

Postponement Necessary for Students' Meet

Friday Assembly Moved To Monday

WILLIAMS DELAYED

Speaker Will Appear in Gerlinger For Talk on Labor Conditions In Russia, Germany

Whiting Williams, author and lecturer, who was scheduled to speak before a public assembly of students in Gerlinger hall tomorrow morning on the subject of working conditions in Russia and Germany, will not appear until Monday morning at 10 o'clock, it was learned yesterday by Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel. The postponement of the speech was made necessary by difficulties in the speaker's train schedule, according to Onthank.

By donning overalls and hobnailed boots, and working as a common laborer in factories of America and Europe, Williams has gained an insight into the psychology of the worker's mind here and abroad. As vice-president in charge of the personnel of a great steel company, he was not content to learn about his men from books, preferring to work side by side with begrimed laborers.

So successful have these sojourns with workers proved that Williams has visited every great industrial field of Europe and America in recent years, analyzing and associating with the unskilled workman. His findings have been revealing and interesting.

Whiting Williams went to Russia in 1928 and 1933. His comments on the effects of the five-year plan are illuminating and should prove of great value. Germany, Poland, France, Italy, and Great Britain have also been visited by this man, and working conditions in those countries closely examined.

Colleges in Arkansas, Utah to Get Libraries

Two schools, one much smaller than Oregon and the other about the same size, have recently let contracts for new library buildings to be built with PWA funds, according to word received at the library yesterday.

They are the University of Utah, which received $500,000, and the University of Arkansas, $400,000. Figures for 1933 as to the number of students and faculty are as follows: Utah, 3,592 students, 186 faculty; Arkansas, 1,917 students, 200 faculty; and Oregon, 3,340 students, 249 faculty. Oregon's proposed new library building is to cost $350,000.

Graduate Returns

Harry Stone, '32, who received his master's degree in June, 1933, has returned to Eugene from a teaching position at Smith River. He plans to enter school again next term.

Pledging Discussed

Selection of new members was one of the major topics at the meeting of the executive committee of Phi Delta Kappa, men's education honorary, in the school of education yesterday.

Social Science Department Invited to London Conclave

Members of the social science department have been invited to attend the first session of the international congress of anthropological and ethnological sciences, to be held in London, under royal patronage, from July 30 to August 4, 1934. This congress is designed to include all those departments of research which contribute to the scientific study of man, in their application to races, peoples and modes of life.

The establishment of the new congress results from more than 20 years of preparation. In 1912, after the London session of the International Congress of Americanists, the Royal Anthropological Institute invited a small committee, on which eight countries were represented, to organize a more general assembly, which should discuss questions of anthropology and ethnology in the years when the Americanist congress met in

Hoopsters on Northern Jaunt

These three two-year lettermen are among the Oregon basketball players who leave this morning for an invasion of the northern section of the conference. From left to right, they are Jack Robertson, sharp-shooting forward; Gib Olinger, captain of the Webfoots and a standby at the guard position; and Jim Watts, forward, who has seen little action thus far this season.

U of O Hoopsters Will Be Guests of Portland Alums

Team Will Stop Off to Attend Big Luncheon to Be Given in Their Honor

Coach Bill Reinhart and the Oregon hoop squad, on their way north to meet the undefeated Huskies, will stop at Portland this noon where they will be the honor guests at a luncheon given by the University alumni of Portland.

Senior players on Portland high school quintets are to be the other guests of the Portland alumni. Dean Walker, who starred on the Webfoot basketball team in 1913, will be the principal speaker for the occasion, arranged to give the hoopsters a send-off for their Seattle invasion.

Reinhart, Ghormley, and 10 players leave this morning in autos.

Violinist, Two Pianists To Be Heard Monday

The second student recital of the winter term is scheduled for next Monday at 8 in the Music auditorium. Three pianists and one violinist are slated to appear.

The pianists are Marjorie Scobert, who will play two groups of numbers; Maxine Hill, pianist, to play one group; Helene Ferris, pianist, to play one group; and Vivian Malone, violinist, to play one group.

Miss Scobert is a student of George Hopkins, Maxine Hill and Helene Ferris of Mrs. Thacher, and Vivian Malone of Rex Underwood.

House Managers Must Make Oregon Picture Arrangements Today

House managers or house presidents of campus living organizations are requested to visit the Oregon office at McArthur court between 1 and 5 o'clock this afternoon to arrange individual pictures for fraternity and sorority sections of the 1934 Oregoniana.

Should no house representatives appear to supervise the arrangement of pictures, picture groups will be made up with no regard to class seniority, since layouts for this year's annual will be sent to the engravers tomorrow.

