

Budget Larger As Journalism School Grows

State Board Adds $500 For Instruction

EQUALIZATION IS AIM

Chancellor Kerr to Attend Meeting At Chicago; Enrollment Report Presented to Group

An increase in enrollment made necessary the $500 increase in the school of journalism 1933-34 budget voted by the state board of higher education Monday, Dean Eric W. Allen explained yesterday. "The school of journalism had its budget cut twice in rapid succession," the dean said. "Following this there was an increase in enrollment, making necessary an equalization of its budget with other departments."

Department Approved

An addition to the journalism staff of an instructor to take over part of this load was approved by the board. Other additions to the staff on the Eugene campus approved included Vernon Kerley, instructor in mathematics and assistant in science, effective October 1, 1933; A. J. Mathews, to take over some of the work of Professor F. S. Dunn, head of the Latin department; and Howard Halbert, who will work as assistant conductor of orchestras on both campuses.

Chancellor Kerr was given permission by the board to attend the meeting of the Association of American Universities at Chicago, where he will deliver an address, and also to go to the meeting of the American Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities.

Enrollment Drops

A resume of the enrollment at the six state institutions was given to the board in Chancellor Kerr's complete report. On October 10 it had reached a total of 5502 compared with 6140 a year ago. Registration in extension courses, however, rose from 1375 last year to 1639, an increase of 19.5 per cent.

Only La Grande normal showed an increase in enrollment this year, while Ashland normal had the heaviest drop. A table, showing the enrollment and percentage change from last year, follows:

	% dec
University	2113 7.2
College	1945 13
Medical school	551 7.6
(Including nursing students.)
Monmouth normal	397 15.9
Ashland normal	256 21.2
La Grande normal	240 *1.7

The purpose of the Northwest field council is to discuss the business of the Y.M.C.A. in the four northwest states: Idaho, Montana, Washington, and Oregon, and to make recommendations to the local groups.

Oregon Rifle Team Steadier In Aim Than Unselected Men

Robert H. Seashore, associate professor of psychology, and Raymond D. Adams, who was his research assistant last year, have recently published a short article, "The Measurement of Steadiness—A New Apparatus and Results on Marksmanship," in the September 29 issue of "Science."

This article describes new apparatus for the measurement of postural steadiness and also reports preliminary results on the use of this apparatus in which Adams showed that persons who were steady in arm and hand movements were also steady in maintaining an erect posture either

Library Adds Old Copy by Walpole To Fine Collection

"The Castle of Otranto" Procured In London; Edition Printed By Bodoni in 1791

To the Pauline Potter Homer collection of fine books in the library has just been added a book of unusual interest to people who like fine bindings and printing.

It is a copy of the Edwards edition of "The Castle of Otranto" by Horace Walpole, printed by Bodoni in 1791. Bodoni is a prominent figure in the history of printing. His type was the first kind to survive to modern times, and it is still considered the best all-purpose type face.

The book is bound in a leather that has evidently been treated to show a marble-like grain. It is simply decorated with a gold border, and the pages have a marble edge.

The library procured the edition through a London dealer in old books. In that establishment the book received the necessary repairs to make it useable. The mending is so skillfully done that it is imperceptible. It is interesting to note that the person who did this work is a boy of 18.

Bandsmen Report 'Smashing' Time Had By All On Trip

Excitement and thrills followed in the wake of the University of Oregon R.O.T.C. band in its trip to Seattle for the football game last Saturday. During the short time they were in Portland, the bandsmen paraded through the streets and gave concerts over KEX and KOIN. Their West Point uniforms in lemon and emerald were the objects of exclamations of admiration from all observers.

While in Seattle, they were lodged in comfort at the Olympic Hotel. The big thrill came, however, on the way to the game. In spite of the protection of a motorcycle escort and a private bus, a low railroad trestle absolutely smashed one big tuba, that was on the roof, and dented the bell on another. Only the loud cries of the bandsmen and the quick action of the driver in stopping the bus averted a wholesale destruction of musical instruments. The instruments that can be hammered back into shape so that there will be a very small loss.

The band's next trip will be to Portland for the Oregon State game.

A Janitor's Working Hours

EDITORIAL

IN a period of enlightened labor reform the nation over it is amazing to find on the University of Oregon campus a labor condition that belongs to the age of the sweatshop.

