

Anti-Fascist League Forced to Adjourn From Meeting Place

Doors of Craftsman's Club Are Closed to Student Anti-War Group After Session Starts

By order of Leslie M. Scott, representing the trustees of the Craftsman's club building on the campus, the meeting of the League Against War and Fascism held there last night was ordered to adjourn from the building by Ray Martin, manager, after the session had been under way for approximately half an hour.

The group adjourned to the Y. M. C. A. hut, where the discussion continued. Of the 20 persons present, only eight had attended the first session held Thursday, February 15.

Scott, when telephoned in Portland by the Emerald last night, said his action was prompted by reading an account of the first meeting in the Emerald of February 16, which had come to his attention yesterday morning, and which told that sponsors of the league had been characterized as having communist leanings. Scott said Masonic buildings could not be used by such organizations.

"The story said the group was opposed to war and fascism," Scott said. "Naturally, we are all opposed to fascism. But the group was further said to oppose preparation for war, and Masonic properties cannot be used for seditious purposes."

The meeting, with Charles Padock presiding, was called for the purpose of drafting a platform determining what action should be undertaken against war and fascism.

Falling into a long bickering between personalities regarding, principally, the merits and evils of the Communist party and the accusation that the group was dominated by Communists, the only definite action taken was to put each person present on record as to his party affiliations or inclinations; to exclude the motion of S. Eugene Allen, active Young Democrat, adding the word "Communism" to the name "League Against War and Fascism"; to include all actions passed by majority vote of the body as the action of the body.

Upon the defeat of the motion by George Bennett, senior in politics. (Continued on Page Two)

Classes Will Continue Despite Washington's Birthday, Says Dean

No special ceremonies are planned by the University administration to commemorate the birthday of George Washington tomorrow, it was revealed by Karl W. Onthank, dean of the personnel administration, yesterday.

"It has been the custom in the past to make some provision for Washington's birthday in the nature of a public assembly," Onthank said, "but since there have been more than the usual number of student assemblies this year, classes will be held as usual on that day."

Bicycle-Riding Caused Youth Of 90's to Go to 'Bow-Wows'

By ANN-REED BURNS
"The younger generation is going to the dogs." No doubt, no doubt—at least the elders are always saying so, and they ought to know.

But there is one drawback. It has just been discovered that the younger generation authoritatively went to the dogs 37 years ago. And the cause of it was—bicycles! Bicycles, the forerunner of the automobile, the inspiration for the "Daisy Bell," the joy of small boys, were once the scourge of civilization.

A copy of The Housekeeper, dated November 15, 1897, which was found a few days ago by a Eugene dairyman, deprecates the degrading effect of bicycling on feminine riders in an editorial called "The Bicycle Girl."

Bicycling blunts the sensibilities, laments this frayed, yellowed, semi-monthly paper of the nineties, stating that "there is real danger that the women of the next generation may be a little less refined because of the thoughtlessness of the bicycle girl of today."

Morals are apt to be endangered by bicycling, also, for "a young man treats a girl with

Fraternity Group Meet Hears Two Special Reports

New Constitutional Amendments, Survey of Depression on Houses Read

Reading of a paper showing the current economic status of fraternities in the United States by Ralph Schomp, and a presentation of the proposed amendments to the A. S. U. O. constitution by Glen Heiber constituted the major business transacted at the interfraternity council dinner at Theta Chi house last night.

The survey given by Schomp described the effect of the economic depression on fraternities throughout the country, and showed the steps the living organizations were taking to combat stringent finances and decreased memberships. The Pacific coast chapters, it was disclosed, have been more successful in their efforts than those in other sections of the United States.

Heiber, who is chairman of the constitutional revision committee appointed by Tom Tongue last fall to prepare amendments to the present constitution of the student body of the University, read a list of the proposed innovations or changes that will be introduced at today's assembly in Gerlinger hall.

Ed Martindale, president of the interfraternity council, which is composed of a representative from each fraternity on the campus, announced that last night's dinner would be the last of the winter term, although more are scheduled for next term. This was the second of the council dinners, instituted to promote a spirit of fellowship between the members of the houses.

Six in Infirmary

Patients in the infirmary Tuesday were Kathryn Woolsey, Barbara Fuster, Ralph Mason, Ralph Schomp, William Thomas, and Robert Knapp.

