Nilsson Is Really Hurt Trojans Will Be Hard To Beat; Track Starts

NO, folks, sorry to say it's no bear story about Big Biff Nilsson, Oregon's premier tackle, being out of active competition for at least three weeks. Biff's knee is hurt plenty bad if Bob Officer, Colonel Bill Hayward, or Dr. Richard Dillehant of Portland can be counted upon for the truth. The last named is in charge of Nilsson's case now, in the Rose City.

Biff Nilsson last named is in charge of Nilsson's case now, in the Rose City. Groans leaked out from every corner of the grandstand and press box at Saturday's game when Biff was carried off the field on the shoulders of Hayward and a team mate. It seemed that even the fans felt that something was wrong... more than a trifle injury.

It's not a good policy to spread black news, but things sure looked cloudy in the Webfoot camp today with Nilsson's name added to those who might not be able to meet Washington next Saturday. Others on the injured list include: Cuppoletti on crutches with an injured ankle... Eagle on bench with wounded heel... Gee not yet recovered from a misplaced vertebrae received against Columbia Morse at the infirmary with a cold... Not space enough for any more!

Asked at Saturday's game: Pigger: What are those cards Prink is handing his substitutes as they go into the game? Pigger: Oh, those are passes to get by the referee. There has been too much sneaking into the games lately. Pigger: What is that gasoline truck doing on the field? Pigger: Tut, tut, that's Mike Mikulak. He's the traveling advertising agent of the Union Oil company.

Sports prophets all along the coast (including Mr. Crystal Ball) wish to take back all they said about Mr. Jones' Trojans of Southern California... Getting weaker... It certainly doesn't look that way. With a 33 to 0 victory over a team with as much punch and talent as Washington State, it will take a miracle eleven to turn the tables on the national champs this year.

Apologies are due Aaron Miller, right half back on the frosh squad. It seems that the Emerald has been labeling him as a Medford product when the truth of the matter is that he hails from Benson Tech of Portland, where he starred in the Mechanics' backfield. We won't let it happen again.

Nilsson Out Of Duck Lineup For At Least Three Weeks

Star Webfoot Tackle's Knee Is Hurt Badly

'Biff' Taken to Portland For Treatment

Frye to Take Place in Line for Washington Game; Others Nurse Injuries

Erwin "Biff" Nilsson, stellar Webfoot tackle, lies in the Dornbecher Memorial hospital in Portland this morning uncertain as to whether he will play another football game for Oregon this year.

The big veteran was carried off the field in the Columbia game last Saturday with what was thought to be nothing more serious than a twisted knee; but complications developed which required more complete equipment than is available on the campus, and he was removed to Portland where he is under the care of Dr. Richard Dillehant, dean of the University school of medicine.

Biff Out Long Time
 In the opinion of Bob Officer and Colonel Bill Hayward, Oregon trainers, Nilsson is undoubtedly on the injured list for a three-week stretch, and this period may become longer if the injury is slow in healing.

Nilsson's loss will be felt greatly by Prink Callison and his Webfoot squad. The blond giant has seen action in nearly every minute of play in conference competition in the past two seasons, and it will take a good man to fill in the hole he will leave. Gardner Frye, who has been alternating with Dutch Clark at guard, has been shifted to the tackle position with the hope that he will work into the new post in plenty of time for the Washington game next Saturday. Con Frye will get a chance at Frye's place.

Many Ducks Victims
 Nilsson's injury is the climax of a deluge of gloom for the Webfoot camp. Leighton Gee, already troubled by a cold, suffered a misplaced vertebrae in Saturday's game, and has not yet completely recovered. Alec Eagle, giant tackle, is on the sidelines with a boil on his heel. Mark Temple is still limping as the torn muscle sheath in his right leg heals slowly.

Among others who will have to improve rapidly if they are to be at their best against Washington are: Van Vliet, who cannot kick because of a slowly healing leg muscle; Butch Morse, who is confined to the infirmary with a cold; and Bree Cuppoletti, already handicapped by an unruly shoulder bone, the victim of a sprained ankle.

Midnight Express Wins Grid Game For Pro Eleven

Joe Lillard, sensational Webfoot athlete during the reign of "Doc" Spears, and now playing professional ball for the Chicago Cardinals, kicked a field goal in the second period of the tussle with the Cincinnati Reds Sunday that enabled the Cards to win their first game in three starts by a 3-0 score.

The two defeats recorded to Coach Patsy Clark's National Professional League club by close scores, one of which was won by the strong Portsmouth Spartans, were featured by the colored lad's open field running, and passing, and the line plunging ability of Jim Bausch, former University of Kansas, backfield star.

