Nobody's Business

CLEANING OUT THE DESK
 Spring athletics in all their glory will blossom forth this week-end as both the Oregon track and baseball teams open their regular 1933 season. In addition the freshman track squad will taste its first competition against the Oregon State rooks in the annual dual relays. Johnny Londahl's frosh baseball nine will continue with practice games in anticipation of the coming rook-frosh series.

Heading the week's sport calendar, of course, are the two-game series with Columbia university Friday and Saturday on Reinhart field, and the dual relay meet with Oregon State varsity at Corvallis Saturday afternoon.

Added to the list of prizes for "firsts" on the opening day Friday afternoon is a month's pass to the Colonial theatre, offered by George Godfrey. Bill Eberhart, in charge of the food and pop concession, announced that he will give all the prize winners a bottle of pop and a hot dog free of charge. More awards will be announced later.

Bill Duniway, former editor of the Emerald, is now editing the sports page of the Morning News. Duniway replaces Bert Bates, who is now employed in Portland. Bates was perhaps the closest approach to a typical "motion picture" reporter that I have ever seen. You could always find him with a gang talking over fishing or other sport news.

Preparing for the coming state interscholastic track and field meet, Sammy Wilderman is leaving today for Portland, via every high school with outstanding track men. Sammy plans to take pictures of the best men in the valley for publicity and program purposes.

Three Oregon students will vie next Saturday as track and field coaches when Eugene, University and Springfield high schools stage a triangular meet on Hayward field. Tiny Hall is aiding in tutoring the track aspirants at the Springfield school and Wade Rutherford and Hubert Allen are assisting at University and Eugene respectively.

The University of Idaho has adopted boxing as a sport and has asked admittance to the Pacific Coast intercollegiate boxing association.

Final Trials For Webfoot Teams Today

Runners To Go to Marks At 3:30

Hayward Bemoans Lack of First Place Winners in Two Field Events

Editor's note: This is the sixth of a series of seven articles on Oregon's prospects on the track and field this spring.)

By MALCOLM BAUER
 Oregon's relay candidates will show their stuff in a series of time trials today, their last competition before meeting Oregon State's Beavers in the annual relay meet Saturday. Bill Hayward will base his final selections for the Webfoot teams on the showings made today. The trials are set to start at 3:30 sharp.

While runners are tasting competition on the cinders, aspirants for positions on the field squad will be limbering up for the University of Washington meet, the first combined track and field competition the Duck spikesters will encounter this spring.

Field Candidates Weak
 Colonel Bill will be woefully weak in field events this year, principally in fillers to score second and third places. In both the broad jump and pole vault no outstanding candidate has presented himself to bolster the emerald and yellow outfit. In the high jump only two athletes show point-winning possibilities.

Mason McCoy, who has done most of his track work in the high hurdles, has been doing surprising things in the pole vault. Never having competed in this event before, he has cleared more than 12 feet several times this spring and threatens to go higher with more experience. Bob Parke, also newly introduced to the bamboo, is also doing well in early leaps.

