

Bryson Makes Retraction on Earlier Reply

Impressions of Facts Are Cited as Erroneous

STATEMENT ISSUED

Press Is Told by Business Man First Answer to Dean Morse Is 'Unfortunate'

E. R. Bryson, one of the five Eugene business men charged by Dean Wayne L. Morse of the law school with presuming to speak for the faculty of the University when the chancellor of higher education was selected, issued a prepared statement last night declaring his previous statement that "we spoke for the business men of Eugene" to be "unfortunate in that it gives the impression that I spoke either the united opinion of the Eugene business men or by authority of an organized group, neither of which impressions conforms to the fact."

When Morse spoke at the Homecoming luncheon last Saturday and decried the actions of the five local business men in the matter of the appointment of the chancellor, Bryson was the only one of the five to make a statement. He declared that Morse's attitude was not that of most of the deans and many of the older faculty members.

In a front page editorial Tuesday, "A Reply to Mr. Bryson," the Emerald pointed out that "the majority of Eugene's business men were not even consulted when the group (of five men) expressed itself as favoring Dr. Kerr and that a majority of Eugene's business men were not in favor of Dr. Kerr's selection at that time." The Emerald cited a survey in support of its contention.

Bryson's statement of last night in full follows:

"In an interview which I gave to the Portland Oregonian published in its issue of Monday, November 6, 1933, in response to a statement of Dean Morse that a certain group of business men named by him and of which I was one, presumed to speak for the University faculty before the state board of higher education with reference to the appointment of Dr. Kerr as chancellor, I made the statement that the group in question 'spoke for the business men of Eugene and many of its citizens and a large and prominent group of University alumni who felt that Dr. Kerr's appointment was in the interests of the state.'"

"I am frank to say that the statement that we 'spoke for the business men of Eugene' was unfortunate in that it gives the impression that we spoke either the united opinion of the Eugene business men or by authority of an organized group, neither of which impressions conforms to the fact. The individual action of the group in question taken at that time was taken after consultation with numbers of Eugene's leading business men and citizens, some of whom were opposed to our action but the great majority of whom as I thought approved of our course."

"I regret the use of language in the interview referred to calculated to give an erroneous impression of the facts."

(Signed) E. R. BRYSON."

Group Will Study Effect of Fuss on Law School Here

Association to Investigate Higher Educational Controversy; Morse Cooperates

Word reached Eugene yesterday that the Association of American Law Schools had directed that an investigation be made of the controversy in higher education in Oregon and to determine its effect on the standing of the law school.

Dean Harold Shepherd of the University of Washington school of law has been appointed to conduct the investigation and report to the association.

Wayne L. Morse, dean of the University law school, said last night, "I welcome the investigation and shall endeavor to assist Dean Shepherd in every way. The investigation ordered by the association is indicative of the fact that the association is aware that conditions in higher education in Oregon warrant attention, in order to make certain no injustice is done to those who are devoting their lives to the teaching of law."

Portland Meet Of State Board Due Tomorrow

Resignation of Nelson to Be Discussed

SESSION IS INFORMAL

Successor to Portland Attorney Yet to Be Named as Meier Maintains Silence

At a late hour last night, the Oregon state board of higher education was still without a new member to replace Roscoe C. Nelson, Portland attorney who resigned as president of the group Wednesday.

Reports from Portland indicated that Governor Meier yesterday had not yet decided when Nelson's successor would be named or who the appointee would be.

The board will meet in Portland tomorrow to discuss the unsettled problems faced by higher education and review the circumstances surrounding the resignation of Nelson. The session will be an informal one, since the next regularly scheduled meeting will be held next month.

The group will probably also confer on the demand made Wednesday by Dean Wayne L. Morse of the law school that Chancellor W. J. Kerr resign from his position as head of the Oregon higher educational system. Morse made his suggestion immediately after Nelson had tendered his resignation to the governor.

Morse stated yesterday, "I wish to make it perfectly clear that in suggesting that Dr. Kerr resign in order to promote the best interests of higher education, I spoke in my individual capacity. In view of the fact that I had become involved in a vital controversy, I felt under obligation to all friends of higher education to state the real issue frankly. I have no intention of embarrassing the board. I am pleased to note that large numbers of citizens appreciate the fact that I have confined my remarks to the basic issues involved."

Class Identity Will Be Determined by Terms in School

Constitutional Revision Committee Adopts Arbitrary Schedule For Voting Privileges

The constitutional revision committee, meeting yesterday in its third formal session, decided that class identity for the exercise of voting privileges shall be determined by the number of terms spent in attendance at the University.

Under the new plan, students will be permitted to vote with the sophomore class for junior officers if they have been enrolled in school two terms in any previous year. To vote with the junior class for senior officers, students shall have been in school at least two terms in any two preceding years. To participate in senior class activities a student must have been enrolled seven terms in any three preceding years.

Under the new plan, students transferring to the University from elsewhere will fall under the same rules as prevail here; however, if their former school used the semester system, it was decided to permit one semester to equal two University terms, and two semesters to equal three University terms.

The formation of a class identity board was considered, the board to consist of the vice-president of the student body, all class presidents, and a member of the University scholarship committee appointed by the A.S.U.O. vice-president.

Prejudice Against Women At Oxford Gradually Fades

By VELMA MCINTYRE

Women and grades take a back seat at Oxford, so our Rhodes scholars find themselves in a foreign environment in more ways than one. This statement may lead to false illusions, however, and an explanation is in order.

