Our Side of It...

What About the Yeomen In Intramural Athletics? Quick Trip for Ducks

What are the University of Oregon's chances on the gridiron this spring? Last year at this time the answer would have been readily forthcoming from each and every Oregon supporter. "We'll mop 'em up," they cried. "We've got the best material on the coast." ... And yet, those same loyal boosters, when asked "What is the matter? We have the same coach, the same men (but with one more year of experience), and the same set-up in general."

Here is the answer, Oregon students, boosters, and alumni are AFRAID to be optimistic... they are afraid to back their team. They say: "Look what happened last year. We haven't got a chance." Did these broken spirited rooters ever stop to think of the handicaps that the Webfoots played under last year? ... Did they ever stop to doubt if a team of green sophomores tutored by a man serving his first year at the helm might not measure up to pre-season expectations under fire? They did not. They merely looked at the huge Stan Kostka, Alec Eagles, Chuck Bishop, and the tried regulars Temple, Mikulak, and Morgan, and, expecting the latter to know all the football for the twenty-odd newcomers on the squad, tilted back their easy chairs and talked loudly of Mr. Callison's "material."

And after all, the Webfoots did not fall down on the fireside dopesters to any great extent. They pulled through a tough slate last year with but three defeats; and yet it was not enough for the "drug store critics" who, somehow, always want a national championship.

And yet, to look at the boys in a few nights of practice this year, it seems as if even the most optimistic rooters may have a good change of seeing their dreams come true. Prink Callison has a fighting team out there this year, and they are in his own words infused with "the best spirit I have ever seen in a football team."

Without too much prejudice for the home team, I believe it can be safely said that this year Oregon's Webfoots are "going places."

Twenty-two lettermen are back under Prink's tutelage, a heavy percentage of them coming from last year's ranks of "green sophomores from which so much was expected by last fall's dopesters. These juniors should be twice as effective this year with a season of experience behind them, and much of the stage fright, lack of confidence, and nervousness under fire out of their minds.

The biggest change in the Webfoots' prospects this year is, according to some experts, to be found in Prince Gary Callison, "Prink" to you, who is going into his second season as head man at Oregon. Last fall Prink was new to conference football and conference football was new to him, especially in his new role of head coach. Last season Prink "felt his way." He had coached hundreds of football players before, but never had he been thrown so suddenly into such fast competition... into the "big time."

At times he seemed over-cautions in his straight football. At other times his well-planned plays and formations did not work out to perfection... But this year Prink Callison is a new man, he is a new coach. He is the Prink Callison of some years back who put Medford high school on the football map... who tutored Oregon's frosh to their greatest gridiron season in history... who, while still in his twenties, was elevated to head man of Oregon's grid forces. He is a new Callison because he has learned the fundamentals of this game as only real participation can teach them... he knows what to do and what not to do... he knows what to expect from his conference opponents, and he knows what not to expect... he is not afraid, now, to break loose and do things his own way with his grid teams... and, greatest of all, he has the confidence of his men. He is "Coach" to them, and they KNOW that he knows his

Callison to Take Twenty-Eight Gridsters to Gonzaga

Ducks on Way To Meet Fast Bulldog Team

Alex Eagles Giant Tackle Injures Ankle

Terjeson Likely Starter at Quarter As Bobby Parke Confined to Bed With Slight Cold

Twenty-eight men, a large traveling squad for these days, will make the trip with Prink Callison and his assistants when they en-train for Spokane today. The Webfoots are slated to leave Eugene at 5:30 this afternoon, and tomorrow will arrive in the Washington city where they meet the strong Gonzaga Bulldogs in the first real test of the year.

Alex Eagles, 207-pound letterman, who was expected to fill the shoes at the left tackle post sprained his ankle Wednesday, just a few minutes before practice closed. Bobby Parkes, regular quarterback, failed to put in appearance at the practice field last night, it was learned from Colonel Bill Hayward, Oregon trainer, that Parkes was in bed with a severe cold. Old Man Injury has already made camp at the Eugene campus.

Both Eagles and Parkes will play against Gonzaga Saturday if it comes to a showdown.