Lillard will be remembered as the Webfoot star whose brilliant career was halted in its infancy when Jonathan Butler, "the Campus Sleuth," declared the "Midnight Express" ineligible for further intercollegiate competition on the charge that Lillard had participated in professional baseball.

Yearling Coaches Sob as Arms and Legs Are Broken

Half of Duckling Squad Out With Injuries as Clash With Rooks Nears

Varying reports, all gloomy, were given out by Bill Reinhart and Irv Schulz, frosh coaches, and other members of the Oregon coaching staff regarding the yearling eleven and its game with the Rooks Friday night.

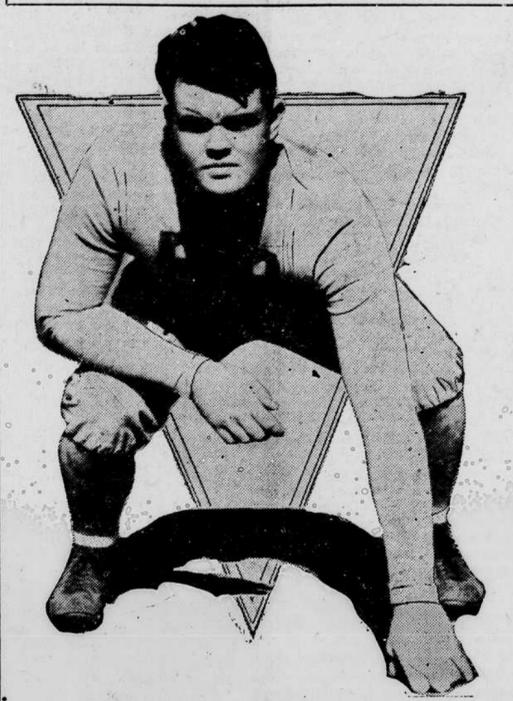

Johnny Kitzmiller's estimate of 14 injured out of 33 squad members seems bearish enough, but he is actually the Pollyanna of the staff in this matter. The other extreme claims that out of 33 squad members there are 68 broken legs, ten of these being broken in two places and four in three places.

Reinhart admitted that there were enough frosh football players outside the infirmary to scrimmage the varsity last night, but said that ten of these had "Bomkus of the Konkus." The eleventh player was in love, he added.

The coaches can reel off a list of injuries longer than Reinhart's face to prove their claims. A portion of the list includes: Murray, end, has just recovered from an injured hip; Owen, quarter, has a bad shoulder; Burchard, guard, has an infected leg; Penn, quarter, has a bad foot; A. Miller, half, has a bad leg; Farrar, center, is just out of the hospital; Fred Hunt, guard, is on crutches suffering from a cartilage displacement; Augustitus, guard, has a bad knee; Borden, halfback, has injured his hip.

A movement has been started on the campus to replace Schulz and Reinhart with two coaches of more equal height so they may cry on each other's shoulders.

On Injured List

Alex Eagles, giant Oregon tackle, is the latest Webfoot gridster to turn up with an injury. Eagles is suffering from an infected heel.

Many Upsets Recorded on Nation's Gridiron Program

Football throughout the country was generally marked by a great number of surprises and upsets over this past week-end. The greatest upset in the football world came when the Kansas Jayhawks shattered a prize Notre Dame tradition that has stood for the past 32 years. In the great Ramblers' stadium the Kansas gridders held "Hunk" Anderson's squad to a scoreless tie. This was the first time since 1901 that a Notre Dame team has not won its initial contest, and the Kansas boys won a great moral victory.

At Pittsburgh "Pop" Warner's Temple gridders were completely swamped 25 to 0 by a fighting bunch of Tartans from Carnegie Tech. The Tartans were playing for the first time under the leadership of their 26-year-old coach, Howard Harpster, former all-American back for the engineers. The Navy sunk enough "Anchors Aweigh" to run up 25 points to Mercer's nothing. Princeton had an easy time and took Amherst 40 to 0, while Lafayette scored two touchdowns to beat Franklin and Marshall.

Fordham Wins
 Mississippi surprised the grid prophets and held Alabama to a scoreless tie. The Fordham Rams looked strong in scoring 57 points in their annual "track meet" with Muhlenberg. The Army mule proved to be stubborn enough to win from V.M.I. 32 to 0. Columbia showed up well taking Lehigh to the tune of 39 to 0.

