Admission to Game Asked by Medical School

Attendance as Regular Students Sought

PETITION IS SIGNED

Graduate Manager's Office States Medical Students Do Not Pay Regular ASUO Fees

The University of Oregon medical school yesterday petitioned the graduate managers of Oregon and Oregon State to allow medical students the usual student privileges at Saturday's game, claiming that medical students are an integral part of the University student body.

The complete petition signed by 84 students of the school follows: "In view of the obvious fact that we here at the University of Oregon medical school who are duly and legally enrolled as students of the University under the Oregon state system of higher education, we the undersigned do hereby petition the graduate managers of the University and Oregon State College, namely Hugh E. Rosson and Carl Lodell, for student body recognition in the form of admission to the Oregon rooster section at the game to be played in Portland November 11, 1933, between the University and the College, for a due and reasonable consideration.

"We feel entitled to this privilege because we were given it in the many years past and this year were allowed to go under the same impression regarding this year's game until this late date. Also the opportunity for the purchase of suitable reserved seats has been allowed to pass due to the late notice which has set us aside. We therefore feel entitled to a consideration."

Copies of this petition were sent to the University and Oregon State college.

In commenting on the petition, the graduate manager's office said that the medical students do not pay the regular A. S. U. O. membership fee.

For the time being at least there are reserved seat tickets available at the graduate manager's office.

Frances Brockman's Violin Recital Enjoyed by Audience

By GUY WERNHAM
Frances Brockman, accompanied by Theresa Kelly, was heard in a recital of violin music Monday night at the music auditorium. She played to a large and enthusiastic audience.

The program was divided into three parts, of which the first, Handel's well known sonata for violin and piano, was decidedly the highlight of the evening. Miss Brockman's performance was characterized by that technical facility and musical understanding for which she has already been so frequently applauded. Furthermore, her rendering of the slow movements of the sonata was refreshingly devoid of sentimentality. The second number was the first movement of the Tchaikowsky violin concerto. Both Miss Brockman and Miss Kelly gave an admirable performance of this somewhat melodramatic composition. The bravura passages of the cadenza (somewhat over-long, dare we suggest?) presented no difficulties to Miss Brockman. But both performers seemed to be a little breathless when it was all over.

The third group consisted more or less of novelty numbers; Kreisler's arrangement of Cartier's "La Chasse," a little tour-de-force of double-stopping; "Air Pensif," a melodious romance composed by John Stark Evans, professor of organ at the school of music; "Little

230 Additional Student Names Put on Petition

Demand for Resignation Of Nelson Increases

TOTAL IS UP TO 1250

Committee of 50 Prepares to Send Signatures to Governor, Board Members

A total of 230 student names yesterday was added to the petition first circulated over the campus Monday asking Roscoe C. Nelson to resign as chairman of the Oregon state board of higher education. These additional signatures and the total Monday of more than 1000 names brought the number of University student protestors against Nelson's statements to more than 1250.

The committee of 50 named Monday by Tom Tongue, president of the student body, met yesterday afternoon to consider future action and to arrange for preparing the petitions for presentation to Governor Meier and members of the state board of higher education.

Reasons Stressed
Tongue emphasized the fact that this group was formed without any thought of the revival of a feud with Oregon State students. He declared that the two reasons for the creation of the committee should be emphasized.

The first of these is to inform students of the University of all the events leading up to the present crisis so that they will have an understanding of the problems now facing them and to keep them informed about the progress of events.

The second objective is to provide the leadership so necessary at this time in order to prevent unwarranted outbreaks that would reflect discredit on higher education and to ask that expressions of students' opinion be made only after careful and level-headed consideration of the issues involved.

Investigation Due
In a meeting of the directors of the Eugene chamber of commerce yesterday, to determine its policy in the present University controversy, Stanley Stevenson, president of the board of directors, appointed a committee to investigate the responsibility of the chamber in the selection of Dr. W. J. Kerr as chancellor of Oregon higher education. No agreement was reached on the policy to be followed.

Tongue announced the personnel of the Committee of 50 in full last night. He is chairman of the group, and Jean Failing is secretary. Members of the executive committee are Sterling Green, Jack Cate, Otto Vonderheit, Dick Near, and Glen Hieber.

Members Named

Twenty-five Cent Late Fee Starts for Failure In Paying Installment

All students, unless they had an extension, must pay the 25-cent per day late payment fee if they failed to pay their final payment on the registration fee last Saturday.

University regulations provide that any student who does not turn in his final payment by November 13 will be automatically suspended from the University and may be reinstated only by payment of the fees and penalties due with an additional penalty of $2 for reinstatement.

Chairman Declares 'Single Course Open To Me' in Statement

Portland Believes New Board President Ready to Resign Position and Expects Formal Action

Reports from Portland late last night gave every indication that Roscoe C. Nelson, newly elected president of the state board of higher education, would soon resign.

The rumors were largely based upon a statement from Nelson ending "but a single course is open to me." This final statement was regarded as indicating his intention.

No formal resignation had as yet been handed to the governor, it was said.

Full text of Nelson's statement follows: "Many have called on me to say 'keep up the good fight' and to advise 'don't resign under fire.'" Nelson said. "But my integrity is not impugned in this matter, so this 'under fire' angle is not an element. The personal abuse, added to the tremendous work of the job itself, makes the position on the board quite unpleasant. I am not an office holder in the usual sense of the term, so might not be expected to take such abuse and like it. I can never express my gratitude in appreciation to the legion of persons who have called, written, or telephoned to plead for the interest of the state and the University itself, for that matter, with me not to resign.

"Among these are scores of University alumni. I hope when I reach a final decision in what I conceive to be the best public interest, these friends in the same spirit of kindness they have shown now, will believe that I am not actuated by any motive which was fringed with rancor, bitterness, or even resentment, but only a deep and sincere regret. But a single course is open to me."

This latest development was regarded as nearly the closing chapter in the brief history of one of the most tumultuous uprisings in the history of higher education in Oregon. Last Thursday Nelson in addresses on this campus and in Corvallis attacked the portions of the University student body which were antagonistic to the chancellor.

Women Lose Sophistication In Rush for Football Tickets

"Women's tickets for the Oregon-Oregon State football game will be exchanged for student body cards at a booth between Oregon and Commerce buildings beginning Monday morning at 8 a. m."—Emerald.

A quarter of eight! Student body cards waving, women hurrying, means of "No breakfast," and "I have an eight o'clock," Monday morning, as women plunged down the campus to exchange a student body card for a free round-trip to Portland and a ticket to the football game.

Forgetting their college sophistication many a college woman rushed around the person in front of her, and ran for the space between Oregon and Commerce, where the ticket booth should have been. A surging crowd surrounded the spot designated for the booth.

Men stood on the corners laughing at the agitated cries of the football-mad co-eds. As the ridiculousness of the situation dawned on some of the more timid souls, small groups crept away with sheepish looks upon their faces. Behind them a mob, oblivious to the humor of the picture they presented, milled around the spot of the absent booth.

At 8:30 the crowd had dispersed and the ticket booth arrived in silence and dignity. When this news had traveled, 100 women, tackling, blocking, kicking, and straight-arming members of opposite teams, made end-runs and forward passes to make their first down, a small blue ticket.
