All-American Trojans Play in Beaver Suits In Portland Grid Tilt

"COME and see the all-Americans!"

More than 20,000 Portlanders and football fans from the Northwest at large heard this cry last Saturday and made their way to Multnomah stadium in the Rose City. Why? Because Howard Jones was presenting his one and only Southern California Trojans, in person, and all-Americans, one and all. Incidentally, the big shots from Los Angeles were to show their gridiron prowess by being allowed to run over and around a crowd of orange jerseyed footballers who were to be very accommodating.

But Mr. "Dopewise" Football Fan did not give a whoop who the orange-jerseyed fellows were just so long as they made it possible for him to see a real live all-American in action. He gets so little chance to do this up here in the Northwest, you know. Who ever heard of an all-American, even a potential all-American, hiding himself away here in the land of the pines and cheeses?

All right. Mr. Fan is in his seat on the 50-yard line, and comfortable in the belief that he will get his desire . . . to see an all-American football player that isn't on a screen. He wanted to see just what had to be done to be chosen on the exclusive eleven.

Yes, there was the chubby Mr. Griffith over there. He was named on the top-notch outfit last year, you know. And out there arching his eyebrows and tossing the ball around was "Cotton" Warburton, who alternates with Griffith in thrilling the paid-up customers. Also trotting up and down the field to warm up and smiling at the receptive co-eds in the Beaver rooting section, was Captain Ford Palmer . . . the handsome devil. Over talking things over with the boys and displaying his "three foot" shoulders was hulking Mr. Rosenberg, another "all-American."

The stage was set, and at the whistle Lon Stiner obediently trotted his eleven puppets onto the field so that Mr. Fan could see his heroes work. But then things went all wrong. Somebody must have got things crossed up, because all of the all-Americans suddenly turned out to be in orange jerseys. On the very first play the Corvallis lads rudely smacked a play right through Mr. Rosenberg for 12 yards and a first down. This wasn't right. It couldn't last. But it did last, and the all-stars remained in the orange jerseys.

All-American Ford Palmer was doing things in a great way for the Beavers and would answer to either the name of Curtin or Joslin. All-American Warburton was at his best attire in an orange uniform and answering to the name of Franklin. All-

'A' Basketball Tournney Will Begin Today

Three Games Slated for This Afternoon

Beta Quintet Appears Strong; Yeomen Lose Several Good Players

Today's Basketball Games
4:00—Phi Kappa Psi "A" vs. International House "A."
4:40—Phi Sigma Kappa "A" vs. Sherry Ross "A."
5:20—Phi Delta Theta "A" vs. Chi Psi "A."

With three games slated for today's donut program the 1933 basketball tournament will get under way. The opening contest will be played between Phi Kappa Psi and the International House. Phi Sigma Kappa will meet Sherry Ross hall, and Phi Delta Theta will tangle with Chi Psi in the other two games on schedule.

This year's league will be split into two sectors with each living organization being allowed to enter an "A" and "B" team. Any player who plays with an "A" team will be ineligible for "B" competition.

Each house is expected to have a strong combination entered in both tournaments. Beta Theta Pi looms up as the outstanding contender for this year's donut crown. The Beta lineup will include such stars as "Wee Willie" and Bud Jones, mainstays of Howard Hobson's Ashland Normal quintet which decisively trounced the Oregon varsity in several pre-season contests last year.

Phi Delta Theta and Sigma Alpha Mu are also expected to enter strong quintets in this year's tournament. The Yeomen, last year's champions, have lost several outstanding stars, but they are counted on to win their share of the games.

American Rosenberg had somehow got mixed up with Harold Joslin, and was playing with his number behind the Beaver line. All-American Griffith was slightly fuddled, and the Oregon State rooters hailed him as Hal Pangle.

