

Two Appointees To State Board Will Be Voted On

Senate Group Expected To Okeh Meier's Men

BRAND, McLEOD UP

Renowned "300,000 Slash" for University Discredited by Administration

The interim committee of the state senate is scheduled to meet at Salem this Saturday to pass upon Governor Meier's recent appointees to the state board of higher education—George McLeod of Portland and Charles Brand of Roseburg. Both men have been received favorably, both by the state's citizenry and press, and it is expected that the senate committee will not hesitate to confirm their appointment.

Should Brand and McLeod be approved, they will attend the next board meeting as regular members. This probably will be held next week or the week following. Other members expected to attend are C. L. Starr, chairman; E. C. Sammons, chairman of the finance committee; Fred C. Callister, Herman Oliver, C. C. Colt, and B. F. Irvine. The only member not anticipated is Mrs. Cornelia Marvin Pierce, now in Washington, D. C. However, she is expected to return for the May meeting, at which time staffs will be named for the 1933-34 school year.

Guard Statements Denied

Statements in the Eugene Register-Guard that the "University faculty had been asked by the chancellor to make additional cuts of close to $300,000," were declared without foundation in a statement issued from the University administration Saturday. The official statement, as printed in the Guard, follows:

"Press reports stating that the University has been asked to make additional cuts of close to $300,000 are without foundation and do not represent the facts. University officials said today.

"No definite cuts, either in total sums or in percentages, have been allotted to any institution, it was pointed out by the University executive office. Budgets for all institutions, divisions, departments and activities have been submitted under the same general orders to cut to rock bottom to meet the present emergency. These budgets which were prepared by department heads, deans and directors, have been summarized and will be submitted to the state board of (Continued on Page Three)

Amos Burg, Noted Explorer, Tells of Travels Over Globe

By HENRIETTE HORAK
(Editor's note: This is a continuation of an interview with Amos Burg, noted explorer and adventurer; the first part appeared in Saturday's Emerald.)

"... Some roads lead men homeward, but my roads leads me forth." These are the words of a celebrated poet, written many years ago, but they were written for men who have the blue blood of adventure in their veins—men like Amos Burg. The deepest wilds of the jungle, the hottest islands of the tropics where life is more like a nightmare than a dream and death lurks around every corner, the blackest and the bluest waters of the sea—Amos Burg has seen them—explored them, and they thrill him.

"In 1931," said Mr. Burg, "I was microscopic cameraman for William Beebe, in Bermuda, under the department of tropical research for the New York Zoological society. We called Beebe 'Director' and although he is 55 years old, he beat the members of the expedition in deck tennis through the summer.

"He is about the first and only explorer to take women into the field as assistants, but the expeditions as a rule do not entail hardships of desert and jungle. Beebe's method is to take a patch of jungle of ocean and study it over a course of years. He has done this in South American waters and in the Atlantic.

"He rises at 5 in the morning, eats at 6, starts working at 6:30, and keeps this up until midnight after which he does his reading. He writes during the morning. I have seen him turn out an article

'I'll Be at the Mass Meeting,' Says Mrs. W.M. Pierce

THE Sunday Oregonian ran a story saying that Mrs. Cornelia Marvin Pierce did not contemplate resigning her post on the Oregon state board of higher education. It was from Washington, D. C., where Mrs. Pierce is with her husband, Congressman Walter M. Pierce of Oregon.

Mrs. Pierce, only woman member of the board, said she would be in the capital only a short time and would return to Oregon as soon as congress adjourned. "I will attend the next meeting of the board in May," Mrs. Pierce declared. "I haven't missed any yet."

800 Persons See Kwamas Pledged At Formal Dance

19 Freshmen Women Are Honored; Dean Schwering, Mrs. Macduff Preside

Nearly 800 persons witnessed the annual Kwama pledging which was the highlight of the formal Mortar Board ball Saturday evening. The ball, held at the Eugene hotel, brought to an end the Senior Leap week festivities.

