

The Tip-Off

By BILL PHIPPS

Hec Edmundson Proves Substituting Is Decided Asset in Winning Games

Editor's note: As this column is, with the exception of slight additions, written before 6 o'clock on the day previous to publication, mental telepathy must have taken place between Coach Bill Reinhart and the writer of this column. It is barely possible, of course, that Bill might have read this column shortly after it went to the press, but at any rate it gives the writer no little satisfaction to note the fine performances turned in by the Webfoot reserves in the second game with Washington last night.

AFTER a glance at those ram-paging Washington Huskies Monday night it isn't at all difficult to see why they are coasting along on the crest of the northern division wave. The reason is summed up in one word—substitutes.

The five Oregon men who started the game clearly displayed that they were capable of holding their own and even of carrying the fight to Hec Edmundson's invading horde so long as Hec kept his starting quintet on the floor.

For five men to play a whole game and practically all of an additional overtime period against five opponents is one thing, but for five men to play 45 minutes of driving, wearing basketball against ten men is something entirely different. It is small wonder that the Huskies, after Hec had rotated his men throughout the gruelling tilt, could come back during the last few minutes to tie up the score and then forge ahead of the valiant but tiring Webfoots in the extra session.

Hec Edmundson has more than a good ball team, he has a good ball club. Every man on the Washington travelling squad is ready at any time to go into the fray without seriously impairing the efficiency of the combination. Not that the reserves Hec calls on are as good as the high scoring Gaier, the sensational dribbling Lee, the defensively powerful Wagner, Hanover or Weber but the difference is so slight that a spare can be sent into the game and carry on until the man he has replaced is fresh again.

It is simply beyond the limits of human endurance for five men to forge out ahead in a game in which those five face ten men who are practically as good players. An example of what happens in addition to a general slowing up came Monday night when Willie Jones had a chance to tie the score or even put Oregon in front during the overtime canto.

Willie had two free throw attempts but he nuffed them both. A bit later he had another chance to toss one in from the gift line but again he missed. Anyone misses them once in a while, particularly in a crucial game which is played under such tremendous pressure as was that one on Monday night. Willie is now a seasoned player familiar to the strain of high-class competition and on top of that, he is a good foul shot, making a high percentage of his free tries. The trouble was only that Willie was tired. For better than 40 minutes he had withstood the terrific pace but that can only go on for so long and Willie was beginning to wilt.

When a man gets exhausted in basketball it not only means he doesn't move as fast but it means that he doesn't handle himself as well. He loses his control and his eye no longer has the sharpness that it had when he was fresh. Had Willie been favored with a substitute for a time so he could get a little much-needed rest the odds are 10 to one that he would have held at least two of those fouls.

On the Oregon varsity roster this year are reserves that have never got past the advance publicity stage. Ron Gemmill has seen some action and so has Bob Miller but they have not been in the thick of it enough this year to feel at home with the first string combination even when they do get their chances. Jim Watts played plenty of minutes

Four Games Begin Playoff In Volleyball

Last of Contests Slated For Friday

Sigma Phi Epsilon, Phi Delta Theta, Yeomen Represented By Two Squads Each

TODAY'S PLAYOFF GAMES
 4:10—Theta Chi vs. Phi Delta Theta (A).
 Delta Tau Delta vs. Yeomen (B).
 5:00—Sigma Phi Epsilon vs. Yeomen (A).
 Sigma Phi Epsilon vs. Alpha Tau Omega (B).

Last night marked the finish of division competition in intramural volleyball. The champions of the five divisions in both "A" and "B" squads will be matched for the next three days to determine the two leading teams on the campus. Four games will be played this afternoon and the remainder tomorrow. Finals are due Friday.

The A.T.O. "B" squad won over Theta Chi last night to qualify as the fifth contestant in that section. Other "B" teams in the play-off are Sigma Phi Epsilon, Phi Delta Theta, Yeomen, and Sherry Ross.