The student at Oxford is not worried about grades, but an observing tutor more than makes up for this delinquency of mental strain. Each student carries on his work under supervision of a personal tutor whose requirements excel any worries ever known to be incurred by grades.

Women at Oxford aren't particularly popular—with the old-time Dominies at least. The prejudice against women in affairs has been broken down slowly, and 1920 was the dawn of a new era for them at Oxford. This was the first year degrees were given to women and along roads leading to the university came women, young women, middle-aged women and old women, some of them so old and feeble that the assistance of a cane was their only insurance for securing the degrees received in the 18—.

Luton Ackerson was the first Rhodes scholar from the University of Oregon. He was selected from the class of 1916.

Dr. Noble Shows Languages Need In Oriental Trade

History Professor Speaks Before Honorary; Russian Recognition Declared Timely

Dr. Harold J. Noble, associate professor of history, who spoke last night at a meeting of Pan Xenia, foreign trade honorary, told the group that his experience in the orient had convinced him that any man who planned to go into trade there should know something about the languages. Chinese and Japanese, especially Chinese, according to Dr. Noble, are easily and quickly learned. Although they can be "picked up" with ease after a man arrives in the Orient, a foreknowledge of these languages is of great advantage.

Dialects are so numerous that 10 miles on any side of Shanghai, a resident of that city can not be understood. The written language, however, is very well known and fairly uniform, so that much conversation is carried through what is known as writing on the hand. This is done by drawing the characters on the palm of one hand with the fingers of the other, and the eye of the observer must be trained to follow these swift motions.

Dr. Noble believes that President Roosevelt's move toward recognizing Russia is very timely. This decision should have been made several years ago, he stated. Since this arrangement was made with Russia, Japan has ceased hostilities toward her almost entirely.

Starting Lineup Announced for Saturday Game

Hard Practice Session Is Held Last Night

TEAM GOES AT 12:20

Temple Plays Last Game Against Orangemen; OSC Base Hopes On Franklin Tomorrow

The conference-leading Oregon eleven held a long drill session on Hayward field last night in preparation for the annual "civil war" battle with Oregon State in Portland's Multnomah stadium tomorrow afternoon.

Coach Prink Callison announced the starting lineup for the contest after practice last night. The 11 Ducks who will be in the game at the opening whistle are Butch Morse and Bud Pozzo at the flank positions, Alex Eagle and Gardner Frye at tackle, Bree Cuppoletti and Dutch Clark at the guard posts, Bernie Hughes at center, and the versatile backfield combination of Bobby Parke, Mark Temple, Leighton Gee, and Mike Mikulak.

Traveling Squad Picked
Callison at the same time named the traveling squad, which will leave for the northern city at 12:20 p. m. today. Besides the 11 starters, the following men will travel to Portland: Chuck Swanson, Roy Gagnon, Con Furry, Hugh McCredie, Chuck Bishop, Buff Nilsson, Dwight Nielsen, Dick Benison, Chuck Wishard, Budd Jones, Ned Simpson, Verne Whitaker, Mason McCoy, Ralph Terjeson, Whit Arey, Stew Milligan, Maury Van Vliet, Frank Michak, Pep Pepelnjak, Howard Bobbit, and Jack Rushlow.

Place Kickers Practice
The Duck coach is taking no chance on losing the game by a one-point margin. He had Milligan and Gagnon, place-kick specialists, drilling on their specialty last night.

Temple, who will be playing for the third and last time against the Orangemen, will captain the Oregon eleven. Last year Temple's 65-yard run through the mud at Corvallis gave the Webfeet a victory over the Staters.

The team will be accompanied by Coaches Callison and Kitzmiller, Trainers Bill Hayward and Bob Officer, and Student Managers Jim Ferguson and Paul Golden. A light workout is slated this morning. The squad will arrive in Portland at 4:15 p. m. and headquarters will be at the Waverly country club.

Officials for the game were announced yesterday by Herb Dana, Pacific Coast conference head official. Wade Williams will referee, Mike Moran will be the umpire, Tom Shea will handle the head linesman's job, and Eldon Jenne will be field judge. All are from Portland.

Autogiro Expert To Speak Tuesday

Colonel W. T. Campbell, who was scheduled to speak at Villard hall last night, was detained by fog and was unable to reach Eugene. He will speak here Tuesday, November 14.

University Alums Schedule Dance On Armistice Day

Committee Makes Arrangements For Revival of Memories Of College Days

As an end to an exciting day in Portland—a day punctuated by rallies and football cheers—the University of Oregon alumni have scheduled a dance for the night of Armistice Day in the Masonic temple in Portland.

The dance, arranged by a committee of alumni under the direction of Jack Benefiel, ex-graduate manager at Eugene, will be a revival of college days for those who now have only memories. Portland alumni have issued a blanket invitation to all the undergraduate students in Eugene.

The affair will be informal and many now-famous products of the University of Oregon will be in attendance. Governor Meier, Senator Frederick Steiwer, Senator Charles L. McNary, Mayor Joseph K. Carson and other prominent alumni have been invited.

Music and features from Eugene will be combined with Portland talent to fill out the evening entertainment. The committee announced, Sherwood Burr's orchestra will provide the dance music.

Assisting Mr. Benefiel in the general arrangements for the dance is Paul Hunt. Mrs. Lamar Tooze is in charge of the patrons while a committee, headed by Henryetta Lawrence, has been appointed to supervise the reception. Mrs. Esther Maegly Justice, Mrs. Augusta Gerlinger Kitzmiller and Jack Meier will assist Miss Lawrence.