Nineteen freshmen women were tapped by active Kwamas during the dance, and were led through the ballroom to the orchestra stand through an aisle formed by members of Skull and Daggers, sophomore men's honorary. Dean Hazel Prutsman Schwering, Mrs. Alice B. Macduff, assistant dean of women; and Pearl Base, president of Kwama, led the procession, and pinned the pledge ribbons on the new members.

Those elected by the honorary to carry on its activities next year follow:

Gladys McMillen and Adele Sheehy, Alpha Phi; Ann-Reed Burns, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Peggy Chessman, Kappa Alpha Theta; Mary Jane Jenkins and Eleanor Elide, Chi Omega; Betty Olenmiller, Phi Mu; Roberta Moody, Gamma Phi Beta; Betty Gearhart, Delta Delta Delta; Henriette Horak, independent; Virginia Younie and Ruth Mae Chilcote, Alpha Chi Omega; Elizabeth Rix, Alpha Xi Delta; Evelyn Hays, Kappa Delta; Ebba Wicks, Susan Campbell hall; Ruth Eaton and Virginia Proctor, Delta Gamma; Eleanor Norblad, Pi Beta Phi; Elma Giles, Sigma Kappa.

'Potluck' Supper To Honor Women

The upperclass commission cabinet of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet will be hosts to the women of the campus at a "Seabeck" potluck supper at the "Y" bungalow tonight. All girls are invited to attend the dinner and the program which will follow it.

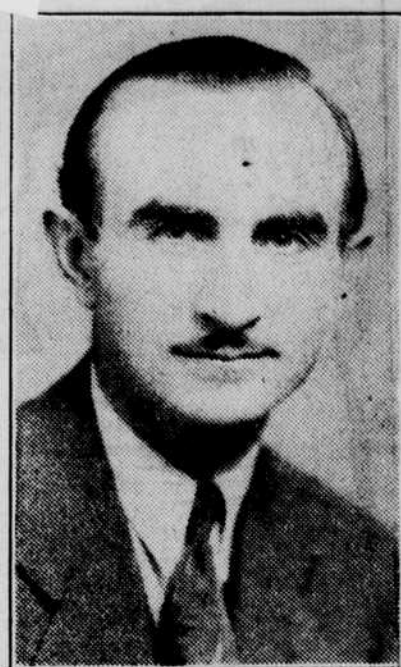

Special arrangements have been made with living organizations from which six or more girls will come. Town girls who are interested in the dinner should sign the list which is posted on the Y. W. C. A. bulletin board.

The program has been arranged by Eleanor Wharton. Her assistants have been Gwen Elsemore, music; Ebba Wicks, art; and Ruth Eaton, arrangements. Numbers on the program will be a dramatic prelude by Elizabeth Scruggs; "Seabeck Itself," Gertrude Hickson; "Seabeck, Past and Future," Lois Greenwood and Mary Snider; and "Stunt Night," a skit directed by Mary Klemm.

Frances Rothwell has been general chairman for the supper, being assisted by Eva Burkhalter, Ruth Martin, Elma Giles, June Hansen, and Harriette Holbrook.

Cap, Gown Time Extended
Time has been extended for a few days in order that those who were unable or neglected to order their caps, gowns, and announcements for commencement last week, may have an opportunity to do so. Eighty per cent of the orders are now in and the other 20 per cent of the seniors should tend to the matter as soon as is possible.

Girl Reserves Want Counsellors for Camp

The office of the dean of women has received a letter from Grace Lowers, Girl Reserve secretary, announcing the recruiting of volunteer counsellors for the organization's summer camp at Rock Creek.

The letter said that counsellors in music and swimming were especially sought. More information may be obtained by calling at the dean of women's office.

W. D. Smith Returns From Mining Congress

Dr. Warren D. Smith, professor of geography at this University, has just returned from Medford, where he attended a meeting of the Oregon mining congress.

The professor, who is vice-president of the western section of the congress, lectured on rocks and minerals in relation to ore deposits.

