West Started It
Yes, indeed. Mae West started it, and Pert Kelton is carrying it on in "Bed of Roses" with Constance Bennett putting in her $30,000 a week's worth, only it isn't that much any more.

Example wisecrack: The two gals are released from jail. Pert speaks briefly with a truck driver, then asks Bennett to drive the truck. Bennett asks if the driver has a broken arm. "No," says Kelton, "but he wants me to help him—ah—check up on his groceries!"

"Before Dawn," mystery thriller, is the other show on the Mac big picture.

History Teachers Go Far During Summer

Two history instructors at Oregon left the local campus during the summer for the purpose of study and research.

Harold J. Noble made use of the Stanford research library, and R. C. Clark filled a teaching position at the summer session of the University of Hawaii.

Andrew Fish and J. T. Ganoe served as summer school instructors in the University.

CAMPUS GIVES VIEWS ON LOCAL TRADITION

everybody he meets the next day. Comments on open house collected yesterday give as broad a selection of campus opinion as possible in a day's chance meetings.

"I think it should be put as early in the year as possible. I don't see anything against it, and everything for it," declared George Bennett, president of the Oregon Yeomen.

"I really don't think it serves any purpose," was the adverse comment of Catherine Coleman. "I think we ought to have it. It gives the freshmen a start," remarked Frances Johnston, senior.

"I don't like it," said Bruce Hamby, more wrathful than usual, adding further remarks which were somewhat unprintable.

"I think it's quite a bit of fun if we could figure some way to spare our feet," was the opinion of Roberta Moody, A. W. S. sergeant-at-arms.

"A. W. S. is highly in favor of open house, but it must come immediately to serve its purpose," stated Jean Failing, A. W. S. president.

Dean Hazel P. Schwering said, "It's up to the girls. If they can stand that long evening, all right. I think it's keeping up our spirit of democracy and our 'hello' spirit."

"Yes . . . I think we ought to have it. . . Right away. . . Next week." This came in short, suddenly decided sentences from Helen Binford, Y. W. C. A. president.

"I have always liked open house. It gives the freshmen men and women a chance to get acquainted with each other," came the comment of Marie Saccamanno, A. W. S. secretary.

Louise Clark, daughter of R. C. Clark, head of the history department at the University of Oregon, has been granted a graduate scholarship in history at Smith college. She graduated from the University of Oregon in 1933, receiving a B. A. degree.

Former Students of Oregon Start Work in Theater

Two former students on the Oregon campus, Inez Simons and Walden Boyle, who were active in the University theater until their graduation in 1932, are at present in the East beginning their work in the theater as a profession.

Miss Simons, who participated in drama division presentations for her full four years on the campus, has just finished a summer at the Repertory Playhouse in Putney, Vermont, and now is in New York seeking further dramatic experience.

"Wally" Boyle, is now assistant stage manager for Lenore Ulric's coming production, "Her Man of Wax" was presented this summer in Pasadena, and at that time Boyle acted as stage manager.

For the past year and a half he has been working at the Pasadena Playhouse, doing everything from stage managing to playing leading roles in the student stock company.