Relations Club Plans Opening League Issue

Petition to Be Circulated On Campus

PEACE IS STRESSED

United States Urged to Cooperate With Other Nations in Avoiding War

Urging that the United States reopen the League of Nations membership question, the International Relations club will open a campaign for signatures petitioning action on the part of the national administration. Howard Ohmart, president of the campus discussion group, announced plans which include talks and announcements over a period of one week.

The petition, which is being circulated on 750 campuses throughout the nation, reads as follows: "We, citizens of the United States, anxious to avoid war and organize peace in which prosperity can thrive,

"Believing that the collective system of the world community which includes the Kellogg-Briand pact (Pact of Paris) to which the United States is a party, and the League of Nations, can best prevent war,

"Mindful of the fact that the United States is participating in many activities of the League of Nations,

"Aware that without the privilege of membership in the League the United States is placed at a disadvantage, and the moral integrity of the world community is weakened,

"Urge that the United States reinforce the league's contribution to peace by stating the terms under which full membership would be possible; and by appointing in the meantime an official diplomatic representative to the League of Nations to participate in its deliberations."

Wayne L. Morse, dean of the law school, in giving the move his approval, stated, "It should be self-evident to all thinking students that existing world conditions demand their careful study and investigation of international organizations which seek to promote world peace through the exercise of reason and conference. The future relationship of the United States to the League of Nations or a similar organization demands the attention of American statesmen."

The student committee who will undertake the circulation of the petition in campus living organizations and among independents includes Eula Loomis, Hermine Zwanck, Betty Hentley, Holly Seavey, Merlin Blais, Howard Ohmart, Virgil Esteb and Jay Wilson.

Stafford Receives Mention in Digest

O. F. Stafford, head of the chemistry department, received mention in the latest issue of the Literary Digest on his discovery of the solvent power of acetamide. The story of this finding was given national recognition when Associated Press and Science Service dispatches were sent out from the University.

The Literary Digest item follows: "Tho it hardly approaches the mystical 'universal solvent' dreamed of by the ancient alchemists, acetamide, a compound made from acetic acid and ammonia, has a wider range of solvent power than any other known substance. This has been announced by Prof. O. F. Stafford of the department of chemistry at the University of Oregon."

Contest to Select Coed Models for Style Dance Gets Underway Today

The contest to select 12 coeds who will act as models at the annual Gamma Alpha Chi fashion dance April 7 will go underway today, with ballot boxes at the College Side open for any suggestion, announced Nancy Suomela, chairman.

Each student is allowed to make some nomination for this contest, but it is urged that living organizations back some one candidate.

Final selection of the winners will be made Friday by a staff of judges, which consists of Neal Bush, Dick Near, Jim Emmett, Max Schweiker, and Tom

Honored Tonight

Dr. C. V. Boyer, acting president of the University, who will be honored at a dinner tonight by the Oregon chapter of the American Association of University Professors.

Student Salesmen To Vie for Prizes In Annual Contest

Awards of $25, $10, and $5 to Be Given During Insurance Talks Next Month

Student insurance salesmen will have a chance to demonstrate their wares next month when the Life Underwriters association contest takes place.

Each student who enters will be assigned to represent a prominent insurance company. This company will undertake to supply him with all the necessary material and information to make a good sales talk.

On the night of the contest each contestant will endeavor to sell his policy to a prospective investor. Members of the insurance companies and of the Life Underwriters association will act as judges.

The name of the salesman whose talk is deemed most convincing will be engraved upon the association plaque, and he will be awarded a $25 prize. Other prizes of $10 and $5 are offered for the second and third places.

Only members of the insurance classes at the business administration school are eligible to compete.

Orides Schedule Dance Saturday

Spring will inspire the decorations of the informal dance to be given by Orides at the Craftsman's club Saturday evening, February 24. This is the second dance sponsored by the group since its organization last fall, and will be its last main event for this term.

Laura Goldsmith is general chairman for the dance. Other chairmen are: patrons and patronesses, Janet Hughes; programs and decorations, Violet Adams; tickets, Loveda Mann; music, Chrysanthe Nichachiot; features, Elaine Sorenson.

Patrons and patronesses include Dr. and Mrs. Harold Noble; Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Robertson, Dr. and Mrs. D. C. Stander, Mrs. Alice B. Macduff, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Constance, Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Hughes, and Dr. and Mrs. Timothy Cloran.

Ticket prices at 50 cents per couple are now on sale at the Y. W. C. A. every afternoon from 1 to 3:15. All members of the group and their guests are urged to attend.