Emerald Publicity 'Not Bad', Asserts Finest Reporter

When Lincoln Steffens, journalist and author, left the campus, he asked Eric W. Allen, dean of the school of journalism, to send him clippings of all articles that were published about him. This Dean Allen did, saying that he hoped Steffens would not consider them too bad, as they were not extraordinarily brilliant in covering his presence while at the University.

In reply to Dean Allen's letter, Steffens wrote, "No, don't call those reports poor. I get a lot out of them. They are not complete, of course. How could they be, when I pack my talks so full? I always have the sense that I'll not be recalled to any place where I've spoken, so I pour in all I can. And it's too much to report in a page. Then, I say so much with gestures, facial expressions, and acting, that even a verbatim report is no good. I think the reporters did well to pick out a few ideas to make clear. What interests me is to see what they chose, what hit them as central. No, I like those reports, and the editorials. I'd like to see any others that come later. Such impressions will help me to tell my story better. My compliments, if you please, to the commentators."

Kerr and Morris To Speak to C. E. State Convention

Students Urged To Help House Visiting Endeavors This Week-end

Chancellor W. J. Kerr and Dr. Victor P. Morris are among the featured speakers at the Oregon state Christian Endeavor convention, to be held in Eugene this week-end. The opening session will begin Thursday evening at 7:30 in the convention auditorium at the First Christian church on Eleventh and Oak.

Campus organizations will play host to a hundred or more of the thousand or more Christian Endeavorers coming from all parts of the state. All women's houses have promised to take at least two women, several five or more. Twelve men will be guests for "bed and breakfast" at the men's dormitory. Arrangements have not yet been made with the fraternities, but it is expected by Mrs. R. M. Day, chairman of the housing committee, that the men's houses will also cooperate.

Every student who is expecting some friend to room with him is urged to telephone Mrs. Day at 423W tonight after 7 o'clock. Otherwise the friend may be assigned some other place to stay, either disappointing the would-be host or preventing some other delegate from having a place to stay. Women may notify the dean of women's office of their hospitality plans.

The convention delegates will be guests of the University at the baseball game Friday afternoon at 3:30 between Oregon and Columbia university of Portland. Among the sightseeing trips being arranged for the visitors is a tour of the campus.

W. E. Miner Rites Held Yesterday

Funeral services for Wilbur E. Miner, well-known Eugene capitalist who, with his brother, H. T. Miner, recently donated the highest building in Eugene to the University of Oregon, were held yesterday afternoon at 2 in the Veatch chapel. Mr. Miner died Thursday night.

Rev. Clay E. Palmer of the Congregational church officiated at the service. Pallbearers were Arthur Quakenbush, Hugh H. Earle, L. L. Ray, Spencer I. Collins, A. L. Williamson, and Fred Lindsey. Mr. Miner was buried at Rest Haven Memorial park, beside his wife, who died about 18 months ago.

Mr. Miner is survived by two brothers, H. T. and H. P. Miner, and a sister, Sarah Huntington Miner. He was born in 1859 in Wisconsin, and had lived in Eugene since 1923. Recently he and his brother gave the W. E. Miner building in trust to the University for establishment of a chair of teaching and research in insurance and real estate in the school of business administration.

Notices of Preliminary Examinations Sent Out

Notification of preliminary examinations for degrees and blanks were sent to departments for 25 students who are to have the examinations this term by the graduate school office yesterday.

The majority of the students take these examinations during the winter term, 84 notices being sent out last term.

Hitchcock Not Formally Entered for Post

GIVE JUDICIAL VIEW

ASUO Head Group Said Outside Bounds in Disqualifying One Candidate

The action of the executive council in disqualifying Parks Hitchcock for the position of editor of the Oregana was without "binding force or effect," according to announcement yesterday by the judiciary committee, consisting of Wayne L. Morse, chairman; Virgil D. Earl and Earl M. Pallett. Because Hitchcock's name never was presented to the council formally by the publications committee, the judiciary group ruled that the council had no right to pass upon his qualifications for the post.