Faculty Members To Meet Students On ROTC Topic

Five Named on Committee Which Will Thrash Out Controversy Over Military Training

Selection of a faculty committee to meet with the student committee on compulsory military education was made by acting President of the University Boyer last Saturday, and his selected committee was announced yesterday.

They are Professor L. S. Cressman, chairman, Major R. H. Back, Prof. O. F. Stafford, Prof. Carlton Spencer, and Prof. Waldo Schumacker.

The petition from the students asking that military training be made optional rather than compulsory faculty last week, at which time it was decided that acting President Boyer should appoint a faculty committee to meet with the student committee.

The petition was submitted by a committee of 25 students headed by Wallace Campbell.

Representatives of this committee will be allowed to meet with the faculty committee and submit a complete statement of their views on the problem, it was decided at a meeting in Friendly hall yesterday afternoon. The time of this meeting has not been announced.

Campus Calendar

House managers or presidents must visit Oregoniana office sometime between 1 and 5 o'clock this afternoon to arrange individual house pictures.

The Oregon Independent Coeds invite all members of women's living organizations, housemothers and faculty women to attend the

Dean Allen Says Imports Needed For Export Profit

Orient Holds Boundless Market For American Goods, Says Speaker

Emphasizing that we must import if we expect to make any money from exports, Dean Eric Allen of the University school of journalism spoke before the Pan Xenia, foreign trades honorary, last night on the subject of the "Future of International Trade Relations as Based on Present Economic Tendencies."

Allen declared that too many short-sighted business men and politicians have the belief that we can flood other countries with our products without accepting any of theirs in exchange.

The Orient, he believes, as a market for American trade has unlimited possibilities, but we must expect to accept as many of their products as they do of ours. How else can we expect them to pay us for the shipments we send them.

When asked about the war and disorganization in China at the present time, Allen said that the United States is really paying more for its past wars and in preparing for future ones than all of China's wars are costing her.

A short discussion period was held after the address.

No Men Allowed! This Party Will Be Gayer Without Them

Ghosts, gravestones, evil spirits, ships, midnight, the old mill stream, music, costume, songs, water and women—all put into one evening, namely, Wednesday, February 7, and one sees the Co-ed Capers in a nutshell!

Plans for this annual co-ed party, from which anything that looks like a man is excluded, have been under way for weeks, but the utmost secrecy those in charge of entertainment have maintained has fooled many an excellent nose for news.

This year the party is in charge of Elizabeth Bendstrup, and is open not only to the University coeds but to Eugene townswomen, and the only requisite for admission is a ticket, and the assurance, or the ability to identify oneself as a member of the fair sex.

The party is to be a costume one, and prizes are being offered for the best costume. Each class will present a stunt, and an award

Speaker Says Acid Need for Human Growth

Dr. Williams Describes Functional Uses

FAN MAIL RECEIVED

Talk by Oregon State Professor Deals With Discovery of New Chemical Substance

By RUT HWEBER "Panto-thenic" acid, found in tissues, is probably necessary for human growth," stated Dr. Roger J. Williams, professor of organic chemistry at Oregon State, in his lecture in 103 Deady hall last night on "hemical Secrets of Living Matter."

A few years ago protein, fats, carbohydrates, and inorganic matter were thought to be the chemical ingredients of living matter. In recent years, other constituent matter, not so abundant, but indispensable, has been discovered. Dr. Williams's new discovery, "panto-thenic" acid, is probably one of these. He found this acid in searching for the substance necessary to the growth of yeast.

Growths Vary Varying quantities of this acid produce different growths in yeast. The effect on the growth of other organisms is not certain, as the experiment is still under way. The difficulty in determining the effect of the substance on mammals is due to the fact that in nutritive experiments it is nearly impossible to prepare a food which does not contain "panto-thenic" acid.

As a result of the publicity received from this experiment, Dr. Williams's fan mail has assumed humorous characteristics. A diminutive Jewish boy in Brooklyn who wanted to grow requested some of the acid. A young lady in New York who is less than five

Optional Student Membership to Be Investigated

Jim Landye, Eugene Laird, Dick Neuberger Will Represent Student Group

The committee of the state board of higher education which is investigating the proposed policy of optional membership in the student body will meet Monday at 10 a. m. in Portland for the purpose of receiving reports from the interested parties.

Jim Landye, Eugene Laird, and Dick Neuberger will represent the students who are proposing optional membership, and Tom Tongue, president of the A. S. U. O., Fred Saling, president of the Oregon State student body, Carl Lodell, graduate manager of Oregon State, Hugh E. Rosson, graduate manager of the University, will represent the associated students of the two major state schools. There is a possibility that the presidents of the two schools will attend the meeting.

