

Student Body Election Dates Shift Proposed

Class, Student Elections To Be Same Day

VOTERS' STATUS UP

Committee Proposes Decision Be Left to Student, or Class Identification Board

Decision to propose a constitutional amendment providing for class and student body elections to be held on the same day was made at the meeting of the constitutional committee in Johnson hall yesterday. It is also planned to have nominations one week previous to the elections.

Because of confusion in classifying third year students without junior certificates as to classes for purposes of voting and other student activities, two possible methods of classification were discussed by the committee.

Disregarding junior certificate and hour requirements in classifying students and permitting the individual student to decide for himself which class he would affiliate himself with under certain limitations was the basis of one plan considered.

The other plan provides for a class identification board which would decide doubtful cases and publish a list a reasonable time before the election. This would allow an appeal by the student if he felt that he were improperly classified.

The constitutional committee, appointed recently by Tom Tongue, president of the Associated Students, to supervise revision of the student body constitution is: Glen Hieber, chairman, Corwin Calavan, Walter Gray, George Birnie, Bill C. Davis, Malcolm Bauer, Geraldine Hickson, Helen Binford, Virginia Hartje, George Bennett, John Kendall, and Charles Kennedy.

Anyone with any comment or criticism of either of these plans or who has anything else to suggest is urged to get in touch with the committee immediately, according to Hieber.

Hundred Books on List Selected by W. Phelps

Posted on the circulation desk in the library is a list of books called "One Hundred Best Books Since July, 1932," selected by William Lyons Phelps, giving author, title, and a short comment.

The list is not classified, except as to fiction and non-fiction, and is evenly divided between the two. Most of the books included may be obtained at the library.

Twenty-four Students Must Pay Installments; Late Payment Fine Due

There are still 24 students who have failed to pay their second installment fee, and are therefore paying the 25-cent late payment fine.

Quite a number of students have not paid their non-residence fee. They must do so by noon Saturday. They are urged to pay as soon as possible at the cashier's office.

American College Declared Equal to English Prep School

The universities of the United States are on a par with the English preparatory schools. That is what Guy Wernham, junior in humanities here and formerly of Paris and London, says.

"The student who reaches the higher realms of education in England is chosen very carefully so that an unusually high standard may be maintained. There is really no democracy in this system, and there is no provision for the below-average man. In this country anyone may go to school; in fact, he is compelled to do so. Whether or not he is fit for the academic life seems to make no difference to the authorities," Wernham continued.

He declared that an educational system can be a success only when

Mittelman Gains High Appointment On Federal Staff

National Research Contemplated By Federal Relief Board Census to Be Taken

Dr. E. B. Mittelman, associate professor of business administration, has recently been appointed to the division of research and statistics of the Federal Unemployment Relief Administration.

The division is contemplating a series of nationwide researches into the economic and social background of relief and its consequences. Dr. Mittelman is to project the nation-wide studies into Oregon through the Oregon Relief committee and develop such local researches as are peculiar to Oregon.

The first study is a census of unemployment relief on the basis of race, rural or urban habitat, and family relations. Other studies are to follow in terms of occupational history, occupational disintegration, chronic unemployment, and other similar subjects.

Dr. Mittelman has been obliged to abandon a part of his University work to initiate the first phases of the program.

Cars of Thirteen Students Banned

Thirteen University students were deprived of the use of their automobiles at the last meeting of the Committee on Student Automobiles held Tuesday afternoon. Eight of these had registered their cars and received stickers but had not placed them on the windshield. The other five had not registered at the automobile office in Friendly hall, as they had promised to do at the beginning of the term.

Two students who violated the city ordinances by allowing persons to ride on the outside of their cars were given warnings as first offenders. Second violations would result in their being deprived of their automobiles for the rest of the term.

The members of the committee are Carlton E. Spencer, chairman, R. W. Leighton and L. K. Schumaker.

Clark Appointed Associate Editor Of College Annual

'Innocent Bystander' Has Much Experience in Year Book Work

Barney Clark, self-styled Innocent Bystander, was yesterday appointed associate editor of the Oregana by Madeleine Gilbert, editor-in-chief of the yearbook.

Clark was chosen to fill the vacancy left by Parks Hitchcock who was appointed last spring and has since resigned.

The new appointee edited a highly successful yearbook at Washington high school, Portland, and last year was editor of the publications section of the Oregana. This year he was named copy editor of the annual, which position he will retain along with the new post.

"We have a fine staff this year," Clark declared, "and we're going to go places. This year's annual has one of the most unusual features I have ever seen in a college yearbook. A signed etching will be in every copy, and there are plenty more hot numbers coming up in the line of special treatment."