Of course, Mr. Fan was a bit puzzled at first. But soon things began to clear. Why, of course, you could see that the field announcer had just mixed things up, and that the gridster he referred to as Norman Franklin was really "Cotton" Warburton. They were just trying to fool the spectators, but he couldn't be fooled. He was seeing all-Americans.

Yes, Webfooters, these Orange-men looked like all-Americans, all eleven of them. They may never look so good again. It is certain they have never looked so good before. Yes, perhaps the statistics do show that the Trojans "should" have won. But the statistics didn't show "fight," and those eleven Beavers scored 60 minutes of this to none for the "all-Americans."

But remember, Mr. Beaver, have all of your fun before November 11.

They Shackled the Trojan Horse

These three Orange linemen were among the eleven Beavers who rose to stardom Saturday when they held Southern California's national grid champs from scoring through four quarters of hard football at Multnomah stadium in Portland. From the left, they are Ade Schwammel, husky tackle, Vic Curtin, spark plug end, and Harry Field, tackle.

Football Spotlight Focused On Several Dope Reversals

At last the old guard is falling. With the coming of the new deal and the N. R. A. the football spotlight is turning away from its fixed position of the last two years and penetrating the darkness to find new and greater football machines coming to the front.

In what may well be called one of the most surprising upsets of this season of devastating dope reversals, the fighting Oregon Staters stemmed the mighty El Trojan Saturday at Portland, to check Troy's unequalled streak of 25 consecutive wins with a 0-to-0 tie.

Bucket Upset
In the east other upsets have sent the experts and football prophets to cover. Notre Dame, another of the old guard that have been dominating the gridiron for the past two or three years, bowed its head in defeat to Howard Harpster's up and coming Carnegie Tech eleven. The score was 7-0.

The only teams to save the dopsters from utter ruin were the mighty Wolverines from Michigan and the Nebraska steam roller. The former humbled Ohio State 13-0, while the Cornhuskers turned back Kansas State 9-0.

Reversals Repeat
Just when the nation's football population was settling down and the experts had finished making excuses over the blasting of Northwestern by Iowa and the Northwestern-Stanford tie the second explosion occurred. Washington State, coming up out of the cellar, threw out the Bears from California 6-6 and saved the Pullman field from sustaining a Cougar loss upon it in the last eight years. An inspired Army team ran wild over Illinois' best and came out on top 6-0. Princeton, after many years of mediocrity, jumped back in the running with

Oregon State Ties Trojans In Grid Upset

Orangemen Spoil U.S.C. Victory Record

Norman Franklin and Two Joslins Furnish Fireworks in Portland Game

MULTNOMAH CIVIC STADIUM, Portland, Oct. 23.—(Special)—"O. S. C., our hats are off to you!"

At last the words of the Beaver victory song have come true. For Saturday the underrated Orangemen surprised thousands of grid fans throughout the country and held the great Southern California Trojans, unbeaten and untied in 25 games, to a scoreless tie in a game that made football history. Football fans of the country take off their hats to Lon Stiner, who is acting as head coach for the first time this year, and his eleven "ironmen" of the gridiron.

Orange Defense Stubborn
Showing a stubborn defense second to none in the history of the modern college football game the Orangemen stopped the highly touted would be all-Americans of Troy. Warburton, Griffith, Wotkins, McNeish, and other heralded all-stars were stopped many times for large losses.

Several times the "Thundering Herd" got within the very shadows of the goal posts but those fighting Beavers held, and held well. Norman "Red" Franklin, whose home is in the very shadows of the Trojan lair, was the hero of the day. This speedy 165-pound halfback stopped everything that Howard Jones had to offer.

Joslin Brothers Star
But the credit for the great game can not be given to the little Long Beach speedster alone. The two Joslin brothers, Hal and Woody, the captain for the game, Vic Curtin and in fact the whole team came through playing heads up football throughout the entire conflict.

