Seattle Football Contest Dulls Society Activities

The University of Oregon campus will present a rather deserted appearance over the week-end, when a horde of Webfeet will trek north for the annual football embroglio with the Huskies.

Reports from the city on the sound indicate that a majority of the sororities are planning to entertain for their Oregon guests during their stay in the city.

Prominent Students To Marry
Miss Marian Chapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Chapman of Eugene, will become the bride of Robert Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hall, also of Eugene, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, Rev. Milton S. Weber of the First Presbyterian church here will officiate.

Miss Chapman will be attended by Miss Louise Webber and Mr. Hall by Mr. Donald Chapman.

The young couple will leave immediately following the ceremony for a short honeymoon, the destination unknown, after which they will be at home to friends in Portland.

Miss Chapman was prominent on the campus last year. She was president of Phi Theta Upsilon, a member of Mortar Board, and was prominent in Y. W. C. A. activities.

Mr. Hall is a member of Sigma Pi Tau and was president of the A. S. U. O. last year.

University Graduate Marries
Miss Katherine Virginia Kennedy of San Francisco became the bride of Howard Douglas Stevens of Portland October 8.

The bride is a daughter of Thomas J. Kennedy, and Mr. Stevens is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stevens of Portland and a graduate of the University of Oregon.

Exchange Desserts Held
Exchange desserts are beginning in earnest this week. Wednesday evening Sigma Kappa will entertain Sigma Chi; Zeta, Tau, Alpha, Theta Chi, Delta Gamma, Sigma Chi; Phi Gamma Delta, Kappa Alpha Theta; Kappa Kappa Gamma, Phi Kappa Psi; Pi Beta Phi, Kappa Sigma. Thursday evening Phi Kappa Psi will entertain Kappa Alpha Theta; Phi Sigma Kappa, Pi Beta Phi; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Alpha Chi Omega; Sigma Nu, Delta Gamma; Phi Mu, Theta Chi.

To Nominate Officers
The Dill Pickle club will meet this noon at the Y. W. C. A. bungalow. A committee consisting of Miss June Hansen, Miss Eula Loomis and Miss Norma Zintzer will nominate officers. Officers of this group will have a position on the upper class commission.

King-Douglas Wed
Miss Florence King was married to Jesse Douglas last June in Portland. Miss King was affiliated with Alpha Omicron Pi and Mr. Douglas with Kappa Sigma. They are now living in Minneapolis, Minnesota, where Mr. Douglas is teaching.

Religious Group To Meet Tonight

Dr. E. W. Warrington, professor of religion at the University and Oregon State college, will give his second of a series of talks on "Modern Movements in Religious Thinking" tonight at 9 o'clock at the Westminster house under the auspices of the Student Christian Council.

Dr. Warrington attempted last week to draw out the student's attitude concerning the religious trend of the present day by means of questions made directly to them, and he will accordingly use this theme for tonight's talk.

Cosmetic Expert Gives YWCA Talk

A simple make-up for the college girl was stressed by Mrs. Parsons, beauty expert from McMorrin and Washburne, in the demonstration and talk on the use of cosmetics which she gave before a Y.W.C.A. frosh discussion group Monday.

Mrs. Parsons advised the group to avoid the garish and brilliant make-ups which are so often seen. Such make-ups are not suitable for the average girl. They are often incorrectly applied, and they are absolutely out of place for daytime wear on the campus.

With her assistant, Mrs. Parsons gave several of the girls sample make-ups which showed the advantages of correct use of cosmetics.

If any girl who has an individual beauty problem will call on Mrs. Parsons at McMorrin and Washburne, her questions will be answered gladly.

Invitational Tea to Be Held by Phi Chi Theta

Plans for an invitational tea for the women of the school of business administration to be held tomorrow afternoon in Gerlinger hall were completed at the meeting of Phi Chi Theta, professional sorority in business administration yesterday in Commerce hall.

A joint meeting with Alpha Kappa Psi, professional fraternity in business administration, was planned for Tuesday, October 17, in the men's lounge of Gerlinger hall.

To Be Married

The marriage of Marion Chapman (left) and Bob Hall will be performed Thursday, Oct. 12. Both were outstanding students on the campus last year. Bob Hall was president of the student body and Miss Chapman president of Phi Theta Upsilon, upperclass honoreary.