Campus Calendar

Tickets for "Cradle Song" can be secured from the box office in Johnson hall, which is open from 4 to 5 every day this week.

Reservations for Matrix Table may be made at the Eugene Hotel or with Lillian Rankin. They should be made by 4 o'clock today.

Senior activity cards for Oregon must be turned in to Oregon office by the end of this week.

Dr. Whitesmith will speak tonight at the Y hut.

Congress club meeting will be held at the College Side at 9 p. m.

Dinner Will Be Given Tonight For C.V. Boyer

Professors Will Honor President

A.A.U.P. IS SPONSOR

Banquet Will Commence at 6:15; Topic on Higher Education To Be Presented

C. V. Boyer, acting president of the University, will discuss briefly "Maintenance of Quality in Higher Education" at a faculty banquet, to be given by the local chapter of the American Association of University Professors in his honor at 6:15 tonight at the Anchorage.

Wayne L. Morse, dean of the law school, will be toastmaster at the banquet. Fred Callister, president of an Albany bank, will deliver a toast in behalf of the board of higher education, of which he is a member. Chancellor Kerr will introduce President Boyer.

Following the formal program will be a business meeting of the chapter, at which preliminary reports by chairman of nine A. A. U. P. committees will be read. Teaching members of the faculty are invited to remain after the banquet and attend the business meeting, irrespective of whether they are members of the chapter.

The reports to be given are by Charles G. Howard, professor of law, on membership; S. S. Smith, associate English professor, on teaching load; James H. Gilbert, dean of social science, on salaries and living costs; Warren D. Smith, professor of geology and geography, on improvement of college and teaching; John T. Ganoe, associate professor of history, on faculty medical care; Dan E. Clark, assistant director of extension and summer school, on summer sessions; H. G. Townsend, professor of philosophy, on faculty and administration; and Paul R. Washke, professor of physical education, on Carnegie annuities.

Last of Religion Talks Scheduled For Meet Tonight

Dr. E. W. Warrington to Discuss Articles of Faith at Y Bungalow

Dr. E. W. Warrington, head of the school of religion in the Oregon higher educational system, will conclude a series of six lectures on religion tonight with a discussion of articles of faith. The material for his final lecture will be gathered from impressions he has gained from the discussions that have followed each of the preceding talks.

The meeting tonight will be held at the Y. W. bungalow at 9 o'clock. Anyone is privileged to attend.

The general topic for the series of speeches has been "Vital Religion Ahead." Under this broad head have been such sub-topics as "The Need for a Perspective in Religion" and "A New Revelation of God."

Club Plans Discussion Of Education See-Saw

"The See-Saw in American Education" will be the topic for discussion at the Congress club meeting to be held at 9 o'clock tonight at the College Side. The nomination and election of officers will also take place.

Howard Ohmart will lead in the discussion. The subject will deal with an analysis of what appears to be a retrogressive and progressive trend, according to Mr. Ohmart.

ASUO Meeting Scheduled for Gerlinger at 11

Committee Will Outline Findings

CLASSES DISMISSED

Assembly Open for Discussion of Proposed Changes Under Eight Headings

The first steps in the proposed general revision of the A. S. U. O. constitution will be taken this morning when the report of the constitution committee will be presented to students at a special student body meeting in Gerlinger hall at 11 o'clock. Glen Heiber, chairman of the committee, appointed by Tom Tongue, student body president, last fall, will outline the findings of the group in the form of eight amendments to the constitution. All 11 o'clock classes will be dismissed.

The meeting will be open to discussion of the proposed changes which are to be voted upon at a special election, a week from today. Jack Cate will preside as parliamentarian.

Entertainment Arranged

Entertainment for the assembly has been arranged by Ralph Schomp. Sherwood Burr and his orchestra will provide several minutes of rhythm, and a trio, composed of Gretchen Gregg, Mary McCracken and Betty Ruggles will sing, with Bob Thornton as accompanist. Other features, not yet announced, will also precede the business meeting.

"This meeting and the special election next week are of great importance to student government at the University of Oregon," states Tongue. "Every member of the associated students should make it a point to be present at the assembly this morning so that they may understand the proposed amendments."

Changes Not Radical

The committee wishes it understood that the amendments to be suggested do not propose to change radically the framework of the student government as it now stands. They were drafted as the result of months of investigation into the needed constitutional reforms. All of the changes thought necessary have been grouped under eight headings and will be presented as separate amendments.