In case Eagles' ankle isn't in first-class shape for Saturday, the left tackle berth will be left wide open. Eagles was in uniform last night and took a good workout, so it's almost a certainty that he will fill the gap at the tackle post. But whether Parkes will start as signal caller is a gamble. In case Parkes is unable to start Ralph Terjeson of Pendleton, will handle the quarterbacking job. Both Parkes and Terjeson are one-year lettermen.

Last night's practice drill consisted of a few laps, "wind sprints," and dummy scrimmage. The squad will limber up tonight on Hayward field.

The following men will make the trip north:
 Centers: Hughes, Swanson, Furry.
 Guards: Frye, Cuppoletti, Clark, McCredie, Gagnon.
 Tackles: Nilsson, Nielson, Eagle, Bishop.
 Ends: Wishard, Jones, Morse, Pozzo, Simpson, McCoy.
 Quarterbacks: Parke, Terjeson.
 Halves: Temple, Pepelnjak, Gee, Michak, Milligan.
 Fulls: Mikulak, Bobbitt, Rushlow.

Sigma Delta Psi Tests to Be Given Again This Year

Sigma Delta Psi, national athletic fraternity, tests will be given again this year, according to Mr. Russell K. Cutler, president.

Any individual on the campus is eligible to take the tests, as it is not necessary to be enrolled in the regular Sigma Delta Psi class. Approximately 300 men attempted some of these events during the past three years, with 22 passing all events.

In order to become a member the following tests must be passed:
 100-yard dash—11 3-5 seconds.
 High jump—5 feet.
 16-lb. shot put—30 feet.
 Baseball throw—250 feet.
 20-foot rope climb—12 seconds.
 120-yard low hurdles—16 sec.
 Or Javelin—120 feet.
 Broad jump—17 feet.
 One-mile run—6 minutes.
 Front handspring.
 Handstand for 10 seconds.
 Fence vault—chin high.
 100-yard swim—1:45.
 Scholarship—C average.

Women's Athletics

By BETTY SHOEMAKER

The first Social Swim of the year, open to both men and women, will be held tonight at 7:30 at the woman's swimming pool. Towels and suits will be furnished. All university students are invited to attend.

In spite of unsettled weather the hockey manager reported a fine turnout for the second practice of the season yesterday afternoon. The next practice is scheduled for Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Anticipating the class games, many girls turned out for the second practice in volleyball. Any girl who has not signed up for volleyball may do so at the next practice on Monday at 5 o'clock.

Dick Neuberger, Editor Last Year, Back on Campus

Richard Lewis Neuberger, militant editor of last year's Oregon Daily Emerald, returned to the campus last night after a four months' survey of European conditions. He is planning to complete his work in social science prior to pursuing the study of law.

Since his return from abroad Neuberger made numerous addresses on the economic and political aspects of Germany under the Hitler regime. In Portland Wednesday he analyzed Teutonic trends before a large group of civic leaders, who gave a dinner in his honor at the Benson hotel.

At the Woodmen of the World building in Portland next Wednesday, Neuberger has been invited to address a women's gathering, with "The New Germany" the subject of his talk.

In New York the former editor was appointed to membership on the executive committee of the American Jewish congress, and the American Civil Liberties union.

He traveled through Africa and Europe with his uncle, Com. J. F. Neuberger, U. S. N., who headed the American delegation to the International Medical congress.

Apologies, you fastidious sports fans, the picture printed on this page yesterday, labeled as Ray Sparling, captain of U.S.C.'s football team, was not Mr. Sparling at all. It was Ford Palmer, talented end of the U.S.C. squad; and he, not Sparling, captains this year's Jones outfit. Sparling graduated last spring.

Oh, Oh, Another Pound

The above scantily clad individual (as you probably have guessed) is Mike Mikulak, Oregon's great fullback—no member of a nudist cult—but merely taking a glance at what his summer eating and sleeping have done to the scales. The awful news was 203 pounds, but he has had two weeks of grueling practice to lower that, and when the Webfoots trot out against Gonzaga's Bulldogs at Spokane tomorrow, he should be down around his old fighting weight of 195.

Infirmity Has Three
 New patients at the infirmary are Robert Lucas, Donald Andrews, and Mercedes Tuhy. Robert Stevens and Charles White were dismissed today.

Graduate Visits Campus
 A visitor on the campus for a day or two is Marguerite Loretz, graduate assistant in zoology last year. She plans to enter medical school in Portland this fall.

