

Campus Takes Vacation After O.S.C. Triumph

McArthur Court Is Scene Of Rally Dance

BELL MAKES DEBUT

Tongue Voice Praise of Support Given Gridders and Lauds Student Conduct

All University students and professors enjoyed a vacation yesterday as a result of the Webfoots' win over the Oregon State Beavers Saturday. Promises which had been made previous to the game that there would be no classes Monday should the Oregon squad prove victorious, were fulfilled by the administration after the "battle of the century" at Multnomah stadium in Portland between the Green and Orange teams.

To celebrate the event a rally was held at McArthur court at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when a large crowd of students gathered for a program of yells and songs, led by Mickey Vail, cheer king.

Tom Tongue, student body president, thanked the students of the University who attended the game in Portland, for the manner in which they cooperated with the rally committee and the cheer squad, and especially praised them for their attitude while in the city and at the game. Very few disturbances detrimental to the reputation of the University were recorded, Tongue stated, and the sportsmanlike conduct of the rooters did much toward giving the University a fine name.

The "victory bell," first introduced between the halves at the game, was exhibited. It made its debut heralding the Webfoot triumph over the Orangemen.

The proceeds from the dance which followed the rally were used to pay for the bell, which will ring lustily when the Webfoots chalk up further victories. Art Holman's band furnished the music for the dance, which was sponsored by the rally committee and lasted from 2 until 5 o'clock.

Victory Bell New Oregon Tradition

A new Oregon tradition—the Victory bell—was inaugurated at Saturday's big game in Portland. The bell was the gift of Aaron Frank, Portland business man. For protection from expected Beaver forays, the bell is being kept under lock and key at the Phi Delta house.

On a huge Webfoot float, the bell was driven about the football field between halves Saturday afternoon. Monday morning its lusty tones rang out as it was transported across the campus to the victory rally. The bell weighs 80 pounds, and it is decorated with green ducks on a yellow background.

Sartorial Splendor to Make Webfoots Socially Correct

By PAULA REVERE
Noted Gridiron Costume Designer
Superstitions or no superstitions, Oregon's championship headed football team will trot out on the green turf of the L. A. Memorial coliseum next Saturday afternoon clad in brand new uniforms—uniforms that will not in the least resemble the drab, conventional garb worn by previous Webfoot elevens.

The new equipment will consist of pants and jerseys of the latest style. The jerseys will be of light weight wool, Kelly green in color, and with lemon-yellow arm bands. They will have numerals on the front as well as on the back. The pants are to be made of satin—old gold satin to boot—and will have green elastic webbing up the back of each leg. There was some talk of having the helmets painted gold, too, but these rumors have not been confirmed.

How did this change come about? Well, bright and early (maybe not so bright, but early just the same) yesterday morning, a group of the more prominent football stars, headed by the "dark and handsome" Anselmo Leonardo

Report Prevalent Chancellor Kerr Asked to Resign

Willard Marks, Vice-President of State Board, Said to Have Made Demand

Reports were prevalent in Portland during the past weekend that Willard L. Marks, vice-president of the board of higher education, in conferring with Chancellor Kerr, suggested that the chancellor resign in order to ease the difficult situation facing higher education in the state. Neither would confirm the statement.

The board is still without a new member to replace Roscoe C. Nelson, Portland attorney, who resigned from the presidency of the group last week. Governor Meier is reported to be delaying the appointment of a new member because he is experiencing difficulty in finding a person of the right caliber willing to wade into the troubled waters of higher education.

The crisis in higher education precipitated by demands of Wayne L. Morse of the University law school that Kerr resign remained in the status quo during the weekend.

Board members, the chancellor, and persons interested in the educational problem gathered at various impromptu conferences after the Oregon-Oregon State football game Saturday, but results of these sessions were not announced to the press.

Predictions are made that the special legislative session to convene next week will consider radical proposals unless the education board begins clearing away the numerous problems facing it.

University Band Gives Perfect Performance

In playing for two rallies, a football game, and an Armistice day parade, the University band performed perfectly, according to John Steha, director.

Owing to their strenuous program, all the band members, whether they lived in Portland or not, were required to stay at the Danmore hotel over the Friday night preceding the Oregon State football game. Their meals were served at the Portland hotel.

Stern Webfoot Competition Last Saturday

These four first-string Oregon State backfield men caused plenty of trouble for Prink Callison's Ducks at Portland Saturday, although the undefeated Oregon eleven beat the Beavers, 13 to 3. Pierre Bowman, right halfback (upper left), did some wonderful blocking and was a stalwart on defense. Norman Franklin, right half (upper right), made several sparkling runs during the game and punted and passed in spectacular manner. Hal Pangle, quarterback (lower left), called signals in faultless style. Hal Joslin, fullback (lower right), performed well offensively and defensively. This quartet and a squad of other Orangemen will display their football talent in New York Saturday against the strong Fordham Rams.

Entertainers for Community Work Sought in Appeal

Dr. Parsons Asks for Volunteers To Take Part in Programs; Plans Take Shape

A call for volunteers who can sing, play any musical instrument, act, or entertain in any other way was issued yesterday by Dr. P. A. Parsons, who is now organizing a program of community service for more than 100 community clubs of Lane, Linn, Benton, Marion, Polk, and Douglas counties.

