 Once Again the Delayed Offense Type of Basketball Gets Just Criticism

ABOUT every so often each year someone breaks into print with a big yowl against the style of basketball that sacrifices the advantages of a fast-breaking offense for the slower type. "Percentage" ball in its strictest sense or in any of its various degree and variations is invariably panned by spectators and critics alike as detrimental to the popularity of the game.

At the moment the cry is from Seattle and the gentleman at the controls is Bill Dickie, sports editor of the University of Washington Daily. In his column the other day Editor Bill made the following observations:

"That languid exhibition billed as a championship basketball game between Oregon and Oregon State last Friday evening shows how our speediest sport can be reduced to the level of a tortoise race if the two teams go on the floor with the idea of making the other outfit do all the playing."

"Oregon State has always played a 'percentage' game under Slat's Gill. That's all right for one team in a league, it gives variety and a bit of color for the fans. But when two teams play that style of ball against each other, the result is the chess-like motions the crowd had to yawn through at Corvallis Friday."

And right here we wish to go on record as supporting Mr. Dickie. It is the sparkling, rapid-fire technique of basketball that has made the northern division of the Pacific coast loop, the Rocky Mountain conference and the Big Six famous for speedy and exciting exhibitions of basketball.

While the game in which the offense works methodically and surely until the ball is worked into position for a pot-shot setup makes a great show of the defensive art, the age-old principle of sports applies—the exhibitor who carries the fight in a sensational manner invariably wins the ovation of the fans.

Hundreds of cases in every sport bear out the fact that fans want but one thing—action. When the action isn't there the blast of criticism begins. The Oregon-Oregon State game was a nightmare. The game as basketball exhibition that the average fans would get five times the kick out of watching a couple of interclass teams at Vassar do their stuff.

As Mr. Dickie so aptly remarks, though, that is not the usual system Oregon gives use. And the Webfoots switched over to that type of ball as the most effective means of breaking through Mr. Gill's zone defense which is a honey on a court like the one at Oregon State.

But if Mr. Dickie has any qualms about the Webfoots going "percentage" permanently, he can drown his fears in Puget Sound right away. The lid is off for the series with Washington. Bill Reinhart's men will use no delayed offense against the Huskies. The fast break with all the accompanying "razzle-dazzle" will be the order of the day for Oregon as the Ducks face the similar system used by Hec Edmundson.

Beta Theta Pi Still Leaders In Donut Race

Other Contestants Hope To Break Monopoly

Independent Men Loom as Point Winners in Nest Events On Program

With the donut volleyball schedule over half completed Beta Theta Pi is still continuing on its march for the all year point-total championship. In the "A" league the Betas remain undefeated, although in the "B" organization they have suffered one loss.

The Fijis, S.P.E.'s, Phi Deltas, and the Yeomen, nearest competitors of the Betas for the title, also remain undefeated in their respective "A" leagues. These teams with the exception of the Fijis hold no defeats in their "B" league records either.

Betas Suffer Setback
 The Betas stock in the all year competition suffered a setback last week when the independent men copped the handball title and the leaders did not even break into the semi-finals.

Following the volleyball competition the next event on the program will be wrestling. Here the independents are also given the edge to grab most of the points.

Few Individuals Star
 If the Betas can be defeated in some of their net tilts in the next two weeks, competitors now not considered as possible leaders will have a good chance to break the Beta monopoly of the donut sports program so far.

The volleyball matches up to this time have shown a few individuals who are excellent with their network but the team play as a whole has not been up to the standard it will no doubt reach in the final contests, as the men become more accustomed to the game.

Donut Wrestling Will Be Staged in Single Meet Soon

Tournament Scheduled to Follow Volleyball; Unlimited Number of Contestants May Enter

Intramural and all-campus wrestling are to be held in one meet, according to an announcement by Earl E. Boushey, supervisor of donut sports, last night. Points made by individual wrestlers in the all-campus tournament will count towards the standings of their houses or organizations.

Boushey stated that as the tournament is slated to open immediately after the volleyball sessions, it is imperative for house managers to turn in the names of their entrants, and the weights of the entrants as soon as possible. Aspirants should practice three times a week, as wrestling is a very punishing sport, especially to the amateur bone-benders.

The men's gym will provide training facilities, and assistants will be up in the gym after 4 o'clock to help round the aspirants into shape. Boushey also emphasized the fact that the more men a house entered, the better chance it has to win.

Settings for Play Near Completion

There is to be no advance ticket sale for "The Gods of the Mountain," to be presented Wednesday and Saturday nights of next week at 8 o'clock in Guild theater. All tickets will cost 25 cents.

The settings for the play are nearing completion, under the able management of several committees. The stage crew consists of Robert Biddel, manager, and Lucille Stewart. The lighting crew is composed of Russell Humphrey, manager, and Bill Paddock. Properties are being taken care of by Jean McMunn and Glenn Hooper. Carl Gross is to be business manager, and Theresa Kelly is in charge of music. The Phi Beta trio, assisted by Vernon Wisearson on the oboe, will give some selections.

Varsity Matmen Seek Recognition

All would-be wrestlers with varsity ambitions are urged to come to a meeting in the men's gym, Tuesday at 4:30 in the room adjoining the office. Tom Mountain will be in charge. Plans will be made in regard to petitioning for a coach and recognition of wrestling as an official sport.

Mountain stated that the turnouts thus far show a man for every weight except 118 pounds. Several of the gruntes and twisters will participate in the Oregon amateur wrestling championship matches to be held in Portland later in the season.

Fast Bouts Run Off at Yeomen Smoker Friday

Rip-snorting bouts marked the smoker held last night at the Y-hut under the management of the Oregon Yeomen, independent men's organization. Five matches brought together some of the finest boxing talent in Eugene, all trained by Joe Bradshaw, Portland expert who is now with the town Y.