Betas Win
 The Beta "A" squad defeated Delta Upsilon, and the Spees beat Chi Psi, making themselves eligible for the determining series. The other "A" division winners are Theta Chi, Yeomen, and the Phi Deltas.

Yeomen, Phi Deltas and Sigma Phi Epsilon each have two teams in the field. The Betas, leading all donut competition, failed to place a "B" squad but have a strong "A" team in the winning list.

Cunningham and Bowerman sparked them to a 15-7, 15-9 victory over their last division obstacle, the Delta Upsilon, last night. Hegdahl, for the losers, spiked more than his share but failed to receive the needed cooperation.

S.P.E. Takes Contest
 The S.P.E. team hesitated almost too long when it met the Chi Psi's "A" team. After eking out a 15-13 victory in the opening game, they dropped the second, 5-15. A complete reversal of form in the final set-to enabled them to take a love game. It was Foley and Elliot at the net who did the winning work, especially in the deciding game.

La Casa Filipina took an easy victory from the S.A.E. six, 15-12, 15-6. The Islanders distinguished themselves with a peculiar brand of volleyball, in which they disdained to "set up," but whacked it over the net from any place on the floor. It seemed to work rather well and baffled the orthodox Sigma Alpha Epsilons completely. The Filipinos had only a four man squad. This was an "A" league contest.

A.T.O. had an easy afternoon subduing the Sammies. The work of Wilson and Stranix far out-classed that of fiery-haired Red Rotenberg and his cohorts. The final count was, 15-9, 15-3.

A.T.O. "B's" also had no difficulty in downing Theta Chi. The score was 15-1, 15-5. The Beta "B" team was quite superior to Zeta hall, even though dropping the second game of the contest. Siegmund, as usual, shone for the winners and Vander Zanden did most of the work for the hall team. Final score: 15-2, 11-5, 15-6.

As the teams swung into the final day of the division games last night, not a single forfeit was listed. More than 75 players paraded their volleyball abilities during the course of the evening.

last year but so far he has not been in the Duck lineup. Glen Sanford, Roland Rourke, and Ed Kunkle likewise have been carried on the squad but have not broken into the lineup.

Whether or not these last four men can play ball this year is something we cannot ascertain as we haven't seen them in action against coast conference opposition, but it is a cinch they can never improve sitting on the bench and it is also evident that Oregon cannot expect five players to come out on top while facing the overwhelming odds of pitting their strength against that of twice as many men.

Ace Poloist

One of the world's most famed poloists is Capt. C. T. I. Roark, pictured above as he arrived in San Francisco aboard the Malolo. In England Capt. Roark is an eight-goal handicap man, highest rating in the land.

Washington Swim Match Moved Up

The University of Oregon aquatic team will meet the University of Washington team Saturday afternoon instead of Saturday night. The change was made to accommodate those who wished to see both the swimming meet and the Oregon-Idaho hoop tilt.

Latest notices from the Washington campus indicate that Jack Medina, world champion free style events, has decided to compete for the Huskies. If he does swim for the invaders, it will be a rare opportunity for students and townspeople to view one of America's fastest swimmers.

District Officer Visits
 Miss Betty Robb, district president of Kappa Alpha Theta, was a guest of the local chapter last week.

New Courses Included In Free Time Courses

A second announcement of the free time correspondence courses offered under the civil projects in education by the extension division will go to press this week. This announcement will have a number of additional courses.

Dr. Dan E. Clark, of the extension division, stated that enrollments are coming in regularly and a number of students are already at work.

Oregon Drops Fourth Game To Husky Five

Invaders Win in Igloo by Score of 36-30

Reinhart Reverses Usual Tactics By Using Flock of Reserves Against Washington

Score: Washington 16, Oregon 12. Olinger worked around for a clever short shot to open the scoring of the second canto. Merrin, sub Washington center, counted for a short shot, and Gaier dropped in another, after faking Olinger out of bounds. Willie Jones made a shot from the gift line good, and Hanover boosted the Huskies' score with a long shot from mid-court, calling for another Oregon time-out. When play was resumed, Weber and Gaier swished the net with field goals, to make the score 26 to 15. Jim Watts, a veteran of two years standing, who has ridden the bench all season, was substituted for Bill Berg, and played heads-up ball for the rest of the game.