Down around the Mason and Dixon line Georgia took Tulane 26 to 13, and dear old Vanderbilt came through with flying colors to defeat North Carolina 20 to 13. The Mustangs from Southern Methodist took it easy and bucked enough to beat Texas Mines 27 to 0.

Irish Beaten By Van Vliet's 54-Yard Run

Oregon Overconfidence Nearly Fatal

Columbia's Sensational Passing Attack Almost Defeats Oregon Team

An over-confident, listless team of Oregon Webfoots narrowly escaped its first setback of the season Saturday afternoon at the hands of Gene Murphy's scrappy Irish of Columbia university. A brilliant 50-yard run by Van Vliet, substitute half, in the final three minutes of play was needed to put the local team on the long end of the 14 to 7 score.

The Columbia eleven unleashed a sparkling aerial attack, which apparently caught the Oregon backs entirely off guard, to score their lone touchdown in the fourth quarter of the game. The Webfoots' first score came in the third quarter after a grimly determined Columbia eleven had stopped them twice within easy scoring distance in the first half.

Webfoots Wake Up
 Callison's eleven came to life shortly after the start of the second half, and after being repulsed once on a drive from midfield which netted them three first downs, the Webfoots put the ball in play on the Irish 32-yard mark for their first scoring drive. A 15-yard penalty for holding pushed the Portland team back to its 17-yard line. From here successive plunges by Mikulak and Gee placed the pigskin on the Columbia 8-yard line. On the next play Van Vliet scooted through the center of the Irish line and scored standing up. Milligan kicked the extra point.

The Irish failed to admit defeat, however, and the last period was not very old when Murel Nehl, Columbia half, on a fake kick, raced the ball from his own 38 to Oregon's 19 yard line. The Webfoots knocked down an Irish pass back of the goal line on the next play, and the ball went to Oregon on its own 20-yard line. In an exchange of kicks, Michek fumbled in midfield and the Irish recovered. Two well placed passes, Nehl to Thomason and Nehl to Piskol, put the ball on the 3 yard line. Corcoran plunged to the 1-foot marker. With the Oregon backs pulled in to stop a line rush, Nehl tossed a short pass to Manion, and the Irish quarterback scored without being touched. Nehl converted.

Ruth Chilcote Working In Office of Dean Hoyt

Ruth Chilcote, sophomore in business administration, is working part time in the office of Dean H. V. Hoyt of the school of business administration as an assistant secretary. Miss Chilcote was recognized by Beta Gamma Sigma, business administration honorary, as having the best freshman record in the school last year.

Dunn Confined to Home
 Professor F. S. Dunn is still confined at his home following a heart attack. Friends will be glad to know that he probably will be able to return to his classes in two or three weeks.

The Webfoots were fighting back for the first time in the afternoon when Van Vliet's long run for a score came with but three minutes of the game remaining. With the ball on Oregon's 46-yard line, the red-haired Webfoot half broke through the center of the Columbia line, and was out in the open before the Irish backs could diagnose the play. He raced down the east sidelines unmolested for the score. Milligan again converted.

Van Vliet was the offensive and defensive star of the game, averaging 10 yards to the play in eleven trips with the ball. His smart work at safety prevented one Irish touchdown early in the fourth quarter when he dove over the two interference runners to bring Nehl down on the Oregon 19-yard line, after the Columbia star had carried the ball from his own 38. Wishard and Morse, at wing positions, also looked good for the victors.

Nehl Is Irish Star
 Nehl led the visitors' attack. His kicking was long and accurate, as were his passes; and he led his team in ground gaining, averaging 6 yards in 8 attempts.

The Oregon line was too big for the Columbia forwards, and the invaders could make but one first down from scrimmage to the Webfoots' 13. Murphy's aggregation garnered three first downs from passes, however, while the locals were ineffective in this department. The lemon-yellow rolled up 311 yards from scrimmage plays to the visitors' 42.

The initial splash of the 1933 intramural swimming competition, if not producing all the thrills of a high class water carnival, certainly gave promise of developing into a real battle for school national honors.

The Betas started things by sinking the Theta Chi team 36-6 when Jim Reed cracked the 40-yard backstroke record and their medley relay squad clipped 1 second from that mark. The Yeomen, despite their recent curtailment, easily submerged the Deltas 33-7, while A. T. O. though finding the Sigma Pi Taus a little tougher came out an easy 10-point winner.

What few thrills the meet did furnish came in the nip and tuck affair between A. T. O. and S. P. T. with the latter losing a close race in the relay when Bill Temple, after a disastrous slip, failed by a foot in a great effort to catch the A. T. O. anchor man.