D.A.R. Chapter Will Be Organized at Oregon

About 20 University women eligible to membership in the Daughters of the American Revolution have been invited to become charter members of a University of Oregon chapter of the organization. Multnomah chapter of the D. A. R. in Portland is sponsor of the campus project, and Elise Oehler is organizing agent.

The first formal meeting probably will not be held until early next term, as papers must be sent to Washington, D. C. On October 19, however, University girls eligible to D. A. R. will be invited to attend a reception given by the local Eugene chapter in honor of Mrs. John Richardson, state regent.

N.Y. Panhellenic Hotel Awaits Fifth Birthday

The Panhellenic, 26-story hotel at 3 Mitchell place, New York City, owned by 20 national Greek-letter fraternities for women, will celebrate the fifth anniversary of its opening by a dinner dance October 13. The hotel is used as a fraternity headquarters and residence for members and friends.

Opened in 1928 at the top of the economic boom, the hotel, according to Mrs. A. Barton Hepburn, president of the board of directors, has weathered the depression by virtue of having had two good years that provided a depreciation fund when the depression arrived.

National President of Kappas Dies Suddenly

Mrs. Alice T. Barney of Minneapolis, national president of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, died suddenly Tuesday, October 3.

In respect for Mrs. Barney, who served in the capacity of national president for two terms, members and pledges of the sorority are wearing black ribbons until November 3.

The Campus Limelights

By JOSEPHINE COLLEGE
SPONSORS of the all-American girl contest announced shortly after the preliminaries that the judges were interested primarily in the photo-ability of the contestants. No matter what her charm or audience appeal, they watched closely for the type of face that would photograph well. Perhaps this will answer some of the questions that are going around the campus.

We select from the lime-light Marion Bass, because she was dramatic in a long white silk gown trimmed in fur as an American girl contestant, because she's versatile, doing a Virgil's Dido at Grant high and a perfect Joan Crawford at the Order of the O premier.

We select Libby Crommelin because she descended the precipitous Igloo stairs all by herself, because she was the epitome of the princess of yore, and because she smiled naturally.

Seen at the Oregon-Columbia game: Ida Mae Nickels, a blonde and brown symphony; Betty Labbe, a stunning conservative in brown and grey with a suede mirror's cap that didn't look like a tennis player's visor for once; Adelaide Hughes in a brown ensemble with ruffled sleeves from Bullocks; Gail McCredie in soft blue wool sport outfit; and especially Eneia Coghlan because she didn't care particularly how she looked in a comfortable sweater and skirt—here's to her!

We nominate for oblivion Bill Russell because he came to open house in a pair of hiking boots and we didn't wear ours, and the attractive wine colored suit at the football game that was spoiled by a pair of long black earrings.

Rumor has it that two of the escaped convicts who are mentally deficient were seen in Eugene yesterday. We fear they won't find much distinction here. Anyway we suggest that Cunningham the Fearless organize her sisterhood to keep the campus prowler-proof.

balancing herself from the edge of the couch. "Oh, I've gained. I eat more here."

When asked what color her eyes were, she laughed again, and shook her head. "I don't know," she answered. And that is an extremely good description for those eyes, which are not green, not brown, and not hazel, but a mixture of all three.

Miss Carper is a freshman in the University. About college life, she said, "Oh, I love it. I'm majoring in social science, but you'd never know it, my course is so general. I'm trying to get a good education."

And then came a difficult question. "What do you think of men?" She looked dismayed. "Oh, dear, do I have to answer that?"

When asked what she liked to do for amusement, she hesitated a few moments. Slowly, thoughtfully, she said, "Well, I like to swim, and to read, if I have time"—and then, quickly, as if she had a sudden inspiration, she smiled merrily and finished—"oh, I like to dance, and have a good time."

answered, emphasizing the "now." Realizing that here was a question gravely important to many co-eds, I hurried to ask what she meant by "now." Had she gained or lost at college, and why? She began to laugh, almost un-

Japanese school girls are not ignored in the military training features of Japan's school, as the above picture proves. It shows the flower of Japan's womanhood, shouldering rifles, marching during a training period at the Third regiment headquarters in Tokyo.

Japanese Gentlemen Come Before Ladies, Allen Finds

By CYNTHIA LILJEQVIST
"In the Orient a well-bred lady would never think of walking through a door first if there were gentlemen in the company," Dean Eric W. Allen of the journalism school stated while comparing oriental with occidental women.