Hossain Attributes American Failures To Spiritual Causes

Noted Lecturer Addresses Assembly; Kerr Makes Scholastic Awards to Sigma Pi Tau, Sigma Kappa

"Young people should examine into the fundamental bases of American civilization as it exists today," Syud Hossain, Mohammedan journalist and lecturer, declared in an assembly address in Gerlinger hall yesterday.

"I can understand the economic depression in Europe, the unemployment in Germany and England, the abnormal conditions in Russia, and the travail of Asiatic countries like China," he said, "but it is an incredible situation that the United States of America should have reached a point where fifteen million people exist on the 'bread line.'"

New York he characterized as "the city of billionaires—and bread lines." Hossain attributed to spiritual rather than economic and social reasons our failure to uphold the standards which made the rest of

Homecoming Will Be Feature of Old Oregon Magazine

Betty Anne Macduff Writes on Plans for New Library to Be Built Soon

Detailed announcements concerning Homecoming week-end will feature the October issue of Old Oregon, University alumni magazine, which will come off the press Saturday.

One of the issue's articles that will be of interest to University students and alumni, according to Robert K. Allen, editor, is description of the plans for the new library to be built soon on the Oregon campus. Betty Anne Macduff, last year's graduate in journalism, is the writer of the article.

A report of Dad's day activities with liberal quotations from Dean Wayne L. Morse's speech at the Dad's banquet and an article on this year's intramural athletic program by Paul R. Washke, director of intramural athletics, will also appear in this Homecoming number of the alumni publication.

Since special effort is being made by the Homecoming committee to interesting Eugene alumni in the event, the "Rambling Reporter," a regular feature of the Old Oregon, will in this issue describe the activities of 80 Eugene alumni.

Freshmen Work On Big Flaming O

On the night of November 4, a brilliantly colored flaming O will light up the sky from Skinner's butte as a spectacle for Oregon Homecoming throngs.

Present plans are to display the school colors in flaming letters, U. of O. This will be achieved by colored flares, arranged to form letters 50 or 60 feet high. The laying out of the design, which requires mathematical precision, will be done some time this week.

The lighting of the flaming O will follow the termination of the parade at the north end of Willamette street and will begin the Homecoming rally. The freshman class is starting work now on this project.

Tyson Recovers From Flu
Allen Tyson, University postmaster, is back at his window again after a ten-day siege of influenza.

the world look upon American civilization as the high-water mark of material and scientific achievement.

Within the last three years, Hossain said, the idea of American superiority has had a tremendous shock. "Never has there been a greater sense of palpable insecurity. Certitude and assurance have met with serious psychological set-backs. The whole of the world, East and West alike, is in unprecedented ferment."

Attitude Compared

The speaker compared the attitude of Gandhi with that of the West (Europe and America) and of Russia. He showed how the experiment in Russia makes the state supreme, and that even in America the state's rights are above individual rights. Both types of government believe in mass production and the necessity of armaments. Gandhi, however, believes in the integrity of the individual.

"He wants to deal with the soul of the individual rather than the body," Hossain explained. "You can't coerce human beings. You must draw out what is noble in them, so that the social structure will evolve from them."

Morgan Scolded

Hossain made a scathing indictment of the social morality of such men as Morgan, who avoid payment of taxes and who spend millions of dollars on luxuries while other men starve. He concluded his address with a plea for clear thinking and fearless facing of facts.

Chancellor W. J. Kerr introduced Hossain at the assembly. Preceding the address, scholarship awards for the last school year were made to Sigma Kappa, as the highest ranking women's house, and to Sigma Pi Tau, which ranked highest of the men's houses for the second consecutive year. Frances Brockman, accompanied by Theresa Kelly at the piano,

Detective Stories by Doyle Favorites of Syud Hossain

By ELINOR HENRY
As a small boy, Syud Hossain, alert Indian journalist who spoke here yesterday, had an ambition he was never able to realize. Some day, he planned, he would go to London and visit Sherlock Holmes on Baker street. Much later he did visit Conan Doyle, the immortal detective's creator, but the plump Englishman hardly lived up to his picture of the lank Sherlock.

"What I don't know about detective stories isn't worth knowing," remarked Hossain, smiling. "The test of an author is this—whether or not he creates a character who becomes a type. Sherlock Holmes is the undoubted classic, of course. No modern author approaches Doyle's effective workmanship."

Hossain's ideal hobby, he said, would be horseback riding, if he were a "plutocrat" and could afford it.

The speaker showed an easy familiarity with the English classics. He regards the English language as the material with which he must work, and he gave this as his reason for his evident mastery of it. If he thinks of concepts fundamentally European, he said, his thoughts are in English, but his thoughts of India are in his native tongue.

His name is difficult for an American to pronounce. Say-ud Ho-say-in, though a trifle far-fetched, is about as near as it can be represented in spelling familiar to Americans.