Willie Jones and Robertson counted for three Oregon points, and Weber of Washington scored on a fast break for the hoop. Bud Jones pushed Hal Lee, who converted both free throws. Jones was jerked from the lineup, although he was one of the Oregon mainstays up to that point.

Watts Tallies
 After several tries for the basket, Watts poked one in from the foul line, but the score was still 30 to 20 against Oregon. Hanover scored for the Huskies on a similar shot, and Glen Sanford went into the tilt for Robertson, who had started the second half. Bud Jones returned to the lineup for Miller. Lee scored three points on a neat overhead short shot and a conversion on Willie Jones' foul.

After Sanford recovered from his first flash of ambition, when he lost the ball at the end of a long dribble, he played in brilliant, aggressive style, scoring six points in the last 10 minutes. His first basket came at this point, a push shot from the foul circle.

Subs Go In
 Cook, Wyman, and McKinstry replaced Hanover, Lee, and Weber in the Washington lineup, but the first string men were rushed back into the tilt when the Webfoot subs ran the score up to 28. Washington had 35.

The Washington first team started immediately to stall, and a rousing battle for possession of ball ensued. All 10 players pounded up and down the floor, losing the ball, then regaining it, and missing numerous tries at the basket. At the end of Oregon's vigorous rally came Gemmill's short, follow-in shot, a vain try by Gemmill from the free throw line, and a short try by Watts that rimmed the hoop and fell out. Merrin dropped in a free throw on Watts' foul to end the game.

Summary:

WASH. (36)	FG	FT	PF	TP

Miss Starr to Speak At Dill Pickle Meeting

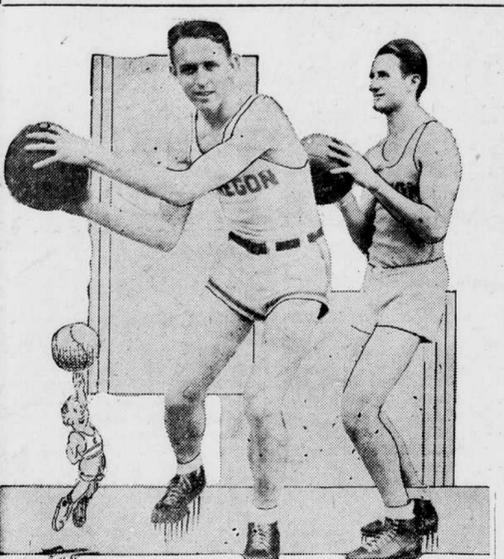

Miss Elizabeth Starr will speak on her trip to Europe last summer at a meeting of the Dill Pickle club at noon today at the Y. W. C. A.

Ruth Carlton, president of the organization will preside and has urged all girls to come. They should bring a bag lunch with them.

Librarians to Visit
 Two librarians from the University of Washington are to visit this campus today to see the University library in action and to inspect the Kardex file for periodicals, which is used here instead of the ordinary card index. The visitors are Miss Lesley Muriel Heathcote and Miss Constance Lehde, whose coming was announced by a letter received at the librarian's office yesterday.

They Went Down Fighting

Gib Olinger, Oregon hoop captain and guard (left), and Willie Jones, lengthy center, who put up a valiant fight last night in an effort to check the pennant-bound Washington Huskies in the final tilt of the four-game series.

Aspirants to Oregon Golf Squad Are Asked To Meet Today at 4

All men interested in golf are asked to meet this afternoon at 4 at the graduate manager's office.

Golf is included in the minor sports program this year and the regular minor sports award will be given to those competing.

Plans will be discussed for the Oregon team's participation in the Pacific Coast conference tourney.