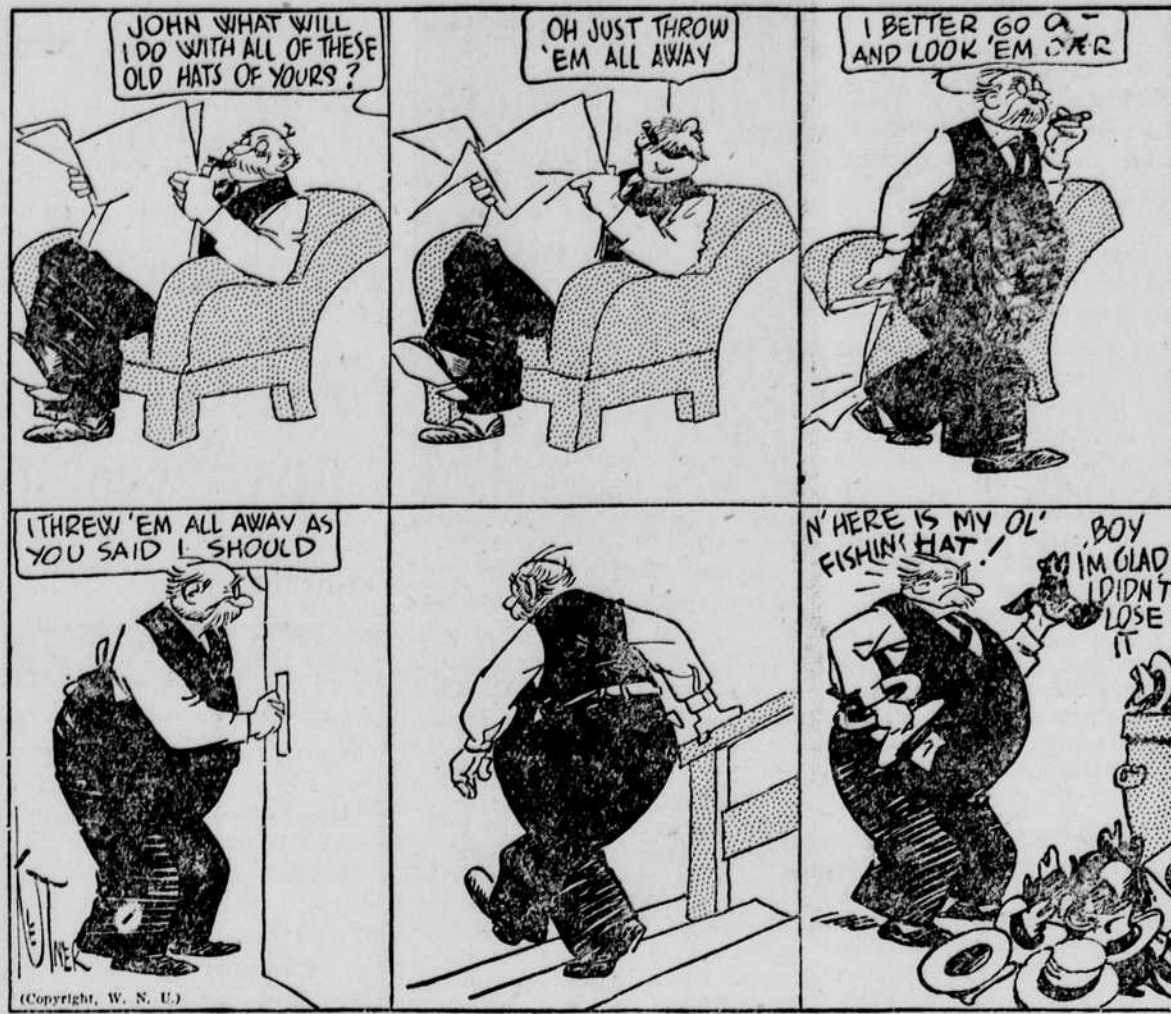

Many Broad Jumpers Out
 Candidates are numerous in the broad jump, but none are outstanding. Two sophomores, Arne Lindgren and Wayne Jamison, have been showing best in early trials. Both have been getting out around the 22-foot mark. Sherwood Burr, Art Holman, and Bill Palmer, all of whom competed in this event last year, are on hand, but may be used in other places. Bob Parke, along with his pole vaulting and javelin throwing, also takes a hand at the broad jump, but he may specialize in the former two events or be shifted to the sprints.

The high jump, with the exception of the weight events, is the one bright spot on the Webfoot field. Both Fred Nowland and Bill Palmer, the former a sophomore, have been showing good form, and have both cleared the bar at 6 feet in early meets. Nowland's long legs may carry him to greater heights, while the "Iron Horse," in his last year of competition is out to top the Northwest.

Wild turkeys raised in Missouri parks during 1932 had a value of $26,000.

Phi Delt, Omega Go Into Softball Finals With Wins

Hall Boys Trounce Fiji Sluggers; Gray Barn Nine urns Back Sigma Chis

Mickey Vail and Ferd Fletcher hooked up in a pitching duel in their bracket in the semi-finals of the donut softball tourney yesterday afternoon, but the Sigma Chi defense cracked at important moments to give Phi Delta Theta a 4 to 3 victory. Fletcher blanked the Sigma Chi nine until the seventh inning when four consecutive singles brought in three runs. Pete Buck, Phi Delt outfielder, proved to be the hitting star in this contest with three safe raps out of a like number of times at bat.

Omega hall earned the right to play Phi Delta Theta for the championship of the softball league when they eked out a 13 to 12 victory over Phi Gamma Delta. The hall nine shelled Bob Johnson, star pitcher of the Fijis for three runs in the last half of the seventh to pull the picture out of fire.

Novel Golf Match Set for Sunday

A novel type of golf tournament will be held next Sunday on the Laurelwood course, according to Wade Rutherford, graduate student in physical education department, who is arranging meets for the south Eugene links. The affair will be an "inch" tourney.

For every stroke of an entrant's handicap, he may move his ball one inch on the green or six inches on the fairway. Each move of either one or six inches will take one stroke off the handicap. Balls must be played from where they lie.

A flag tourney last week was won by W. E. Naylor. Dr. R. L. Seashore and Rutherford tied for second place.

One impartial critic who watched Dizzy Dean of the Cardinals perform in Florida declared: "He's another Lefty Grove, take it from me. Any club that beats him this year will be plain lucky."