Janitors at the University go to work at 6 o'clock in the morning, and they quit work at 6 o'clock at night. By direction of the administration, they waste two and a half hours in the middle of the day, from 11 a. m. to 1:30 p. m., so that the total day's work amounts to nine and one-half hours. The two-and-one-half hour "lunch" period makes it nearly impossible to clean up rooms after morning classes, and is practically useless as a rest period. Some of the janitors, because they live at a distance from the campus, are spending 12 hours out of every 24 on the campus. When the cold weather arrives they will be coming even earlier, in order to have the buildings reasonably warm when classes start.

This system was imposed upon the janitorial service by administrative order effective September 16. During the summer the force was cut down and the duties of each man were increased.

The situation is more than an affront to decent employer-labor relationships. It is more than a reactionary example of administrative parsimony. It is more than a slap at the principles and ideals of the national recovery act.

It is a violation of the spirit, if not the letter, of state law. Oregon's legislature has provided that no state employee "shall be required or permitted to labor more than eight hours in any one day, or 48 hours in any one week."

Justice demands that the working hours of the University's mechanical force be reduced to the maximum permitted by any great establishment. The fact that the NRA does not include state institutions is no excuse for the conditions that prevail. State laws have been enacted to prevent just such exploitation of laborers as has been saddled upon these caretakers of the University of Oregon, and common humanity demands that the load be lifted from their shoulders.

Note: Further data on this subject are given in the regular editorial columns.

Y.W.C.A. Cabinet Replaces Officers At New Election

Only Result of Recent Dissension Slight Adjustment of Year's Budget

Plans for the year in the Y. W. C. A. are progressing rapidly, apparently having been spurred on rather than driven away by the dissension in the Y cabinet, when four members of the cabinet resigned from office as a result of what they claimed was an unbalanced budget.

At the meeting of the Y cabinet last night three officers were elected to fill the places left vacant by those resigned. Lois Greenwood replaces Gwen Elsmore as vice-president; Alma Herman replaces Marygolde Hardison as secretary; and Frances Rothwell replaces Ruth Vannice as treasurer.

"We are very pleased with these elections, and the cabinet as a whole is more enthusiastic than ever with the YW program," declared Helen Binford, Y. W. C. A. president. She continued to say that she did not feel that there had in any sense been a "fight" in the cabinet. "It was a misunderstanding, and even so it has brought those who are interested in the Y closer together. Cooperation within the cabinet now is even more evident than before."

The only change which has been made in the Y. W. C. A. program as a result of the dissension is a change in the budget. Mrs. Margaret E. Norton, executive secretary of the Y, having voluntarily offered to have her salary cut $150. Thus instead of the former $600 a year, she will be paid $450 from the University students, the money coming from voluntary pledges of individual women on the campus.

Elections for Y. W. C. A. frosh commission will be held in about two weeks, definite plans to be made at the officers' meeting next Thursday.

According to two appointments which were made at the cabinet meeting, Eleanor Norblad will be chairman of office, and Ruth Van der Vliet, chairman of industrial group.

Speaker Advises Students to Make Oriental Journey

Dean Hoyt Describes Trip to East In Talk Before Professional Groups in Gerlinger

"You should take a trip to the orient just at your age, so you can look back on it for 60 years and enjoy it," said H. V. Hoyt, dean of the school of business administration, in a talk before members of Phi Chi Theta and Alpha Kappa Psi professional fraternities last night at the men's lounge of Gerlinger hall. He told of his trip to the Orient with Dean Eric W. Allen of the journalism school and Dr. John J. Landsbury of the music department.

He said they were not able to go ashore immediately upon their arrival because air maneuvers were being carried out that night. All the lights of the city and boats were turned out to make it as dark as possible. Then airplanes flew over the city in order to see what could be done in case of an aerial attack.

"We went from Tokyo to Peking, a distance equal to the distance from here to New York, for $35," said Dean Hoyt. He mentioned the fact that jirishkas far outnumber automobiles, camels are used instead of trains for hauling coal, and trucks are not used to a great extent. The oriental people believe that their civilization is much higher than that of America, mainly because it is older.

Dean Hoyt was introduced by Heinz Heubner, president of Alpha Kappa Psi.

'Pigger's Guide' to Be Superior in Accuracy

In an effort to prevent the inaccuracies of previous student directories, publication of this year's issue of the "Pigger's Guide" has been held up to insure exactness of addresses and telephone numbers.

Proof will be complete tomorrow for checking at the A.S.U.O. office. It will then be sent to the registrar for a re-check, and the booklet will be ready for sale the first of next week.