"With the easterners, social etiquette is an art and is developed to its finest degrees. One grows so accustomed to the attention that it seems odd when the American women at the hotels merely nod their greetings."

Scanning the Cinemas

COLONIAL — "Rasputin and the Empress," John, Ethel, and Lionel Barrymore, Ralph Morgan, Diana Wynyard.

MCDONALD — "Paddy, the Next Best Thing," Janet Gaynor, Warner Baxter, Margaret Lindsay. Also "Big Executive," Ricardo Cortez, Richard Bennett, Elizabeth Young.

Don't Miss This
I SAY don't miss this, "Rasputin and the Empress" at the Colonial for several reasons. First of all it will without a doubt be among the top ranking pictures of the year. Possibly not amongst the first ten, yet well up in the ranking.

Second, because of the fine acting of Lionel and John Barrymore, of Ralph Morgan, and of Diana Wynyard. Ethel is a stage actress, and that's just how her interpretation impressed me,—stacy and a bit overdone.

Third, because there's some fine choral music in it, and I go for good music in a big way. "Rasputin" has practically everything a really fine dramatic presentation should have. Lionel's performance is truly outstanding, and a very close second to his is that of Ralph Morgan, the smaller of the movies' Morgan "trust," as the lovable and trusting Czar Nicholas. John is a likeable prince.

Lionel is so realistic in his unbelievable disgustiveness and cruelty that one feels the same fierce delight that John displays as he beats the ugly monk's head in with a poker. A fine scene by John, incidentally.

I forgot to mention that you shouldn't miss this. Story of the Crash That's what "Big Executive," one of the shows at the Mac, deals with Ricardo Cortez as a representative of the new generation of was more sophisticated than the Oregon co-ed and in ready and graceful English revealed how many interests she had outside of her immediate home. We all fell in love with her. The other lady was presiding over a two-foot-high dinner table. She was poised and gracious to such a degree that our party was captivated by her personality. Her countrymen considered her a modern Japanese woman because her husband allowed her to converse with the men guests.

All Japanese women are especially meticulous about themselves. Never do you see one that is untidy. The western style of dress is adopted only by the stenographers, clerks, and street car conductors, who are women. Some financiers, and Richard Bennett as the old financier with a drooping white mustache, a big black cigar, and an iron derby. Story deals with the old financier's efforts to prevent the younger man from marrying his grand-daughter.

In "Paddy, the Next Best Thing," a character who is made up to resemble George Bernard Shaw, and does so very well, is entertaining a group of smart Irish folks with a monologue; all of this signifying a very smart social gathering indeed. And what is the character saying but,

"And I told him that I couldn't have done much better myself."

Much laughter from the spectators.

Story: rich man pursuing poor girl. Lots of stolen kisses, and Miss Gaynor being very coy. Warner Baxter is good.

NECESSITY OF STUDENT AID

The upset in the Y. W. C. A. council is particularly unfortunate at this time when the greatest cooperation of all members is necessary to complete the yearly finance drive. Although the absence of the four resigned members will in no way curtail the proposed activities of the organization, there is no doubt that the reasons for the resignations that were published yesterday have brought derogatory student comment. A thorough study of the situation reveals that the causes for resignation were from misunderstanding and dissent. The cause for that dissent has been eliminated, since the budget has been pared to a minimum, and it is hoped that the students will continue to cooperate with the finance drive.

Criticism brought against the Y. W. C. A. in past years has finally led to action. No girl is asked to pledge money if she doesn't choose to do so. The attendance at the social functions is entirely optional. With these beneficial changes the Y. W. will continue to exist and be enjoyed by those who are interested in its activities.

In the light of these changes it is hoped that the campus will continue to aid the organization because of the benefit it brings to a considerable portion of the students.

Has Utterly Revolutionized Pens!

Pen inventors vainly tried for nearly 50 years to produce this "miracle pen." Not merely a pen without a rubber ink sac, but a sacless pen without piston pump or valves—with nothing to render it useless later. Finally most pen makers gave it up as a "fool idea."

Then a scientist at the University of Wisconsin conceived this revolutionary principle—the Vacuumatic Filler. He brought it to Geo. S. Parker, and we spent thousands to perfect it. It is guaranteed mechanically perfect.