Women's Athletics

By BETTY SHOEMAKER

Alpha Delta Pi defeated Hendricks hall basketball team by one point yesterday afternoon. The final score was 11-10. Lou Hill was referee.

Kappa Kappa Gamma basketball team will play Susan Campbell this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Alpha Phi swimming team defeated Pi Beta Phi yesterday afternoon at the women's swimming pool with a total score of 27-22.

Alpha Phi placed first in the 80-yard relay. Caroline Card came in first in the 40-yard overarm. Dorothy Cunningham in the 20-yard racing back stroke, and Jean Burnett first in diving, all for Alpha Phi.

Martha McCall, swimming for Pi Phi, won the 40-yard crawl and Margaret Daggett the 40-yard breast stroke.

Susan Campbell will swim with Kappa Alpha Theta this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Alpha Phi almost won the imaginary Spectator Cup yesterday. It is still in the hands of the Gamma Phi Beta house. Let's have a little bit of competition.

Wrestling Contestants In Donut Tournament To Get Into Condition

The intramural wrestling tournament is slated to be held February 19-20-21. It will be in the form of straight elimination, with each organization allowed to have as many entrants as it wishes.

Contestants should be conditioning themselves at least by now and if they have not yet entered, should do so and start working at once.

Davis Is Finalist In Campus Wide PingPong Series

The official all-campus tournaments in both pingpong and handball are progressing rapidly and in the table sport Al Davis has already won over all opposition to enter the finals of the event.

Davis pushed his way into the fight for the championship with a semi-final victory over Bob Avison. These two men had previously upset Julius Scruggs and Hendriksen. The men in the other half of the bracket who have gained their way into the quarter-finals are Crockett, Wiscarson, Eva, and Adams.

In the doubles event of the handball matches Woodward and Chatterton, Parke and Whitley, and Schneider and Donin are the teams who are semi-finalists.

G. E. Hart, McCredie, Coad, Whitley, Chatterton, Sherman, and Donin are the men who have advanced in the singles play. All contestants must play their games as scheduled on the bulletin board near the University street entrance to the men's gym or their games will be regarded as defaults.

French Books Arrive
 From France are the latest newcomers to the shelves of the library. Ten books, written in French, published and specially bound in Paris, were received yesterday. They range from short novels to a tome of three volumes, and are intended for general reading rather than textbooks.

Eugene High Strong
 The Purple Horde of Eugene high has shown great potentialities. Coach Fritz Kramer was faced with the loss of Roy Northam and three others from the 1933 squad that placed fourth in the state tournament.

Frosh Team Plays Eugene High Tonight

Tilt to Be Played in Prep School Gym

Ford Danner Leads Purple Horde; Frosh Out to Lengthen List of Victories

The green Ducklings of Oregon, who have polished off all of their high school opponents so far, will take on Eugene high tonight in the latter's gym at 7:30 o'clock.

The frosh have not met any real competition to test their mettle, the closest game being in the previous game with the Eugene prepsters. The yearlings won 22-19, but obviously coasted most of the way.

Liebowitz Shows Class
 In a way, the season showing of the frosh has been successful. At times they look like champions, and play rings around their opponents. Sam Liebowitz has almost always led the way with his wonderful dribbling and floor work.

Many times he has led the opposing defense out of position, allowing his team mates to make the score. John Lewis has also done some fine playing. These two have been the most consistent, although Ray Williamson usually comes through with a goodly number of points.

Fight on for Center Job
 A number of the squad are pushing the first stringers. Harry Helmken and Joe Murray have seen-sawed back and forth in the battle for the pivot post. Roy Northam and Dale Hardisty may break into the lineup.

Arnold Faust seems fairly certain of his position at the other guard, although he is experiencing a slump in point-getting.

Eugene High Strong
 The Purple Horde of Eugene high has shown great potentialities. Coach Fritz Kramer was faced with the loss of Roy Northam and three others from the 1933 squad that placed fourth in the state tournament.
