Morse Tells Students to Curb Emotions

Other Speaks at Rally Meeting Ask Preservation of Fine Spirit of This Year

"Tomorrow large numbers of this great student body will be guests of the city of Portland. It is certain your host will provide you with thrilling and exciting entertainment. Loyal students of the state college will also be guests at the party. I am confident that it is unnecessary for me, even as a Dutch uncle, to make any suggestion as to your party manners. I wish only to call attention to a social form recognized by all—as a guest one does not argue with other guests at the same party, nor break the host's furniture.

"The welfare of higher education in Oregon is so important, the controversies over it are so intense, that in all sincerity I wish to plead with you students to demonstrate to the people of Oregon tomorrow that intellect can master emotion.

"In my Dad's day speech I said that the function of a university is to train men and women to rise above the ranks. I said, also, that the depression has sent to us more serious-minded young men and women—students more conscious of the fact that they must rise above the ranks if they are to fulfill their obligations and pay their debts to the people of the state who support the institution that gives them the advantage of higher education. I have confidence that I did not overstate my case.

"I charge you not to forget tomorrow, whether we win, lose, or draw in that football game—and I think and hope that it will be a win—that the reputation of the student body of the University of Oregon will be determined in the minds of many by your conduct as guests of Portland.

Anyone is eligible to enter the contest and the writer may develop any aspect of the subject. The choice of form is left to the poet.

The management is not responsible for the return of manuscripts. The judges will be John Erskine, George S. Hellman, Fanny Hurst, and Mary Siegrist.

Gift Keeps University File of 'The Auk' Intact

In order that the file of "The Auk," an ornithological journal, may remain complete, the Oregon Audubon society recently sent a check to cover a year's subscription for the magazine to the University library.

This library apparently has the only complete file of "The Auk" in Oregon, but this year was obliged to discontinue its subscription owing to the reduced appropriations for periodicals.

Since the magazine was first published in 1876, a complete file is considered quite valuable by the Audubon society, and the group expressed its wish to preserve the entire set by donating the subscription to the library.

Taxation Will Be Topic For Women's Debate

"Taxation" was finally decided upon to be the subject for debate this year, by the women's debate team during its meeting Thursday in Friendly hall. The present school situation will be especially concentrated upon. The main phases of the question were thoroughly outlined for the group.

Inner regions of the library are in the process of being kalsomined. The cataloging office, the order department, and the librarian's office are all to have their walls renovated. Departments open to the public were redecorated last summer.

25 000-Ticket Sell-Out Assures Full Stadium For Today's Grid Tilt

The Oregon-Oregon State college game is a complete sell-out, announced Tom Stoddard, assistant graduate manager, yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock.

A total of 25,000 tickets had been sold, and Multnomah stadium will be packed with fans—sun, rain, or snow.

Debate Squad to Feature Program Of Social Bureau

Community Service Will Present Discussions Before Forty Social Gatherings

Symposium debates staged by the men's debate squad will feature the programs that the University's bureau of community service will present this winter before approximately 40 communities of Lane, Polk, Benton, Douglas, and Linn counties, according to an announcement made yesterday by Dr. Philip A. Parsons, professor of sociology and director of the bureau of community service.

According to the plans, the debate squad, consisting of 20 members, will be divided into four groups, each of which will make 10 of the scheduled appearances.

The proposed programs, besides the symposium debate on some question of interest to the various communities, will include an illustration of parliamentary procedure, also by the debaters, musical numbers by students of the music school, readings, and other forms of entertainment. The bureau, in cooperation with the dramatic department, will also present a play to a number of the larger communities.

Puppet 'Gaieties' To Show Monday

Joan Crawford and Clark Gable fox-trotting together, Marie Dressler at the piano, and Greta Garbo waltzing on roller skates—Hollywood? No—the "Puppet Gaieties of '33," a musical revue with marionettes to be presented in the auditorium of Eugene high school November 13.

A reproduction of the Olvera Street show, this traveling theater is making its first American tour. These famous puppeteers made a short for Paramount and manipulated the dancing shoes in Janet Gaynor's picture, "Adorable."

The dolls are carved to look like the characters they represent and are from 24 to 30 inches high.

The "Gaieties" are under the sponsorship of the high school girls' league. There will be a matinee for high school students at 2 p. m. and a show at 8 p. m. for the general public.