Already Mr. Parsons has obtained the cooperation of John L. Casteel, head of the speech department, who has organized four teams of five men each; the school of music which is offering vocal and instrumental talent; the dramatics department; the physical education department; the Westminster club and other organizations. Dr. Parsons feels, however, that there are many students not affiliated with any of these groups who would like to gain the valuable experience assisting in this work will give.

Dr. Parsons' office here will serve as a clearing and booking bureau for the talent. Entire programs for many club gatherings will be organized here, while talent to supplement that on hand at the club will also be provided. Men from the speech division have already arranged to take charge of several meetings and conduct open forums, demonstrate proper procedure for parliamentary meetings, demonstrate debates and public speaking. Many of these programs will be supplemented with music and drama from other University divisions.

The community club program of Oregon, which has been developed by Dr. Parsons and his staff, has attracted the attention of national community work leaders, and this phase of the work is regarded as one of the most important.

Anyone interested may call Dr. Parsons at his office in Friendly hall.

Book on Oregon Issued 50 Years Ago in Germany

New Library Purchase Is Printed in Teutonic Language; One of Series

"Oregon" is the title of a book recently purchased by the library for the Oregon collection. The book is in German and was published in Leipzig in 1883.

Originally the purchase price was only one mark, but many times that sum was paid by the library. Heinrich Semler is the author and the book was written in San Francisco. It is the ninth volume of a series of travel books in German.

Oregon appears to be the second state considered in the series, a book on Wisconsin, volume three, being the only one on the United States that precedes the one on Oregon.

Contents of the book cover every point of general information about the state.

Chapter headings include the German equivalents of the following topics: history, geography, politics, population and cities, climate, natural resources, products, industries and manufacturing, and farming.

A map of the United States is to be found in the back of the book, which otherwise is without illustration.

Variation in Types of Music Featured at Student Recital

Variations in type of music played and in type of instrument was noticed in last night's student recital. Charlotte Cherry, cellist, Madelle Beidler, pianist, Ariene Soasey, soprano, Catherine Mishler, pianist, and Roberta Spicer Moffit were soloists on the program given in the school of music auditorium.

Simple melody beautified by the mellow tones of the cello characterized Sammartini's "Old Italian Love Song." Miss Cherry's first number. Contrasting to this was Gabriel-Marie's blythe "La Cinquantaine" in allegro time.

In Field's "Rondo" played by Miss Beidler, each hand carried a distinct melody, while the two melodies blended harmoniously. "Nachtstucke" by Schumann, was typical of the composer's work, having smooth, flowing rhythm.

Webfoot Team Assured of Tie For Coast Title

Oregon Leading Squad Of Country

WINS NUMBER EIGHT

Stanford and Southern California Need Two Conference Wins To Remain in Race

Oregon's football team is assured of at least a tie for the championship of the Pacific coast conference and can capture the title outright by beating Southern California next Saturday at Los Angeles. A tie game would also assure the Oregonians of the top place.

After the Webfoots defeated the Beavers at Portland Saturday and Stanford upset the Trojans on the same afternoon, Prink Callison's squad can do no worse than tie for the coast title.

The Oregon aggregation at present has four conference wins and a record unmarred by loss or tie. The Indians of Stanford have won two and lost one, while the Trojans have captured two ties, lost one, and tied one. Both these California teams have two coast games to play.

Should Southern California and Stanford each win their two remaining conference contests, their records would stand at four victories and one loss, with the Los Angeles squad's record also containing a tie. If the Trojans lick Oregon, that defeat would give the Ducks a record of four conquests and one setback. At the end of the season, the percentages of the three teams would be .800.

The coast conference does not officially recognize a football champion, reports H. C. Howe, University faculty representative on the group. The top-ranking team is recognized as titlist by newspaper and public opinion.

Wins Needed

Stanford's two remaining games are with Montana next Saturday and with California November 25. The Southern Californians will tangle with Oregon next Saturday and with Jimmy Phelan's Huskies December 9. The Cardinals and Trojans will have to win these tests to clinch a tie for first place in the conference standings.

The Ducks are now the leading team in the country with a record of eight straight victories against no losses or ties. The Oregon team is also the only undefeated club on the coast.

The Webfoots have scored 152 points in their contests and have given up only 17 points, not one of which has been scored through the powerful, fast-charging Duck line.

Army Behind Oregon

Duquesne, which topped the national field the previous week with eight wins, was jolted from its lofty position Saturday by the mighty Panthers of Pittsburgh. In second place among the major unbeaten and untied teams is the Army, which trounced Harvard's Crimson severely Saturday for the seventh straight triumph of the season.

Five other teams are in the race for the mythical national championship — Michigan, Nebraska, Georgia, Duke, and Princeton.

Variation in Types of Music Featured at Student Recital

Opportunity for bringing out the best qualities of her high clear voice was given by Miss Soasey in "Beloved It Is Morn" by Aylward. Here the tempo was andante, and the range wide, varying from the lowest to the highest pitch of a soprano voice.

In contrast to the slow, yet lovely "Fantasia in D-minor" by Mozart, Yon's "Nena," a Spanish fantasia seemed even more brilliant. Including many trills, chords, arpeggios and long runs this number is outstanding on any program.

Concluding the program Roberta Spicer Moffit played Gabriel-Marie's "Lamento," and Squire's "Bouree" and "Tarantelle." In the first number the low tones of cello increased affect of lament. The latter numbers both had interesting tempos and definite swinging rhythm.
