Utes in Town Today; Doc Spears Has Mix With Press and Loses

THOSE Utes will be on hand to-day in all their war dress. It has evidently been leaking out of the Willamette valley that Prink Callison and his Webfoots aren't taking the Rocky Mountain aggregation too seriously, and are those Redmen burnt up about it! They very seldom get heated over anything up in the high country, but when they do, things are bound to happen.

The reason for the Indians' usual passive spirit as regards football is that, in their own neighborhood, they are the king pins and it's not much trouble to walk right through anything the states of Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, or Nevada have to offer. On the other hand, when they travel westward to play a Coast team, they expect to be beaten. That is, they have expected to be beaten until this time.

Armstrong and his braves have decided that it is about time to show that Mountain football is just as good as Pacific Coast football, and they would like nothing better than to work this demonstration on Callison's Lemon and Yellow. They will outweigh us, but can they outfight us?

What's this we hear from the great mid-west? The Good Doctor Clarence W. Spears is still managing to keep himself in the headlines despite the fact that his Wisconsin Badgers are nesting at the bottom of the Big Ten standings.

"Scribes, steer clear of Spears." That is the cry of all mid-west sports writers, for the "big, bad doctor," at a recent "homecoming" game at the University of Illinois, smacked down a newspaper cameraman who was attempting to get a shot of him, and then proceeded to dropkick the battered gentleman's high-priced camera.

The cameraman out of whom the ex-Oregon mentor made a punching bag happened to be an employee of a large Milwaukee newspaper. The Milwaukee papers are to Wisconsin what the Portland papers are to Oregon and the "beer town" scribes immediately began to make Wisconsin a very uncomfortable spot for the portly Doctor.

Quoting from a Milwaukee paper:

"What a fine example of control and sound judgment this tantrum must have been to his squad on the bench and his team on the field. Is he the exemplar of Wisconsin youth which one in his position is supposed to be?"

"If the Doctor is still with Wisconsin next year, and if he wants to be certain of winning one contest, we suggest that he schedule a game with Photographer Sullivan (the mistreated cameraman). There is only one of him, and he weighs but 115 pounds."

Temple and Parke Out of Utah Contest

Webfoots' Victory Hopes Take Decided Drop

Terjeson and Milligan Will Start; Utes Will Hold Workout on Hayward Field

With Co-captain Mark Temple, fleet footed back, and Bobby Parke, sensational punter, definitely out of the Utah game due to injuries sustained in the Bruin tilt last Saturday betting odds on the Webfoots have dropped to a low ebb.

Until this announcement was made yesterday by Colonel Bill Hayward, trainer, the local eleven had been heavy favorites to take the Redskins by two or three touchdowns, but with Callison's two key men out it appears that the Duck running attack will be greatly weakened. The brilliant kicking of Parke will be greatly missed especially if the elements bring the usual downpour of rain, which will slow down the powerful Oregon offensive attack and the team with the best kicker will undoubtedly be a deciding factor in the outcome of the game.

Terjeson to Start
 Ralph Terjeson, husky 195-pound one-year veteran, will start in the place of Parke. "Terje" is a great blocker and next to Mikulak is probably the hardest tackler on the squad. His added weight is useful in line plunging plays, with "Terje" leading Mikulak through the holes. These two working together remind one of the famous Fleishacker-Hoffman line plunging combination of Stanford a few years back.

John "Stew" Milligan, who is gathering considerable reputation as a place kicker, will fill Temple's place at left half. "Stew" will also do the kicking for the Ducks. Last year as the star of the frosh eleven the local boy proved himself to be a great kicker on a wet field. Maury Van Vliet, 145-pound w. field, will most probably alternate with Milligan at Temple's post.

Kramer Key Man
 The Utes have a powerful backfield with Sid Kramer leading the list. Kramer is a 190-pound sophomore who is the key man of the Armstrong offense. Utah papers are already playing up this flashy halfback for all-conference honors.

Aldo Richins, all-conference fullback last year who leads the Rocky Mountain scoring list with 37 points in his credit will hold down the line punching position for the Indians.

Either Glenn Arnett or Bill Cowley, claimed by Utah fans to be a second Brick Muller in the art of passing, will call signals. Kean Westphal, star blocking back, will hold down the other halfback.

Here is Utah's record this far this season:
 Utah 61, Montana State 0.
 Utah 0, U.C.L.A. 21.
 Utah 21, Brigham Young 0.
 Utah 14, Utah Aggies 6.
 Coach Armstrong and his grid warriors will arrive here at noon on the train and will work out on Hayward field at 3 p. m.

Will the Redskins Bite the Dust?