Ducks Ready For Tilts With Cliff Dwellers

Bill Reinhart Experiments With Material

Bud Van Dine May Be Moved to Pitching Staff; Changes Highly Problematical

By BOB RIDDLE
 Experiments are taking place on Reinhart field lately, with Coach Bill Reinhart shifting his players about like a game of chess. Since the week-end games with the Eugene Townies the Webfoot mentor has been determined to locate his greatest strength both at bat and on the field.

The loss of the two games to the Townies means not a thing so far as the prowess of the Duck nine is concerned. In the first place, the Eugene semi-pros were playing behind the hurling of one of the Webfoots' best pitchers, Ed Charles.

Van Dine Now a Hurler
 The fact that the series was the first the Webfoots have participated in this season must not be forgotten either. Thus the Townie series is a forgotten subject and the Webfoots now prepare themselves for the coming two games with Columbia university, Friday and Saturday.

One change that Reinhart is experimenting with at present is the switching of Bud Van Dine, veteran outfielder to the pitching department. Van Dine's presence should bolster the hurling crew considerably.

In yesterday's drill "Butch" (Senator) Morse, the stalwart football end, was tried behind the plate instead of in the outfield. This is also an entirely new assignment for Morse.

Plenty of Pitchers
 If Van Dine is to be included in the pitching department, Reinhart will have a corps numbering eight men. "Ike" Donin and Ed Charles are the only two left-hander. The remainder of the list includes: Ron Gemmell, Burt Carmichael, Carl Inman, all right-handers. Port-side men are: Don Weed and Hartley Kneeland.

Catchers aplenty answered the call at the first of the season. With "Duke" Shaneman holding down first string, the remaining aspirants are "Blacky" Whittaker and Homer Goulet. Chuck Hoag will be handy to help out in this department if needed.

Another move that is pending may place "Gyp" Chatterton back at his old position at second base. Chatterton has been covering the shortstop territory, but Johnny Richardson or Fred Sears may take over that assignment.

Seven in Infirmary
 Seven students are now confined to the University infirmary following the release of Ralph Mason. They are Alice Hesler, Marie Saccomanno, Alexander Schneider, Harry McCullum, Charles McCormack, Rodney Butler, and Ralph Mutton.

Ghormley Calls For Soph Court Managers Today

FRESHMEN interested in obtaining a position as sophomore basketball managers next year are asked to report to Jim Ghormley tonight at 7:30 at McArthur court. They will be required to attend spring practice sessions held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights the remainder of this term. All sophomore managers will be chosen from this group, Ghormley stated.

Women's Sports

By ROBERTA MOODY
 A combined track meet between sophomore and senior physical education majors will be held today at 4 in Gerlinger hall.

Louise Beers is in charge. The committee assisting consists of Dorothy Huggins, Elizabeth Hahn, Marion Moorehouse, Evelyn Hayes, Helen Landahl, Lucille Carsons, Rose Smith, Gwen La-Barre.

All girls who are going to the Reed College W. A. A. Play day this week-end are asked to meet in the social room at 5 Friday.

Pi Beta Phi won the tennis singles match over Hendricks hall, 6-2, 6-4. Kappa Kappa Gamma won a singles match from Beta Phi Alpha, 7-5, 6-3. Alpha Phi won the two singles matches from Gamma Phi Beta, 7-5, 6-4, and 6-4, 6-2, and also the doubles match, 6-2, 6-2.

More than 7,100 fans paid to see a double-header soccer game in St. Louis, winding up the season.

Phi Delt's Beat Betas To Win Divot Crown

Norris Trounces Fox in Deciding Match

Johnston Only One of Losers To Beat Man; Olsen Dumps Neer 3 and 2

Phi Delta Theta's quartet of intramural golfers copped the donut divot crown yesterday afternoon at the Eugene country club course when they trounced Beta Theta Pi's aggregation of niblick welders, 7 to 5. This is the second time in three years that the boys from the big gray barn have turned back the mill race crew in the donut golf finals.

Bob Morris and Louis Fox, number four men for the two teams, performed in the feature match of the day. After three matches had been completed and the point score stood at 4 1-2 all, Morris pulled through in the last nine to down Fox 3 and 2, and earn the winning margin for his team. Morris and Fox were even up on the first nine of the 18-hole match.

Don Olsen, number one man for the winners, also added 2 1-2 points to the Phi Delt's total when he trounced Dick Neer 3 and 2. Olsen played par golf on the last nine to break a midway deadlock.

Willy Johnston, in the Beta number two position, was the only man on the losing quartet to score more than his share of the three points. He trimmed Phil Mulder 3 and 2 to earn 2 1-2 counters.

Bob Neer and Jack Mulder battled on even terms for the entire 18-hole round to end in a deadlock. Mulder was 2 up on the first nine, but dropped his advantage to Neer on the way in.