The best bout of the evening saw a draw between Dick Laner, fighting butcher boy, reputed to be one of the best 130-pounders in this region, and Fred Myers. In the 147-pound division, Lyle Kottle and Ray Avery slugged for three rounds to a draw. Fred McIntyre and Ralph Bonny matched gloves in an even match at the 160-pound scaling.

Fleawrights opened the card in two speedy bouts. "Peewee" Collins licked his brother, Mike, in a battle between two 60-pounders; Danny Cornelius and Roy Knollis fought at 80 pounds.

The boys from down town appeared in good physical condition. The three rounds of hard mitsling failed to wear either one of them down.

Cider, doughnuts, and cigarettes were passed around during and after the matches.

History of Races In Oregon Being Written for Atlas

History of the races of men, inhabiting Oregon long before the discovery of America by the white race, will some day be compiled into an archeological atlas by Dr. L. S. Cressman, professor of sociology, if the goal toward which he is directing his efforts is realized, he announced recently.

Dr. Cressman has carried on extensive research and exploration projects in the state of Oregon and has uncovered valuable scientific information concerning the ancient life in this state.

Information regarding Indian relics, burial grounds, rock writing and other clues that may lead to the discovery of material valuable for Dr. Cressman's collection, will be welcomed by him.

Many years of effort will be expended before the atlas is completed but its value to anthropologists and others interested in these fields is unestimable.

French Travel Books, Pictures Are Exhibited

France is the theme of the new exhibits on view in the reading room and English reserve in the old library today. Arranged by Mrs. Ione E. Brooke, clerical assistant in the circulation department, the display consists mainly of travel books with illustrations of cathedrals and other French scenes.

French pictures loaned by Miss Christina A. Crane, instructor in romance languages, are shown with the books in the downstairs exhibit.

Foreign Scholarships Announced in Library

Notices of scholarships and fellowships as well as announcements of German, French, Mexican, and Russian universities are to be found on the bulletin board in the basement of the old libe. Posters announcing fellowships and scholarships give full information as to qualifications, etc., or state where such information may be obtained. Foreign university posters make special note of courses, excursions, and so forth which would be of particular interest to American students.

Duckling Hoopers Increase Number Of Victims to Seven

Art Merryman of Rooks Leads Scoring With 11 Points; Wellington Commits a 'Riegals'

By BILL PHIPPS (Emerald Sports Editor)

A spasmodically brilliant Oregon freshman basketball five rode to its seventh straight victory of the season last night, nosing out the Oregon State rooks in a thrilling 32-30 battle on the Igloo court. The Ducklings' margin of victory came on a "Roy Riegels' play" by "Duke" Wellington, rook center, who dropped a setup into the Oregon basket as he extracted the ball from a melee under the basket just after the second half opened.

The frosh, sparked throughout by the flashy play of Sam Liebowitz, turned in some good basketball to take the lead during the first half only to be nosed out 13 to 12 at the half-way mark, and again in the final period they hit their stride long enough to twice shake off one-point rook hits.

Art Merryman, driving little rook forward, played the starring role for Coach George Scott's lads both on the floor and in the scoring which he led for the evening with 11 points. Along with Merryman in the rook rallies came Ed Torgerson and Hub Tuttle, and the three of them pulled the Orange babes into the lead as the half closed and on two occasions in the second session.

Leading the evenly balanced frosh scoring machine were John Lewis and Roy Williamson, who each picked up nine counters, and Liebowitz, who, in addition to his tricky passing and smooth floor work, garnered eight digits.

Frosh Take Early Lead
 After the frosh took the lead from the start the scoring alternated until the count was tied at four-all, at which point the frosh offense drove to the front when Liebowitz dribbled through the rook defense for a basket. Williamson took a pass from Lewis for another bucket a bit later but Merryman came back with a long one. Williamson brought the frosh total to 12 after he sank a one-handed push-shot as he dribbled along the foul line and another one when he grabbed the ball out of a pile-up and poked it through the hoop.

Oregon State started a drive from the next tip-off as Torgerson sniped a long-distance attempt. Then as Liebowitz was taken from the game temporarily Merryman potted another long one. Torgerson made a third long shot good from just inside the center circle to put the rooks in the lead 13 to 12. Shortly before the gun sounded Williamson made a desperate effort to break the rooks' advantage, but his long one rolled around the rim and then flew out.

Frosh Come Back Strong
 Liebowitz started the fireworks for the frosh in the second half when he faked the Orange defense out of position and dribbled to the foul stripe where he pushed in a nice shot as the rooks closed around him. Williamson dropped in a free throw and in the next scrimmage session under the frosh basket the confused Wellington padded the Duckling score when he retrieved the ball, pivoted and dropped a short two-handed crippler into the Oregon basket. Lewis followed one in to run the Oregon count to 19 before Kebbe registered for Oregon State.

The second Orange rally began after about 11 minutes of play in the second half when Tuttle scored twice, once on a close try after a perfectly executed block and again when he fired a shot from long range to give the rooks the edge 25-24.

Ducks Increase Lead
 Liebowitz netted a long angle throw from the sideline for Oregon but the advantage was short lived as Merryman dribbled around two Duck defense men for another setup. After Oregon counted twice more on a sensational one-handed running shot by Liebowitz from just inside the foul circle and on Liebowitz's pass to Lewis, who dribbled in close, Helmkin tallied to make the score 32-27 for the frosh.

Murray fouled Merryman, who made the gift try good, and Merryman faked Liebowitz out of position to amble in for an easy one. With the count 32 to 30 the frosh managed to get possession and hold the casaba in their offensive formation until the final gun.

Eugene High Wins
 Eugene high dropped University high 19-13 in a fast tilt in the preliminary feature.