Mighty U.S.C. Trojans Have Veteran Team

Smith, Brown, Sparling Are Only Losses

National Champions Are Favored To Repeat Past Wins; Erskine at Tackle

"Who'll stop the Trojans?" That is a question being asked by millions of football fans throughout the country today. Can the Sons of Troy keep adding to their already long streak of victories or like the conquering hero, Napoleon, are they going to meet their Waterloo?

The last time the boys from the moving picture center tasted defeat was three years ago at Pullman when the Cougars scored a 7 to 6 upset.

From last year's championship team Jones lost Tay Brown and Ernie Smith, all-American tackles. When the team took the field last week for their opening double-header against Whittier and Occidental these were the only regulars missing. Last year the Trojans started minus some 7 regulars so a more brilliant outlook is foreseen.

Veterans on Line
 The Troy line will look something like this:

Guards: Aaron Rosenberg, all coast guard for two years who should reach his peak this year. The large boy from Brooklyn (Los Angeles) tips the scales at 210 pounds. Larry Stevens, also 210 pounds and a two-year veteran will get the call at left guard. John Dye, who has subbed the last two years but has seen lots of action, may oust Stevens from the starting job.

Centers: Curtis Youel again gets the starting call. With two years of experience stored away Youel will probably battle it out with Hughes of Oregon for all-coast honors. Ellwood Jorgensen, 225-pound understudy of Youel's last year will also probably see lots of action this year.

Tackles: Bob Erskine at tackle will be one of the main factors in the success or failure of the Trojan team this fall. The other tackle position will be taken care of by either George Lady, giant Merced youth, or Heuston Harper, Troy's mighty shot putter. Both are experienced and should fill in well at Ernie Smith's old hole.

Ends Look Good
 Ends: Least of Jones' worries, Captain Ford Palmer, a great pass receiver at the right wing and Ward Browning, a 190-pound reserve end on last year's squad who saw much action should prove to be two of the finest flank men in the country.

The backs will line-up something like this:
 Quarterbacks: Irvine "Cotton" Warburton, 148 pounds of everything it takes to make up a real football player and who runs faster than a scared rabbit, gets the call. Last year as a soph the blond Nemis from San Diego broke in as a regular on the Jones eleven replacing Mohler.

Yomer Griffith, who usually started the games last year but was replaced by Warburton, will probably see plenty of action this year. This 190-pound youth filled

SPORTS
 THE athletic activities of the University of Oregon, its competitive teams and otherwise, should be the concern of each and every student on the campus. Keep abreast of the sport news of your University if you are not actively a participant.

Prospective Mermen Urged to Assemble At Theta Chi Today

All men who are interested in varsity and freshman swimming are asked to report at the Theta Chi house at 7:30 tonight. Bob Needham, former varsity swimmer, urges all prospective mermen to attend.

In well where the all-American Gus Shaver left off.

Halfbacks: McNish is playing his third and last year. He is a clever passer and effective blocker. Clemens, who subbed for Erskine last season, is also an effective blocker having been compared to the great Pinckert. Jones' halves seldom carry the ball so these men should prove their worth.

Fullbacks: Gordon Clark gets the starting job. Although light, Clark is a veteran and should see more action than his rival Bob Getz. Cliff Probst and Bob Mathews, two newcomers from last year's frosh squad, may oust Clark from the starting job.

Deans Attend Convention
 Dean Wayne L. Morse, Professor Carlton E. Spencer, and Professor Orlando J. Hollis, all of the law school, are attending the state bar convention which is being held in Bend today and Saturday.

Donut Heads Swings Into 1933 Season

Changes May Be Made; Yeomen Affected

Swimming and Water Polo Are First on the Schedule; Basketball Next

The donut program for 1933-34 got under way yesterday when the managers from the various men's organizations met and discussed the calendar and general rules and regulations governing competition this term.

The principal topic of discussion concerned the advisability of requiring the Yeomen to compete in two factions and thus insure a more balanced competition than in the past three years. No definite action was taken on the question, as the intramural board can take no action until petitioned for the change.

Swimming will be the first sport on the calendar and will begin October 9. All entries must be made by October 3. Water polo will follow the swimming calendar and will be followed directly by basketball.

Eligibility rules will be the same as last year.
