at any time previously to these dates. A 25-cent penalty is made for each day after the deadline has been passed. The installments are $20 on registration, $18 on the second installment and for new students only $10 on the third installment.

Students have been cautioned by Mr. Lyon against writing checks against banks that are opened on a restricted basis without first making sure that such checks will be paid.

Theta Sigma Phi Takes In Four New Pledges

Formal pledging for four journalism majors was held by Theta Sigma Phi, journalism honorary for women, Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Eric W. Allen.

The new pledges are Ruth McClain, Elsie Peterson, Fay Rogers, and Helen Stinger. Peggy Vest has also been elected to the honorary, but did not return to school this term.

Beer Imbibers at University Troubled Before Prohibition

By ELINOR HENRY

Out from the back door of the fraternity house comes a stealthy pair of men. The night is dark, and the moon hides in a heavy drapery of black clouds. The two gaze anxiously about to see that no late passerby sees them as they make their way cautiously with their dangerous burden to the mill race. With a muffled splash and gurgle the box slides into the racing waters. A lusty shove from the two men and the strange craft rides steadily down the stream.

A murder? A theft? Some sinister plot? Oh, no! Just a pair of campus beer imbibers in the good old days before prohibition. Or so says Dr. Henry D. Sheldon, who came to the University in 1900 when there were 24 saloons in Eugene and a student was expelled if he was seen in one of them. Beer could be carried in under various disguises, but disposing of the empty bottles was a difficult problem. The young man who first thought of the idea of placing the empty bottles in a water-tight box and floating them off downstream where they would incriminate no one is now either a famous lawyer or a famous bootlegger—no one knows, but he is probably the former. Many a man who has since won high praise was once expelled by the University of Oregon faculty after a glorious row!

And the rows were "glorious." The allegedly bibulous student was not haled before a small and responsible discipline committee. His trial was before the entire faculty—15 or 20 men, some of whom liked him, some of whom disliked him, and some of whom didn't care. It took three successive faculty meetings to convict one student. Saloon keepers refused to testify against students.

But if the faculty frowned heavily on student drinking, so did it frown on drinking among its own members.

"A lot of people who are pretty free and easy themselves think that teachers and preachers and (Continued on Page Three)

Audience Thrills To Various Songs Offered by Nash

Seventeen Numbers Are Presented In Colorful and Striking Vocal Performance

A distinguished personal appearance and a striking stage personality characterized Gifford Nash's performance last night at the music auditorium. Perhaps the most interesting of his selections was Gounod's "Serenade of Mephistopheles," from "Faust." Nash's interpretation of this song with its diabolical laugh, scorn and hate sent cold shivers down the back of the listener.

As an encore he sang "Green Eyed Dragon" by Charles, a quick little number with an absurd, but clever verse. Mr. Nash's voice resonant and strong, formally called "basso cantante" is, in common language, a deep mellow baritone.

Seventeen numbers, greatly varied, a small part of Mr. Nash's repertoire made up the program. The old familiar melody, "Drink to Me Only" was particularly lovely. Hahn's "L'Heure Exquise," one of a group of three French numbers, is well described by its title, for it is filled with exquisite soft high notes.

Brahm's stormy "Verrath," sung with power and enthusiasm by Mr. Nash was a direct contrast to the soft dreamy "Traume" by Wagner. Harold Ayres' performance of the accompaniments, was worthy that of a soloist. The program concluded with the brilliant and powerful "Siege of Kazan," ballad of erudite "Siege of Kazan," "Ballad from Boris Godounow," by Mousorgsky.

New German Society Organized on Campus

The first meeting of a new organization for the furtherance of interest in German on the campus was held last Thursday evening, March 30, at the Westminster house. Bob Brown talked on the origination and purposes of the club, and the constitution was read and approved. Nominations for officers were held, and those proposed for president were Bob Brown and Max McKinney. The club will meet every two weeks and Dr. Pollard will be advisor. The name of the society is yet to be decided.