The regular meeting of the state board of higher education will take place on Monday afternoon.

Appears in Igloo Tonight

Roland Hayes, one of the outstanding tenors in the world, will appear tonight in McArthur court in another of the series of Associated Students' musical presentations. Students will be admitted free of charge to the recital, while popular prices prevail for townspeople.

Orangemen Whip Idaho, 32 to 23, in Moscow Game

Oregon State Quintet Climbs Back Into Second-Place Deadlock With Webfoot Team

MOSCOW, Idaho, Jan. 24.—(Special)—A rejuvenated Oregon State quintet struggled successfully to maintain its bid for northern division championship honors here tonight by downing Idaho's Vandals, 32 to 23.

The victory, which evened the Beaver-Vandal series, restored the visitors to their second-place deadlock with Oregon.

The Orangemen flashed into an early lead of 8 to 2, but a long-range Idaho attack erased this advantage and put the Vandals into a lead of 11 to 10. They maintained a similar margin at the close of the first half with a score of 13-12 favoring them.

The Oregon Staters galloped onto the court in the second half and bombarded the basket to produce a lead of 27 to 19. They kept in front of the Vandals for the remainder of the contest.

A scoring flurry in the second half gave George Hibbard, speedy Beaver forward, scoring honors for the evening with 13 points. Iversen, Idaho forward, led the way for his teammates with six tallies.

Tradition Sidetracked; Freshmen Are Allowed Tuxedos at Senior Ball

Two long-standing University traditions received their death blow last night, when Edwin Martindale, senior class president announced that freshmen men will be permitted to attend Saturday night's Senior ball—and in tuxedos.

When first year men flower forth in formal attire at the ball Saturday night, it will mark the first time in campus history that frosh have attended the senior affair—and the first time that freshmen have appeared at an official function in tuxedos.

University Stands To Save $7083.10 On Miner Building

Saving Hoped for Through Tax Exemption; Assessor Says He Will Collect

The University of Oregon will save $7083.10 if the Lane county circuit court upholds the Security Savings and Trust company in its effort to have the Miner building placed on the non-taxable list.

B. F. Keeney, county assessor, has announced, however, that he has no intentions of allowing the property to be exempted from taxation inasmuch as it is not used for educational purposes. The assessor said Wednesday that at the time he thought he was justified in taking such action and is still of the same opinion.

Rentals from the property amount to $39,120 a year while operating expenses approximate $13,000. Three thousand dollars' interest on a $60,000 mortgage

Sergeant's 'Barefoot Boys' Novel Development of ROTC

Don't be surprised if you should find bullets whizzing about your head some of these days because the University of Oregon is fast becoming a scientific marksmanship center of the world, what with Dr. Robert H. Seashore's recent muscular coordination tests and all.

A later and more novel development is now being tried by Sergeant Harvey Blythe's "barefoot boys" at the ROTC barracks.

Sergeant Blythe, coach of the University rifle team has continually emphasized the need of absolute comfort and relaxation while shooting, therefore it wasn't surprising to have Earl Thomson, a member of the squad take off his shoes, during a match, because they didn't feel right on his feet.

In shooting from the kneeling position, the marksman, in order to secure maximum steadiness, curls up his right leg and sits on

Roland Hayes, internationally famous tenor, will sing tonight at 8:30 in McArthur court, with admission free on presentation of student body tickets. Tickets for persons not having student cards are selling for $1.10 and 55 cents.

Hayes, who has become one of the outstanding singers in the world, has been brought to Eugene by the Associated Students. On this, his first tour of the northwest in three years, Hayes has been drawing record crowds; in Portland his audience was the largest since Paderewski came in 1927.

He sings the songs of the great masters of all countries and is an absolute master of five languages, in addition to devoting about one-fourth of his program to the familiar negro spirituals. The spiritual section in his program was exceedingly popular in Portland, and he was called upon to sing several encores. Hayes is known to be generous with encores.

Tickets for the concert are still available at the graduate manager's office in McArthur court, the Co-op, and McMorran & Washburne's.

Dahlberg to Be Judge in Debate Competition

W. A. Dahlberg, instructor of speech and men's varsity debate coach, received notification yesterday that he has been chosen to judge debate competition among high schools of Oregon and southern Washington.

Dahlberg will leave the campus February 9 on his first judging tour, returning to his campus duties February 17. On his tour the University debate coach will judge forensic meets at Seaside, Knappa, Clatskanie, Medford, Ashland, and Grants Pass.
