Bulletin Third in Series Of Teaching Studies

Arnold Bennett Hall Started Group In 1930 to Promote Interest In Beauty

A bulletin entitled "Studies in Appreciation of Art" has just been published by R. W. Leighton, executive secretary of research, at the University.

It will form number three of a series of studies in college teaching sponsored by the Committee on College Teaching at the University of Oregon and financed by the Carnegie Corporation, New York.

The study was launched in 1930 by Arnold Bennett Hall, who was then president of the University. The project was based upon a strong interest in appreciations of beauty as factors of a social development for those individuals of society who are not trained and do not expect to train themselves for any creative work or particular skills in any of these fields.

Theories Discussed
This publication deals chiefly with theories of appreciation and methods of teaching, while a later one will deal with tests or measures of appreciation.

The volume has been compiled in separate parts by several prominent educators. Part I by Dr. John Mueller, associate professor of sociology, outlines the present status of the field of aesthetics with respect to definition of the field, analysis of the function or nature of art, of beauty, and with respect to terminology. It then traces the principal trends of aesthetic theory for the past 150 years.

Other Ideas Represented
Part II by Ernest G. Moll, assistant professor of English, outlines briefly the theories of appreciation of poetry which he has developed in the course of the study, outlines his experimental course, his methods of teaching and his methods of evaluating results.

Part III by N. B. Zane, associate professor of design, gives in more detail his present analysis of appreciation, an analysis of the types of tests developed for that field.

Part IV by Kate V. Hevner, assistant professor of psychology at the University of Minnesota, presents for the music field an analysis of music appreciation, of the problems incident to the study of music appreciation, and testing methods developed by her in connection with this project.

Announcements Must Be Purchased Before April 10, Says Hanson

Senior announcements should be purchased before April 10 at the Co-op, according to Harry Hanson, chairman of the committee appointed by Ed Martindale, senior class president, to arrange for these announcements, which will cost 10 cents each.

Other members of the committee who met with the representatives of several publishing concerns and awarded the contract to General Lithographers of Portland, are Marylou Patrick and Robert Van Nice.

Seniors are asked to make arrangements for purchasing their announcements as soon as possible after the beginning of the month must be paid for before they can be obtained.

The Student Church

ROSEBELLE HIMELSTEIN

WITH the economic and political conditions in such a chaotic state, one can't help wondering what the future holds for us. For hundreds of years, the followers of Christianity have attempted to establish its religion with the objective of bringing about a better understanding of man. Yet there have been religious wars and now headlines in the papers glare heavily about the political wars. What has happened to human beings? Has man become only an animal of greed, desire for glory, and the disregard of everything else save his own satisfaction to gain a certain goal?

Unitarian
"Creeds, Their Making and Interpreting" is the subject of the sermon that will be delivered by Rev. E. Whitesmith at 11 o'clock.

Catholic
There will be mass at 8 and 10:30.

Father Raymond F. Feely, professor of ethics of the University of San Francisco will speak before the young people at 7:30. He will present in review Will Durant's new book, "New Book of DeSpain."

Congregational
"Man's Greatest Sin. What Is It? What is its Relation to the Unforgivable Sin?" is the subject that Rev. C. E. Palmer has selected as the sermon to be given at 11 o'clock.

At 7:30 there will be the continuance of the study of the "Sermon on the Mount." The discussion method will be used.

Presbyterian
The Calvin club meets at 9:45, and will have as its speaker, Dr. A. J. Mathews, of the University.

"The Environment of Sin" is the subject of the sermon to be delivered by Rev. M. S. Weber at 11 o'clock.

Methodist
Dr. Edwin S. Conklin will speak before the University group on the subject of "Love and Marriage" at 9:45.

"The Inescapable Conflict" is the subject of the sermon to be delivered by Rev. C. F. Ristow at 11 o'clock.

United Lutheran
"Jesus Asks Cooperation" is the sermon topic to be delivered by Rev. F. S. Beistel at 11 o'clock. The Luther league meets at 6:30. "Private Devotion" is the subject for discussion.

Christian
Dr. Victor P. Morris will speak before the University group at 9:45.

"Launch Out" is the theme of the sermon that will be delivered by Rev. S. E. Childers at 11 o'clock. Christian Endeavor organization will meet at 6:15.

Baptist
At 9:45 the young people's organization will meet to discuss the studies from the "Book of James." "The Axe That Swam" is the topic that will be presented by Rev. B. Wilson at 11 o'clock. Lois Tingsley will lead the discussion on "Friendship" at 6:30, before the young people's group.

New Travel Magazine Found on Library List

"The American Traveller" is a new magazine on the University library list. The magazine comes to the campus through the courtesy of the American Express company offices in Portland.