The additional time and care given to this year's issue of the student directory should produce a guide superior to those of previous years, Hugh Rosson, graduate manager, said.

Dr. F. S. Dunn Elected To High Masonic Post

Dr. Frederic S. Dunn, professor of Latin, was elected "knight commander of the court of honour" yesterday at the annual convention of the Scottish Rite Masons, southern jurisdiction, in Washington, D. C.

Dr. Dunn, who is confined to his home with an ailment which has kept him from his classes, was one of 373 Masons in the United States to receive this honor. Eleven other members of the group in Oregon were similarly honored.

Scholarship Not Used

John King, former student of the University of Oregon, was unable to take his law scholarship to Cornell this year as he has been ill, and is now in Freewater, Ore.

Jewett Speech Contest Slated To Start Soon

Series of After-Dinner Talks First

DATE IS NOVEMBER 9

'American Optimism' to Be Topic Of Orations; Rules Slated By Speech Head

The first of this year's series of W. F. Jewett speaking contests, the after-dinner speaking contest, is scheduled for November 9, according to an announcement yesterday by John L. Casteel, director of speech.

"The general subject for this contest," said Casteel, "is to be 'American Optimism.' The subject will include all phases of the American tendency to see events in an optimistic light. The treatment may be sympathetic or cynical, may praise the strength and virtues of this trait, or may intend to puncture and disillusion."

Casteel also outlined the following rules and suggestions regarding this competition for the information of prospective entrants:

1. The contest is open to all undergraduates, men and women who are carrying a minimum of twelve hours university work with passing grades, except those students who have won first place in this contest in previous years.

2. The contest will be held as a bona fide after-dinner occasion.
3. A list of 12 to 15 sub-topics will be prepared and posted. From this list each contestant will draw three, selecting one of the three as his topic and returning the other two.

4. This drawing and the drawing for the order of speaking will be held at 3 o'clock the afternoon of the contest.

5. Each speech shall be limited to eight minutes in delivery.

6. Speakers are advised to speak without notes; no ruling is made to the contrary, but use of notes count heavily in the judges' opinion upon the effectiveness of the speech.
7. Qualities of speech: An after-dinner speech should entertain the audience, and at the same time show a purpose, or point. Originality, freshness, and sprightly style are desirable qualities.

8. Prospective contestants are advised to report to the office of the speech division in room 13 Friendly hall at once for full details concerning this competition.

Oregana Has Big Opening of Sales

An unprecedented rush for subscriptions to the 1934 Oregana marked the opening of the year-book sales campaign yesterday. Although no hundred per cent houses have filed their claims for the winners' trophies, many organizations are near the perfect mark, and should go over the top today, according to Bill McCall and Helen Stinger, who are in charge of the drive.

Ed Cross, business manager of the annual, warns students who desire copies of the book to obtain their subscriptions immediately. Only a limited amount of books will be printed, as in former years, and those who do not sign for a subscription will not receive an Oregana.

The price of the book is $4.50, payable in three installments of 50 cents, $2 and $2.

Kappa Sigma Mascot Leaves Campus Home To Roam City Streets

Has anyone seen a lonesome Kappa Sigma that will answer to Pat, wandering around the campus?

The K. S. referred to is not an initiated member or even a pledge but is merely the house mascot. He is a German police dog of Honolulu origin (as near as can be determined) and upon close examination has brown eyes. He is almost of age and is more of a brunette than most of the other police dogs on the campus.

The campus gossips imply that through some peculiar arrangement the Alpha Phi's have a half interest in said pooch.

AWS to Sponsor Freshman Party, Yearly Mum Sale

Committees Named for Projects; Chrysanthemums Must Be Ordered Early

Two important projects, around which A. W. S. activity is centering at present, scheduled for early in November, are the annual chrysanthemum sales, of which Marie Saccamanno is chairman, and the get-together party for freshmen women, which is sponsored by frosh councilors, in conjunction with Kwama.

Henriette Horak is chairman of the freshman party, to be held from 7 to 10 p. m. Wednesday, November 1, in Gerlinger hall. She will be assisted by Ebba Wicks and Adele Sheehy, with Marygolde Hardison as adviser. Through a "television idea," to be made the theme of the evening, the freshmen will be acquainted with campus and social activities, campus etiquette and customs.