The judiciary committee also ruled that the council was within its bounds of authority when it disqualified Robert Zurcher for the Oregana position. The distinction between the cases of Zurcher and Hitchcock was that the former was recommended by the publications committee and that the latter's name never was brought before the council formally.

Two Alternatives Presented

The publications committee now either can recommend Hitchcock to the executive council or else declare Hitchcock not qualified for the position and thereby compel the council to declare the position open and ask for new applications. Another decision by the judiciary committee yesterday was that the executive council and publications committee, in accordance with the provisions of the A. S. U. O. by-laws, must pick candidates from among the original group of applicants until all the original petitioners have been judged not-qualified to hold office. Then, the committee ruled, new petitions may be called for.

The judiciary committee also stated it had the power to determine whether the executive council, whenever it rejected a candidate, did so for "good and sufficient" reasons. In Zurcher's case, the committee said the council did not act unreasonably when it disqualified him because of scholastic deficiencies.

Gilbert Against Motion

However, Hitchcock, regardless of any charges against him, was not ruled out legally because his name never was recommended by the publications committee. The fact which incited the executive council to pass a motion against Hitchcock was his presenting of a petition urging that all Southern (Continued on Page Two)

Roustabouts Held Ineligible; To Run For Offices Anyway

By JOSEPH INELIGIBLE

A slight delay loomed in the Roustabouts' plans last night. It seems that all of them are ineligible to run for office. However, Butch Morse said the following: "Don't let that worry you; we'll run anyway." Mr. Morse's remarks were translated from the original Latvian by machinery.

Here is why the boys are ineligible: Butch Morse, president, wears too fashionable clothing to be a candidate in a Democratic (?) government.

Jack Robertson, vice-president, is too full of vim, vigor and vitality.

Bruce Hamby, secretary, is too good looking.

Rose Gagnon, senior woman, has not a J. C.

Surrogate Shaneman, junior man, is anemic.

Ansalm Pozzo, senior man, is too ritzy.

Roy Gagnon, king of May, eats too much.

The above rulings were brought in by the supreme court of Skamania county after an all-night session. According to Judge Horatia H. Lawskool, the only decision arrived at after long deliberation was that regarding Morse. Some thought his clothes were too fashionable for 1890. Others said it was 1895. They compromised at 1892½.

Mr. Morse then spoke substantially as follows: "If elected, to insure popularity on the campus, I will immediately put into effect the Emerald plan for low cost of living for needy students. This is the main part of my platform. The other part is at Babbs hardware, consisting of nails, a hammer and two-by-fours and shellac (yes, with which to paint it.)"

Shamus Hamby was confined to his bed with a slight bilious attack last night. He refused to appear on the steps of his executive mansion, when a milling crowd of students jammed the street, repeating his name again and again for 1 hour and 14 minutes. "I never look my best when I'm bilious," the famous man said. Jack Robertson took his place and was bombarded with cigarettes, lip-stick, and a textbook someone happened to have.

Other members of the Roustabouts announced their new pledges last night as follows: Edward (Mark Hanna) Simpson; John (Albie Booth) Yerkovich; and Harry (the dupe) Weimar.

Jack Withrow applied for the good-will ambassadorship to Junction City on the promise he would obtain 4½ votes. Mr. Morse took the matter under advisement and upon removing it found it damaged beyond recognition. Withrow stays here.

Red (Flamo) Wilson, the celebrated eater, announced last night that Gagnon would leave Eugene today to cruise the coast of Africa in a desperate search for Cliff Potter, heroic Roustabout, who left Eugene last year to find the Ovis Poli with which the Roustabouts hoped to make their campaign a success. Potter now is lost in the Belgian Congo. It is feared that Clifford may have been consumed by cannibals, as a whole tribe is reported to have expired recently. Gagnon was sent to make the search upon the theory (Continued on Page Four)
