

Smith Relates Possibilities In Philippines

Talk Given at Pan Xenia Meeting Thursday

Millions Constitute Market That Could Be Served in Manila, Said Speaker

"Over 800,000,000 people constitute the potential market that could be served from Manila," declared Dr. Warren D. Smith of the geology department in his talk on the possibilities of the Philippines in foreign trade at the Pan Xenia, foreign trade honorary, meeting Thursday night.

"I have no doubt that under the right system we could make over $100,000,000 profit through these islands," Dr. Smith went on to explain and enlarge upon the trade possibilities of commerce with the Philippines. Among the products he listed that could be shipped in much greater quantities to the United States were coffee, coconuts, hemp, and tan bark. Enormous quantities of rubber could be raised there. The climate is just right. All that is lacking is capital and enterprise.

Sugar and tobacco could also be raised in tremendous amounts. "I think that Philippine cigars are the finest in the world," commented Smith. "However their production and that of sugar is being held back by selfish interests in America." Philippine pineapples are among the largest in the world; slices have been known to be as big around as a large plate, he said.

Oregon could send many products to the islands in return. Dairy products are especially in demand, milk costing about 50 cents a quart. Dr. Smith explained that large tankers importing coconut oil to the Pacific coast could be cleaned here and sent back filled with milk. Grain, lumber, and fireproof roofing are also in great demand.

"There are, however, a great many obstacles in the way of these great opportunities," declared Smith. Among them he listed: uncertainty of future status, lack of rapid steamship lines, race prejudice, and of large importance to the Pan Xenia, better foreign tradesmen.

"Educated men who understand the fundamentals of trade with foreign countries and who know the needs of the people of the country are extremely lacking. It is such organizations as yours that will bring the greatest in history to the Pacific coast," he remarked. Dr. Smith will conduct a series of five lectures in the C.C.C. camps of Oregon within a short time.

ROSCOE C. NELSON TO SPEAK AT ASSEMBLY

(Continued from Page One) but the chancellor's office yesterday had not been told what the subject of his talk would be. The 11 o'clock classes will be dismissed for the assembly.

Willard L. Marks and Nelson were appointed to the state board by Governor Julius L. Meier after the resignations of C. L. Starr and C. C. Colt this fall. Soon after his appointment, Nelson became president of the board.

As it is the duty of the board to oversee the entire Oregon system of higher education, Nelson is planning to make visits to the other units of the system: Oregon normal, Monmouth; Southern Oregon normal, Ashland; Eastern Oregon normal, La Grande; U. of O. medical school, Portland; and Oregon State college, Corvallis.

Men Survey Campus To Obtain Gradations For Library Location

Have you wondered why the men are measuring the campus? Two reasons! Two birds are being killed with one stone by G. W. Skelton, professor of civil engineering at Corvallis.

He is surveying the Oregon campus to determine gradations and data for the proposed new library, and at the same time to gather information from which permanent maps of the campus shall be made.

These maps, when completed, may be referred to for specific information and future building or landscaping may be carried out without additional survey.

The site for the new library, if built, will probably be in the vacant lot south of the art museum.

LANGUAGE OF ENGLAND HAS APPEAL TO MORDEN

your papers; it is all propaganda. The German people are getting along fine."

One of the scouts who read German noticed in the paper the next morning an article stating that there would be many parties of Americans through Germany that month on their way to Budapest so to treat them well and give them a good impression. The Germans did and the scouts had a very pleasant time there.

"In Switzerland, the Alps appeared quite colossal. But, to me, the Rockies are more interesting. The Alps are mere jagged peaks above the timber line," states Morden. Their principal industry is tourists. The party spent five days here; they did little except rest.

Then they went through the length of Austria to Vienna, down the Danube to Budapest. At Budapest they remained for two weeks attending the Scout jamboree held at one-hour's ride from the city.

The principal purpose of the jamboree was to exchange scouting ideas the world over and try to further promote world wide peace and brotherhood. Representing 37 different nations, there were 20,000 boys here who used their own typical methods of camping to illustrate their section of the country.

The first Sunday in camp, 110,000 people visited the jamboree. On an average day there were never less than 25,000 visitors.

There were 400 American boys at the jamboree and they were quite a curiosity in central Europe. They proved to be more of a sensation than curiosity in their uniforms and red kerchiefs, which they wore all of the time, for this is the sign of communism in Europe. Dinner and dancing were the most popular entertainments, where many colorful and beautiful costumes were seen.

Morden asserts that one finds lack of knowledge of languages the greatest barrier in attempting to discuss topics. In Europe national feeling is so strong that if one is going to say anything, it must be a compliment to another country, so that nothing constructive can be accomplished. "I learned that fellows are the same the world over."

On the return trip he visited Venice, Florence, Rome, and Naples, then out through the Mediterranean to New York. Italy was one of the busiest countries in Europe. Under Mussolini's program they were excavating ruins, repairing buildings, and building streets.

Morden spent several days in New York and Washington and saw the World's fair at Chicago.