Girls who are in charge of acts for the party are Betty Allen, Roberta Moody, Louise Labbe, and Valbourg Anderson. Other committees have not yet been appointed and will be announced later.

The yellow-and-green chrysanthemums, which will be sold this year for the Utah homecoming game, November 4, and the Oregon State game, November 11, must be bought at least three days before the game, according to Marie Saccamanno, who is in charge of sales. Representatives in living organizations and at the Co-op will take orders for 'mums.

The committee in charge is trying to get a uniform price for 'mums, and sell one large size for 75 cents, instead of having different sizes at 50 cents, 75 cents, and $1, as has been done formerly.

'Mums will be secured from the University Florist at the homecoming game in Eugene, and from Tommy Luke's at the Oregon State game in Portland. Every-one buying mums for the O. S. C. game must get them from Tommy Luke's before 1:30 p. m. on the day of the game.

Janet McMicken is secretary for the sales, and Betty Ohlemiller is in charge of publicity. Several new stunts are to be used in preparation for the sales, chief among which is a song about 'mums, to be presented at the living organizations at dinner by the Phi Mu trio. Members of the trio are Mary Ellen Osborne, Mary Margaret Lot, and Lucy Ann Wendell. They are accompanied by Maxine MacDonald.

Careless Students Err

Perhaps the excitement of going up to Seattle to see the game, made some students a bit forgetful of their possessions, so the depot reports that two fountain pens and a pair of gloves and a single glove has been turned in.

Sixteen Girls Pledged By Phi Beta Honorary

Phi Beta, music honorary, last night formally pledged 16 women. The new pledges are Marjorie Bass, Kay Briggs, Dorothy Chatterton, Alvild Erickson, Winifred Johnson, Pauline George, Nora Hitchman, Clara Larson, Marian Moore, Dorothy Smith, Theda Spicer, Mary Ann Scuring, Jeanette Thompson, Virginia Wappenstein, Floy Young, and Lucy Ann Wendell.

At the meeting next Tuesday, the new pledges will entertain the old pledges and members with a program.

Barker Praises University And Urges New Infirmary

"It is felt in Portland that the University is decidedly on the 'up-and-up,'" said Burt Brown Barker, vice-president of the University, when in Eugene. "The spirit of the alumni is finer, more active, and on the whole, more influential than at any other time since I have been in the state of Oregon."

Barker added that it is easier to get groups together, easier to interest them in University affairs and easier to sustain the interest in any undertaking.

"It means that the University group is being knit together more closely than ever before," he went on emphatically. "The co-operation between the faculties of the

Changes Slated In Homecoming For This Year

Signs and Noise Parade Eliminated

RALLIES TO BE HELD

Campus Lunch Will Be Abolished; Alumni Gathering Replaces Traditional Dinner

A new type of rally parade and a mass rally will be held in place of the customary noise parade. Homecoming signs will be abolished, and an alumni luncheon will be substituted for the usual dinner. These Homecoming plans are being considered by a committee composed of Jack Cate, senior in economics; Tom Tongue, president of the Associated Students, and Robert K. Allen, alumni secretary.

Homecoming signs will not be made because it is felt that the results obtained in the past have not justified the effort and expense involved, according to Cate.

Rally Parade New

Elimination of the signs will enable living organizations to spend more time on the floats to take part in the new rally parade. Floats for this parade are to be decorative and noise-producers.

The parade, which will be held on Friday night, will be bigger and more colorful than the old noise parade, and in conjunction with it will be held a mass rally at the Igloo, the freshman bonfire, and the Journalism Jam.

Bonfire Site Same

The bonfire will not be held on Skinner's butte, but will be held above Reinhardt field, where it was held last year.

In place of having an alumni dinner with luncheons in the houses, an alumni luncheon will be held and dinner will be served by the houses.

The customary Homecoming dance will be held in the Igloo on Saturday night.

Program for Ensuing Term Planned by Club

The first regular meeting of the Theta Sigma Phi, women's honorary journalism society, was held last night at the Journalism building. Ruth McClain, vice-president of the society, presided at the meeting. Mrs. George Turnbull represented the alumnae.

One of the topics for discussion was fall pledging. The initiation or honorary associate members was also discussed.

Preliminary plans were made for the Matrix Table banquet the early part of winter term, and for the first of a series of literary meetings for women journalism majors to be held sometime next week.

Sixteen Girls Pledged By Phi Beta Honorary

Phi Beta, music honorary, last night formally pledged 16 women.