Those students who served on the revision committee and aided in drafting the amendments that will be proposed by Heiber are Helen Binford, Virginia Hartje, Geraldine Hickson, Malcolm Bauer, George Birnie, George Bennett, Bill C. Davis, Charles Kennedy, John Kendall, Walt Gray, and Corwin Calavan.

Club to Be Scene Of Pre-Law Dance

Pre-legal students will frolic at the Craftsman's club Friday evening at the annual dance for pre-law students. The affair will start at 9 o'clock, when Al Wahl's new campus band will start the grand march.

Although informality is to be observed in costume at the dance, a decorative atmosphere will be created at the club through the use of potted palms and many colored flood lights.

Members of the law school faculty will be patrons for the dance. Those students who were once members of the pre-legal group may also attend the dance, Bill Schloth, chairman of the affair, announced last night.

Admission is 50 cents a couple.

Deadline for Payment Of Third Installments Set at Saturday Noon

Final date for payment of the third installments of winter term fees is Saturday noon, February 24, and all students who fail to pay by that time will be subject to suspension from the University. Fines of 25 cents a day are being assessed delinquent students who did not comply with the regulations of the University requiring that dues be paid before noon last Saturday.

Many fees have yet to be paid, according to figures from the business office in Johnson hall, and students are warned of this final deadline.

Oregon Team Beats Idahoans, 28 to 27, To Advance in Race

Olinger Sinks Basket From Midfloor With Three Seconds to Go, Leads Scoring Parade

MOSCOW, Ida., Feb. 20.—(Special to the Emerald)—Captain G. B. Olinger of the University of Oregon Webfoots sent a long shot from midfloor through the Idaho basket three seconds before the final gun, giving Oregon a 28-to-27 victory over the Vandals of Idaho in a thrilling game here tonight.

Iversen's bounce basket from the backboard had given Idaho a 27-26 lead just a few minutes before.

The game lifts Oregon into a tie with Oregon State college for second place in the northwest conference standings. It was Oregon's fourth consecutive victory over Idaho in the current season.

With Willie Jones and Captain Olinger leading the onslaught, the Webfoots were already 16 to 12, at the end of the half. But the Vandals began to click in the second half, and a few minutes before the

University Band Will Offer Fugue By Bach Sunday

Work to Be Given for First Time On Coast; Great Composers' Compositions Included

The first division of the University band will be presented in concert next Sunday at McArthur court. The program is scheduled to begin at 3 o'clock, and admission is free to everyone.

This is the sixth of the A. S. U. O. winter term concert series. The second division of the band appeared on the second program.

The feature number on the program will be the Toccata and Fugue in C major by Johann Sebastian Bach, originally an organ number. Very few bands in this country have attempted to play Bach's fugues because of their difficult construction.

The number has been arranged in manuscript form for the University group.

According to John Stehn, director of the organization, the band has the best instrumentation in its history. More than half of the instruments are reeds, which closely approaches a correct "symphonic band" instrumentation.

The program also includes works by Wagner, Weber, Beethoven and Grieg.

It is the purpose of these band concerts to show the possibilities of that musical group as a concert organization through performances of suitable music chosen from the best organ, piano, opera and orchestral literature. As yet there has been very little great music written especially for the band.

This lack, however, is being attended to by composers in America, France, Italy, and England.

Next year the band hopes to present the Pagan Symphony by Gillette, an American.

Outstanding Stage Settings Promised for 'Cradle Song'

When "The Cradle Song," one of the most ambitious of this year's drama department productions, is presented in the Guild theater Saturday night, theatergoers will view a stage set rated with the best ever designed for a University production.

Horace Robinson, assistant dramatic instructor, has designed and built the set, assisted by a number of students on the campus. The play is laid in a Spanish convent, and those who have viewed the preliminary construction work are enthusiastic.

In the actual handling of the play Saturday night Russel Humphreys will serve as stage manager, assisted by Betty Day, Richard Koken is electrician, and Maurice Pease is property manager, assisted by Pauline Nelson. Several others have taken part in end of the game, they went into their narrow lead. Then Olinger intercepted a pass in midfloor and cut loose with the toss that meant the margin of victory.

The game was a near repetition of Monday's contest, when the Oregon stars broke out of a deadlocked score with but a minute to go, and won the game in the final seconds, 33-30.

Olinger led his team mates with 11 points, scoring eight on field goals and three from the foul line. Grenier was high-point man for the Vandals, scoring seven points.