It is primarily advertising material, but is of such a character that it is interesting travel reading. The magazine is fully illustrated and is a monthly publication.

Mrs. Norris Improving
Mrs. Will V. Norris, who is convalescing in the Eugene hospital following a recent major operation, is reported to be slowly improving.

Scanning the Cinemas

McDONALD — "Hold That Girl." Claire Trevor, James Dun. Also "You Can't Buy Everything." May Robson, Lewis Stone, William Bakewell, Jean Parker.

COLONIAL — "Masquerader." Ronald Colman, Elissa Landi.

By J. A. NEWTON On Trading Places

A number of interesting situations can arise from a man stepping into another man's shoes, especially if he looks just like him. A number are presented in "Masquerader."

For instance, the Masquerader asks of his butler, who is in on the plot, who that charming girl is, and he is informed very solemnly that it's his wife.

He is confronted by the ardent and personal love making of the mistress of the man whose place he is taking.

He is also confronted by the other's beautiful wife, who believes that he has conquered his "illness," which is taking dope.

And the greatest thing for him is that he is able to take the bouncer's place in parliament and put into effect some of the reforms which he has been considering in his periodical articles.

The interest is centered on how he meets these situations, and how the love between the Masquerader and the other's wife grows.

Very good.

Gal Gets Around
Claire Trevor, the girl who's supposed to be held, and I apply for the job, is apparently destined to be cast as a girl reporter. She was one in "The Mad Game," and she's one in this show.

She is a police reporter again. Wise one, too. Knows everything and everybody in the underworld. And composed the questions to which there have to be answers.

But we'd better page Will Hays. A criminal is painted as a swell guy in this show. Fact is, the whole "mob," what we see of them, look like pretty good fellows.

The high point is all action. Thrilling auto chase over country roads. Girl pursued by gangsters, gangsters by big shot gambler, gambler pursued by Dunn as detective. Machine guns and smash-up too.

And this Trevor girl will steal all the lads hearts, or I can't pick 'em.

In "You Can't Buy Everything" one has a right to expect some fine acting with May Robson and Lewis Stone, the latter being an old timer on the screen and the former a fairly recent addition.

The last line of this show is Robson's and it's a good one. She returns back to her stage career as a comedienne in a few places.

She tries to make herself ornery and unlikable but she has a tough time.

and forget. "I have forgiven you long ago, Isabel, but I can never forget," says Archibald, and with her sin forgiven, and Archibald at her side, the beautiful Isabel passes on. As Archibald touches her chilling brow with his lips, the curtain falls.

Mary Bennet as Lady Isabel, the star, was charming and convincing in the most dramatic scenes. Bert Evans, as Archibald Carlyle, enacted his part of the faithful husband with true understanding. Miss Lenore Casford, as his sister, the Lady Cornelia Carlyle, furnished the inspiration for many numerous laughs during the performance. Dr. Edward Buchanan, as the villain of the "mortgage on the old homestead" category, was an extreme favorite with the crowd.

The rest of the cast offered characterizations which contributed to a performance that brings a full house each night. Karl Thunemann was Lord Severn, the gruff old lord with a heart of gold. Florence Shumaker handled the difficult part of Barbara Hare, the "other woman," with finesse. Boyd Jackson was the confidential clerk on the estate of East Lynne. Dorothy Parks enacted the role of the faithful servant to her lady, and Mary Shore Mishler was the gossiping servant, Wilson.

Henry Korn had the role of Richard Hare, fugitive from justice; Ernesto Knollin played the part of Justice Hare; Blair Alderman was the copper; and Peter Tugman, portrayed pale little William.

Between acts, several entertaining selections were given. Knollin and Blair Alderman appropriately sang that heart-breaking melody, "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" and were encored again, and again. Sally Elliot Allen, with appropriate gestures contributed to the atmosphere of the time, with a reading, "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight."

sight, and imagination so necessary for a successful administration of the many features of Junior Weekend."

The canoe fete, always a brilliant spectacle, will be the main feature of this year's program. Each float will depict a stage in the growth of the state. All of the other subsequent events, including the junior prom, Mothers' day exercises, and others, will be modeled on this plan.

Arrangements Made
Arrangements have already been made to advertise the event, and the Portland chamber of commerce, as well as the advertising club of that city, has pledged its whole-hearted support.

Other appointments to the directorate will be announced by Davis early next term. For the next few weeks he will be at work perfecting plans for the numerous events on the Junior Weekend program.

Women Debate in Leaburg
The women's debate team went to Leaburg last night, where speeches on the subject of the education system were given. Margery Kissing, Hermine Zwanck, Glendolene Vinyard, and Ruth Vannice were the members who represented the team.

