

'Miami Triad' Dance Barred From Campus

Student Affairs Group Takes Action

BAN IS PERMANENT

Event Given by Three Fraternities Draws Severe Criticism, Says Dean of Women

The "Miami Triad" dance is henceforth to be banned on the University campus.

The drastic action was taken yesterday afternoon by the student affairs committee of the University, in declaring the "Triad" outlawed because actions of some students present at the dance "did not meet University standards."

The dance, which was held at the Osburn hotel Saturday, February 3, brought severe criticism upon the University, Hazel P. Schwering, dean of women, told the Emerald.

Sponsors Number Three Beta Theta Pi, Sigma Chi, and Phi Delta Theta are the fraternities making up the Miami Triad, sponsors of the affair.

For the last three years the dance had not been held, because of a similar ban placed upon the dance in 1931, following certain disorders in the event that year.

A petition seeking the reinstatement of the dance for this year was granted at a student affairs committee meeting January 26.

The present ban upon the Triad is to be final, reports from the dean of women's office indicated. There will be no possibility of reinstatement.

Dean Issues Warning

Warning was given by Mrs. Schwering that disorderliness at campus functions will not be tolerated. "The committee will not hesitate to take such action on any dances where conduct is permitted which reflects discredit upon the University," she declared.

Chapter officials of Beta Theta Pi, Phi Delta Theta, and Sigma Chi refused to comment on the action when they were reached last night by the Emerald.

Love, Marriage Talk Given by Portlanders

Men and women students were addressed last evening on the biological aspects of love and marriage in the third of a series of lectures sponsored by the associated students. Dr. Goodrich C. Both doctors are practicing physicians of Portland. Mrs. Harry P. Cramer, secretary of the Oregon Mental Hygiene society, will conclude the series of talks Monday evening, February 19, when she will speak before a combined meeting of men and women on the factors that are essential for a happy marriage.

Brides of History to Appear In 'Wedding Belles' Pageant

By HENRIETTE HORAK

"Backward, turn backward, oh time in your flight, make me a bride just for tonight."

The annals of time will be rolled back more than a hundred years Thursday evening in the school of music auditorium, and brides of the past century and a half will, through the medium of University and townswomen, show what the well-dressed brides wore down through the ages, up to our modern wedding attire.

The event which is termed "Wedding Belles" will be in the form of a pageant, and besides the parade of the brides, three weddings will be performed: an old-fashioned one, a futuristic ceremony, and a typical modern one. The weddings will be true in every detail, including the full retinue of wedding parties, and complete in every part, except for the actual words of the minister.

The personnel of the weddings includes many campus people, both students and faculty. Those who will take part in the old-fashioned wedding are: Miss Margaret Ann Smith, bride; Bill Schlott, bridegroom; Miss Helen

Allen Ran With L Chester Rowell Harvey W. Scott

Chester Rowell, editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, who will speak before a general assembly in Gerlinger tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, is one of the two ablest newspaper men ever to function on the Pacific coast, in the opinion of Dean Eric W. Allen. The other was Harvey W. Scott, for over 30 years editor of the Oregonian, who died in 1910.

A teacher of German in 1897-98 at the University of Illinois, Rowell decided that there was a greater chance for success in the newspaper business. He bought the Fresno (California) Republican and built it up from a small country weekly into a highly respectable and successful paper known the length of the coast for the excellence of its quality, and ranking with the best papers of Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, and Seattle.

After 22 years as editor and publisher of the Republican Rowell retired to devote himself to public service. The sale of the Fresno weekly brought its owner about $1,000,000. In 1932 the San Francisco Chronicle persuaded Rowell to become editor. In many ways Rowell's own paper, the Republican, is more representative of his policies than the paper he now edits.

"Rowell is a man of distinction and learning," said Dean Allen. He is a Hoover Republican and talks sense." The Chronicle's editor is a staunch Republican, as the name of his former Fresno paper might indicate, and has served as delegate to the national convention more than once.

Since 1923 Rowell has been largely engaged in foreign travel, lecturing and writing for magazines and newspaper syndicates. He is the author of a lengthy, scholarly treatise entitled "Digest of Congested Election Cases in the House of Representatives of the United States—First to Fifty-Sixth Congress 1901."

Chester Rowell has had a highly diversified and cosmopolitan education. He received a Ph.D. degree

Geraldine Hickson Awarded Third Place by One Vote, on Work Called 'Peace Parade'

Geraldine Hickson, University of Oregon representative, placed third in the annual state peace oratorical contest, which was held at Oregon State college Friday evening. There was some argument as to whether she should be awarded second or third place, but finally one vote was changed, giving her third.

Six schools competed: Oregon State college, Willamette university, University of Oregon, Pacific university, Albany college, and Linfield college. The contest was close, according to Prof. John L. Casteel of the speech division. Judges were forensic directors from each institution, each ranking and grading all the speakers except the one representing his own school. W. A. Dahlberg was the representative from this campus.

Miss Hickson's oration was entitled, "The Peace Parade," in which she presented the picture of women all over the world "uniting to meet the challenge of peace." She stressed the part of women in building a lasting peace. Miss Hickson is the first woman in many years to represent the University in such a contest, according to Prof. Casteel.