Libe Worker Talks to Class In Orientation

Use of Card Catalogs and Indexes Explained

Data Available in Collected Form To Students Interested In Any Subject

Valuable suggestions on how to get the most out of the library were given Thursday at the weekly orientation lecture for freshman women. Miss Lenore Casford, periodical librarian, explained the use of the many catalogs and indexes provided by the library for the convenience of the students, and mentioned sources of material for themes and term papers.

A little-known department of the library is the periodical section, where nearly 2,000 magazines and periodicals containing the last word on every subject may be found. These cannot be taken out of the library, but are on open shelves in the reading room. Students may find information on any subject by looking in the card-ex, which is an index of subjects and authors in recent publications, or in "Poole's Index of English and American Magazines," which contains data on every magazine from 1802 to about 1900.

Among other collections of data are the reader's guide; the educational index, which deals solely with subjects pertaining to education; the agricultural index; the industrial arts index; the international guide and the newspaper indexes.

Some students, Miss Casford said, go through four years without discovering that besides Comden and the old lib, there are four other libraries on the campus; the library in the museum at Geringer, the law library in Oregon, the business library in Commerce, and the architectural library in the Art building.

Miss Casford added that the student who uses the library is the one most likely to get good grades. If the indexes fail to help, the library assistants will be glad to aid the students in finding their material.

MCDONALD—"Broadway to Hollywood," Alice Brady, Eddie Quillan, Frank Morgan, Madge Evans, Jackie Cooper. Also "Charlie Chan's Greatest Case," Warner Oland, Heather Angel, Sunday, "Night Flight," John and Lionel Barrymore, Helen Hayes, Clark Gable, Robert Montgomery, Myrna Loy, Also "Torch Singer," Claudette Colbert, Ricardo Cortez, Lyda Roberti, David Manners.

COLONIAL—"The Nuisance," Lee Tracy, Madge Evans, Frank Morgan. Also, "I Love That Man," Nancy Carroll, Edmund Lowe, Lew Cody, Sunday, "Perfect Understanding," Gloria Swanson.

SILVER SCREEN WINS

Be it known that "Broadway to Hollywood," at the Mac, is recommended. It is the drama of three generations on the stage, the third finding success on the screen. A kid named Mickey Rooney does some unbelievably fast tap dancing, and makes Jackie Cooper's acting look very artificial.

Touch of humor and a hint of success at the end of "Charlie Chan's Greatest Case"; his removal of the ever-present safety lock from the tire of a brand new Ford 8.

Sportlight by Rice called "How to be a Champion" is good fare. Ellsworth Vines and a flock of other champs demonstrate.

The hero of "Night Flight," Those present at the meeting were Mrs. E. R. Knollin, Mrs. Max Koehler, Mrs. O. Mickelson, Mrs. Harry Schenk, Mrs. Kenneth Rodgers, Miss Bernice Morris, Miss Bernice Treanor, Miss Mary Garrison, Miss Mary Bennett and the hostess. The group is planning to give a supper for the pledges of the active chapter on Sunday, November 5.

The next meeting of this group will come November 7.

which comes Sunday to the Mac, really is John Barrymore and not the fliers as one might expect, says the critic in Time. The story concerns a trans-Andean air line in South America, and the teaser wonders whether the fliers or the wives and sweethearts who wait at home, are the heroes.

Claudette Colbert, who has the title role in "Torch Singer," should put it over pretty well. Publicity informs us that Claudette really does sing. Songs are, "Don't Be a Crybaby," "It's a Long, Dark Night," "Give Me Liberty, or Give Me Love," and another which Claudette doesn't sing, "Mimi Was a Good Girl."

My Man Story "I Love That Man," which is playing with "The Nuisance" at the Colonial, is that story about a nice girl who falls for a confidence man. When she finds it all out, does she leave him? No, she smiles and sticks around.

But the best thing is that she tricks him into being an honest and wealthy man. It all ends up with an attempted bank robbery and shooting.

"The Nuisance" is good Lee Tracy stuff. He wise-cracks and talks through his nose, and smacks the girls' legs like a veteran. In this one he's a shyster lawyer getting even with what he terms "the soulless corporation."

Sunday the Colonial has Gloria Swanson's English-made picture, "Perfect Understanding." Her husband, Michael Farmer, is in it. Story about a girl and fellow who make an agreement to be independent, though married.

Complications could arise from such a situation.

I keep coming back to that word "balanced" on the back of the Chesterfield package

YOU often hear the word balance—something is out of balance—top-heavy, not on an "even keel."

What you read, "Chesterfield Cigarettes are a balanced blend," means that the right amounts of the right kinds of tobacco are welded together; that is, home-grown tobaccos, the right kind, the right quantity—are blended and cross-blended with tobaccos from Turkey and Greece.

When these tobaccos are balanced one against the other, then you have a mild cigarette.

When they are in balance, then you have a better-tasting cigarette.

May we ask you to read again the statement on the back of the Chesterfield package? May we ask you to try Chesterfield?