Clark Asked To Take Part In Inventory

Project Planned to Last Eight Weeks

Survey Aims to Make Conference Material Available for Student Use

A letter received recently by R. C. Clark, head of the history department, from Joseph Mayer, chairman of the Commission on National Archives Survey in Washington, D. C., asks Professor Clark to accept the key position of the state in a proposed national survey of local archives under CWA auspices.

Enclosed with the letter is an explanation of the project which is planned to occupy eight weeks' time and constitutes an inventory of documents bearing on the nation's institutions and history.

"The purpose would be," according to the paper, "to uncover and make available for public officials and students of governmental, economic, military, legal and social history generally, most important source materials which are at present hidden away or heedlessly destroyed; to improve the archival practices of local American governmental units and make for uniformity and comparability where now there is the widest divergence and haphazard accumulation; and to afford a reliable basis for more careful selection and preservation and for estimates of future archive building needs."

The communication continues: "The inventory would in general cover the evidence of settled social organization in the United States, and would include records of taxation, mortgages, roads, property titles and transfers, wills, vital statistics, the care of the poor and insane, adoptions, naturalizations, schools, militia and other military and naval organizations, etc."

A total of 2708 workers are to be employed should the proposal be accepted, and $585,444 is expected to be the total cost of the project.

"No greater opportunity has ever been presented and will probably never again be given to secure a comprehensive inventory of the basic materials upon which public officials and students of social organization must depend for a more accurate and complete picture of the history and institutions of the country," writes Mayer.

"But whether this project will be approved or will be carried to a successful conclusion after approval

March 7 Last Chance To Get Your Oregon; There Aren't 100 Left

Less than 100 copies of the Oregon are still available for purchase, figures from the business office of the University year-book revealed yesterday.

Wednesday, March 7, will be the last chance to secure copies of this future family heirloom, which will contain etchings by Zane, reports of University activities of the school year 1933-34, and many features innovated this year under the editorship of Madeleine Gilbert.

Honorary Will Initiate 5 Pledges on Sunday

Five pledges will be initiated into Alpha Kappa Psi, national business administration honorary, next Sunday morning at 9 o'clock.

Following the initiation there will be an election of officers and at 10 o'clock there will be a breakfast at the Anchorage.

The new members will be Gerald Hensen, Avery Coombs, Joe Simpson, George Economus, and Lloyd Green.

term and no later than the first week of spring term. They may be made through Callas by calling 2613-J or by placing a note on the main bulletin board in the Journalism building.

Local merchants who have cooperated in making the contest possible through their contributions include the McDonald theater, O Duck Inn, Best Cleaners, Paul D. Green's, Oregon Pharmacy, Oregon Confectionary, and DeNeff's.

In attempting to revive this type of contest which was held annually until three years ago, Callas stated that he hoped the same enthusiasm would be aroused that was prevalent during the former contests.

Pi Lambda Theta To Have Initiation

Pi Lambda Theta, women's education honorary, will initiate its newly elected members March 8 at Gerlinger hall. Eleven women were elected at the last meeting, but acceptances have not yet been received from all the prospective pledges.

Those elected were Mrs. Marguerite Mills, Mrs. Jennie Kearns, Mrs. Evelyn French, Mrs. Anne L. Beck, Loveda Mann, June Emry, Janet Cox, Elizabeth Barto, Mrs. Emily De Groot, Lucille Hill and Mabel Bunneke.

The initiation, which will be held at 6:15 in Gerlinger, will be followed by a banquet and a program at the Marigolde tea room at 7 o'clock.

Oregon Rifle Team Is Victor Over 3 Schools

Culver Military academy, University of Washington and University of Cincinnati all succumbed last week to the overwhelming score of the University of Oregon rifle team.

Under the leadership of record-breaker Horace Neely, the University squad is certain of being one of the few eligible teams to enter the national finals next term. The score made during the last match was 3708, which is more than 60 points over last year's similar score.

Officers Elected By German Club

Six new officers were elected to lead Der Deutsche Verein, German study club, at a meeting of the organization held at the Westminister house Thursday evening.

Charles Heltzel, sophomore, was elected president of the group. Other officers named were vice-president, Gertrude von Bertheldorf; secretary, Evelyn Schmidt; treasurer, Robert Knapp; sergeant at arms; Earl Ripp; and editor, Elaine Ellmaker.

The purpose of the organization as outlined by the members is "to create and maintain an interest in German culture through relative study and social activity." The club meets every other Thursday. Any one taking a course in German or is interested is invited to attend the meetings.

Threat of Dollar Fine Restores Thirty Lids

Rooters' lids returned today reduced by about 30 the number of dollars that the Associated Students will be forced to charge students not returning the lids before March 15.

The lids were signed for before the Oregon-Oregon State football game last fall with the understanding that the students responsible for them would have $1 deducted from their deposit in the comptroller's office if they were not returned.