Although outplayed, Lon Stiner and his boys won a great moral victory from the team the "experts" said were unbeatable. Southern California gained 236 yards from scrimmage to only 69 for the Staters. They gained 21 yards on passes to 12 for the Beavers. The mighty Trojans made 12 first downs to 2 for Stiner's eleven. But the Orangemen held when the time came to hold and showed El Trojan that it could be stopped.

Oregon Men Gain Finals of Eugene Golf Tournament

Completing the semi-final round of the annual City Golf Tournament held on the Laurelwood course, Phil Mulder will meet Robert Prescott, Eugene business man, either today or tomorrow.

Sid Milligan and Don Olsen, both Eugene boys, fought an interesting battle last Saturday with Milligan entering the finals of the tournament with a 2 and 1 victory. Mulder, who hails from Oswego, Oregon, and both Eugene boys who entered the semi-finals are all University men affiliated with the Phi Delta Theta house. The finals of the tournament will, according to present plans, be played sometime the latter part of this week or next Sunday.

Betas Defeat Phi Deltas to Advance In Donut Tournney

Kappa Sigma, Phi Gamma Delta Are Victorious in Other Scheduled Games

Today's Water Polo Schedule
4:00—Alpha Tau Omega vs. Sigma Phi Epsilon.
4:40—Phi Gamma Delta vs. Sigma Chi.
5:20—Beta Theta Pi vs. Kappa Sigma.

Beta Theta Pi advanced a notch closer toward their second consecutive aquatic title yesterday afternoon with an impressive 3-2 victory over a strong Phi Delta water-polo team. Jim Reed, clever Beta forward, tossed the winning goal in an overtime period. Deaver and Cross played an outstanding game for Phi Delta Theta, as each man scored once during the encounter.

Phi Gamma Delta blanked the Theta Chi water aggregation 4-0. The Fijis displayed a powerful attack, and should have little trouble advancing to the semi-final round. Kappa Sigma upset the strong Chi Psi water artists 1-0 in the final match of the afternoon. Newport, Kappa Sig forward, scored the only counter just before the first half was over.

Teachers to Play Duckling Grid Eleven

Contest Is Scheduled for Klamath Falls

Hobson Will Have Strong Lineup; Yearling Coaches Speed Up Offense

With the news of the Sons' 39 to 0 victory over the rooks, the University of Oregon freshmen buckled to a hard week of work in preparation for their game with Hobson's teachers at Klamath Falls Saturday.

Led by Lancaster and Brown, former University of Oregon football players, and by Beach, the Elmer Brown Southern Oregon Normal school team unleashed a series of laterals and spinners that proved too much for the Orange babes Friday. The rooks efforts at touchdowns via the air were met by interceptions on the part of Hobson's team.

Coaches Optimistic
In spite of the comparative scores, the frosh beat the rooks 7 to 3, Bill Reinhart and Irv Schulz, frosh coaches, are almost optimistic. The yearlings are developing a speedier offense, that should make them more formidable than they appeared against the rooks.

Reinhart promises "something potent" in the way of an offense next Saturday and prophesied that the Sons would have an interesting afternoon.

The reserves are pushing the regulars hard and some new faces may be seen in the game. Murray has been playing both end and tackle. If he is shifted to tackle Adams will probably take his place on the wing post.

Farrar is still holding down the center position, although Barry and Callier are showing some promise in that department. The rest of the team showed little change over the week-end. Konopka is still unable to play, but injuries have not increased. Last night was the first of a series of heavy workouts, with new plays, kicking and passing being stressed.

Utah Game to Feature Homecoming; Tickets To Go on Sale at Co-op

Tickets for the Oregon-Utah football game, a feature of the annual Homecoming day, Saturday, November 4, go on sale Wednesday. Those planning to attend may obtain tickets at the A. S. U. O. ticket office in McArthur court, the Co-op, or the Club cigar store in downtown Eugene.

Since the game will be an inter-sectional one, tickets will be in great demand, Tom Stoddard, assistant graduate manager, said yesterday.