The meeting was finished by selections on the piano and violin by Mr. Halbert and Miss Jane Kanzler. Dr. Pollard stated, "The club will supply a great need on the campus for such an organization and it is hoped that it will stimulate interest in contemporary Germany and its life and language."

Dr. Barry Cerf of Reed Calls Modern Education 'Travesty'

PORTLAND, April 4.—(Special)—In no uncertain terms, Dr. Barry Cerf of Reed college recently told the Portland branch of the American Association of University Women that education in this country is a "travesty."

"Democracy as applied to education," declared Dr. Cerf, "should mean equality of opportunity for those capable of profiting by it. But we have made of our colleges country clubs, dancing halls and athletic fields. It is not the fault of education, but the fault of ourselves, the people. We hold fundamental misconceptions of what life is and what it means. There is no need to convert the educators. They have never wanted the boys and girls who are sent to them because parents don't know what to do with their children between the ages of 17 years and 21. It is the community that determines what an educational system shall be, and we get in our nation and in Oregon exactly the

U.O. Officials To Adhere To Former Rules

Previous Rules Forbid Liquor to Students

EARL BACKS RULE

Individual Fraternities Also Have Laws Against Beverage; Storekeepers Irked

By JULIAN PRESCOTT
There will be no beer in fraternity houses or halls on the Oregon campus, it became evident yesterday.

Emphatic reiteration of the University administration's stand against the use of alcoholic beverages by students was made yesterday by the student advisory committee and Virgil D. Earl, dean of men. This action was taken at meetings of the committee, of which Karl Onthank, dean of personnel administration, is chairman, and at a meeting of the interfraternity council.

The statement of the committee follows:

"In consideration of the fact that beer of 3.2 per cent alcoholic content will be legally available after April 6, 1933, it seems advisable for the University of Oregon to reaffirm its position in regard to alcoholic beverages. The University of Oregon's present policy pertaining to alcoholic beverages will continue in full force."

No Liquor for Pupils

The administration has for many years expressed a strong stand against the use of liquor by students, it was explained by Dean Earl. This policy is understood to date back to the first days of the University, long before the state went dry.

"I am personally opposed to the use of liquor by students while at the University," Dean Earl said in a statement on his own views.

A check of the majority of fraternities showed that they had either national or local rules against the use of liquor in the houses and that no action had been taken in view of the legalized character of 3.2 per cent beer. Several houses have sent queries to their national officers to ascertain whether any change has been made in national rules. They have received no replies as yet.

Houses Have Own Laws

This would indicate that the policy of practically all houses of banning the use of liquor in the house will continue in force. It was not thought likely by leaders of the interfraternity council that any house would except the newly legalized beer from the ban.

All sororities on the campus also have strict regulations as to the use of liquor by any of their members. At present a member is liable to "unpinning" by practically all groups if she shows evidences of having been drinking intoxicating beverages.

No Moves as Yet

No immediate action against the establishment of a "university dis-

Washington Cuts $800,000 from Education Budget

SEATTLE, Wash., April 4.—(Special)—The board of regents of the University of Washington yesterday slashed more than $800,000 from the school budget, thereby greatly reducing salaries and operating expenses.

Lewis B. Schwellenbach, president of the board, said that approximately $620,000 had been cut from faculty salaries and about $180,000 from operating expenses. No personnel will be eliminated. The average salary of the deans will be $400 and the professors $350. Former salaries ranged from $400 to $730 for deans and from $300 to $525 for professors. Employees drawing less than $600 a year will not be affected.

The regents will confer today with University heads to figure out applications of the salary cuts.

Gap Is Necessary
Between high school and college, there should be a complete break, he said. But college is merely a continuation of high school—the same methods, the same mistakes, the same virtues, where there should be a new atmosphere and new tools used in a new manner.

"Except for our law, medical and technical schools," Dr. Cerf said, (Continued on Page Three)