Funeral Services Of Oscar Munger Occur on Monday

Graduate of 1933 Succumbs From Bone Disease in Hospital At The Dalles

Funeral services were held yesterday for Oscar Munger of Fossil, a graduate of the University of Oregon in the class of 1933, whose death occurred at The Dalles Friday.

News of the tragedy did not reach the campus until yesterday, although Munger had many close friends among students and faculty members. Munger was 23 years old. His death came as the result of a recurrence of a bone disease which had caused the loss of a leg at the age of 11.

Despite his physical handicap, Munger made a brilliant record as an undergraduate at the University. For four years he was a member of the Emerald staff, completing his career with the position of news editor, having previously served as reporter, copy editor, and day editor. In his junior year he was elected to Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalistic fraternity, served as secretary and Quill correspondent of that organization, and was awarded membership in the Order of the Emerald O, for distinguished service to the campus newspaper.

At the annual Emerald banquet last June, Munger was awarded the Hall-Turnbull honor trophy, as being the outstanding senior student on the Emerald staff in point of service, ability, and inspirational qualities.

Eric W. Allen, dean of the school of journalism, had the following tribute to pay to his former student:

"Munger, in spite of a serious handicap, made a most definite impression of efficiency, faithfulness, and executive ability. He never let go of a job that he had undertaken, or an idea he was trying to work out, until he had done something with it. He was personally liked; a sterling friend and a pleasant companion, and he will be greatly missed."

Munger was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Munger of Fossil. He is survived also by a brother, Oliver, and a sister.

Orangemen Whip Invading Vandal Quintet, 39 to 14

O'Connell Leads Oregon State to Victory in Corvallis Gym, Scores Nine Points

OREGON STATE COLLEGE, Corvallis, Feb. 12.—(Special to the Emerald)—Oregon State trounced the invading Idaho Vandals here tonight, 39 to 14, to remain in the running for the northern division title. Score at the half-time was 21-8 in favor of the Beavers.

The game was slow throughout, with both teams finding difficulty in sinking their attempts. At only one time during the struggle was Idaho on even terms with the Orangemen, when, shortly after the start of the game, the count was knotted at 5-all.

Captain Skeet O'Connell received scoring honors, chalking up nine points before giving way to little Merle Taylor late in the second half. Close at his heels was Red McDonald, Beaver guard, with eight tallies. Howard Grenier scored seven points for the losers. The teams meet again Tuesday night.

Students to Hear Chester H. Rowell Talk at Assembly

'Current Movements in United States' to Be Discussed By Editor-Lecturer

Chester H. Rowell, editor and lecturer of note, will address a public assembly of students in Gerlinger hall at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, speaking on the subject, "Current Movements in the United States." All classes will be dismissed for the lecture.

Rowell, who is well known on the campus, having delivered the commencement address two years ago at the University, is editor of the San Francisco Chronicle and at various times has taught at Stanford, University of California, and the University of Illinois.

His speaking style, according to Dean Karl W. Onthank of the personal administration, is informal and very effective, and he is acknowledged to be an authority on world affairs, having travelled throughout most of the continental countries observing conditions.

As editor and owner of the Fresno Republican, Rowell spent 22 years, from 1898 to 1920, building up this paper. At present he spends much of his time traveling and writing.

Lecture Series Given by Morris

A series of lectures on "Current Events" is being given by Victor P. Morris, professor of economics, as the University of Oregon's contribution to the CWA schools now being held in Portland.

The CWA schools have recently been started all over the country with the primary purpose of producing work for unemployed school-teachers and of giving a form of education to adults. All the educational institutions in the state are contributing something towards its advancement.

Prof. Morris's class meets every Friday afternoon at 4:15 in the Central library in Portland.

Oregon State Violinist Gives Program of Sincere Music

By J. A. NEWTON

Florence Stone, Oregon State violin student of Howard Halbert, displayed a characteristic seldom seen in a student musician during her recital last night in the music auditorium. She has a sense of humor. She came with the intention of doing her best. When she made errors it was merely part of the experiment. She smiled and picked up the musical thread in the next measure.

The first number, while entitled "Viennese Carnival Pranks," is really an impression of several Viennese carnivals. It contains a few bars of the Marsellaise, a melody forbidden in Austria at the time Schumann wrote the work.

Chopin Represented Concerning the Chopin group, Hopkins states that the waltz in a-flat is very well known. The Nocturne in C-sharp minor, while very beautiful, is seldom heard. The "Sonata in B-minor, Hopkins says, is one of the greatest works ever written for the piano. It is a long number.

The final group contains modern selections: "Reverie" by Debussy, "Hurdy Gurdy Man" by Goossens, an impressionistic selection which represents an organ grinder; "The Fountain" by Ravel, which is another well-known work, and finally the "Alborada del Gracioso" by Ravel also, of which the translation means "The Dawn Song of a Clown."

Dr. Morris Speaks Dr. Victor P. Morris, professor of economics, spoke at the teachers' institute in Silverton Saturday. His subject was "Democracy in the Present Crisis."