Here are three members of the Armstrong's University of Utah eleven that will meet Oregon's Webfoots Saturday on Hayward field. From the left, they are: Joe Rinald, halfback; Marvin Pugh, guard; and Hardin Crutchfield, tackle. They'll be gunning to stop the Ducks' winning streak. (Journal cut)

Duck Eleven Mentioned for National Championship Tilt

Prink Callison's Oregon eleven is being considered for a post-season game between two of the leading grid teams in the country to be held Dec. 9 at Soldiers Field in Chicago.

A group of former college men in the East have formed an organization there known as "The National Football Championship Committee." With executive headquarters in Chicago these men plan to have a committee of eastern sports writers pick the rival teams.

"The idea behind the game is to decide the national championship each year by picking the two leading teams in the country of outstanding merit and having them play following the regular season," said Col. John B. Reynolds, chairman of the group. Reynolds also pointed out that the game would not be run as a

Oregon Coaches Still Opponents

Reviving an old college football rivalry, Captain John McEwan, Webfoot coach from 1925 to 1929, and Paul Schissler, late Beaver mentor, are now opposing each other as coaches of rival teams in professional football.

Cap has a one game edge over Schissler as a result of last Sunday's tilt when his Brooklyn Dodgers beat Paul's Chicago Cards, 7 to 0.

The former Duck leader has also had better luck in his other conference games with three victories to only one for Schissler.

Princeton, Dartmouth and Colgate; Minnesota, Purdue, and Duke, were also considered in the running for the selection.

"The National Football Championship Committee" will be a permanent organization, according to present plans. Charity is to share in the proceeds of the contests, latest announcements stated.

Baby Boy Named For Leighton Gee By Fond Parents

Leighton Gee, Oregon's slippery halfback, has a secret.

On returning Monday morning from Los Angeles and the U.C.L.A. game, Gee found a letter waiting for him.

"We hope our son will some day play football for Oregon, too," read the note, "therefore we are naming him for you."

Gee refused to give the name of the family, or where the letter came from. Somewhere there is a gurgling Leighton Gee Smith, or Leighton Gee Jones bouncing in the cradle.

Bears Favorites Over Uclan Team In Saturday Tilt

California Out to Gain First Coast Conference Victory; Ransome and Meek in Suit

BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 2.—(Special)—Bill Ingram and 35 fighting Bears will leave Berkeley tonight for Los Angeles, where California battles its southern sister, U.C.L.A.

The squad tapered off with a light scrimmage, and appeared to be in good condition. All members came through the U.S.C. tilt with no serious injuries. The Bears will have the services of Dave Meek and Captain Johnny Ransome, who have been out since the Santa Clara game. Meek is a fine pass receiver, and is expected to aid the aerial offensive of the Bears. Ingram considers Ransome to be the best defensive tackle on the Coast, so the Berkeley boys should be at their greatest strength.

This will be the third conference start of the season for the Bears, who as yet have not chalked up a win. As U.C.L.A. will be without the services of Captain Lee Coates and Phil Nordli, centers, the Bears have been installed as slight favorites. Although the game does not involve much in the way of conference standings, it should develop into a great battle, and Navy Bill is making no optimistic predictions as to the outcome.

Fijis Beaten by S.P.E. Quintet In Hoop Game

Betas Almost Upset by S.A.E. Team

All Contests on Yesterday's Slate Rough Affairs; Lindgren and Dickson Star

Monday's Basketball Schedule
 4:00 Omega Hall "A" vs. Sigma Nu "A."
 4:40 Sigma Alpha Mu "A" vs. Yeomen "A."
 5:20 Beta Theta Pi "E" vs. Sigma Nu "B."

Led by Arnie Lindgren, who tossed in four field goals during the course of the afternoon, a powerful S.P.E. team downed Phi Gamma Delta 20 to 8. In the other two events, Beta Theta Pi won a 20 to 13 victory over Sigma Alpha Epsilon, while Kappa Sigma trimmed Delta Tau Delta 19-6.

The Sigma Phi Epsilon-Fiji game almost got out of the hands of Mickey Vail, the referee in the second half. After Rourke of the Fijis had successfully blocked Lindgren, S.P.E. center, he immediately countered with a flying tackle to prevent an almost certain Fiji score. Casey, diminutive forward had also displayed some fine football tactics in the first half.

Freddie Lieuallen teamed with Doug Ward almost upset the championship hopes of the Betas, when they gathered 13 points for S.A.E. The brilliant play of Jones, giant center, saved the game for the Betas. Siegmund spent most of his time on the floor, as he was constantly falling down.

The Kappa Sig-Delt affair was another rough and ragged tussle. Dickson, Kappa Sig substitute forward, looped in eight points to take the scoring honors in this contest.
