

Student Group Votes Support OASU Of Drive

Committee Hopes to Add Non-Members

100 PER CENT IS AIM

Blanks to Be Circulated to Obtain Activity Cards Without Cash Payment Immediately

Convinced that, if possible, every student registered in the University should be a member of the A. S. U. O., a committee of 50 student leaders met yesterday and unanimously voted to launch a campaign to secure additional members in the student organization. This committee of 50, which has been active in other student functions throughout the year, is composed of heads of all the living organizations on the campus and leaders of independent men and women.

The half-hundred students present were enthusiastic over a proposal to approach non-members through an organized membership drive, and not a dissenting voice was raised against a motion to back a membership campaign to begin immediately "to safeguard student government at the University of Oregon."

Stoddard Speaks

In charge of the membership drive will be Ralph Schomp, Malcolm Bauer, and Ralph Walstrom, who will work in conjunction with the enforcement committee composed of Bill Russell and Marygoldie Hardison.

Those present at yesterday's meeting were provided with membership blanks and a list of the non-members in their respective organizations. These blank forms were drawn up to make it possible for a student to become a member of the A. S. U. O. immediately without the actual cash payment of the $5 fee.

In signing these blanks, the member agrees to pay the student fee as a regular installment on his registration fee, final payment of which is due on or before May 5. As soon as the blank is filled out in the proper form, the student may present it at the cashier's window in Johnson hall, and he will be given privileges of membership in the student body at once.

Stoddard, explained graduate member, to the committee the seriousness of the problem with which the A. S. U. O. is faced. He outlined the many activities and events supported fully or in part by the organization, and warned those present that unless a concerted effort was made to increase student body membership, it would be impossible for the A. S. U. O. to keep up its extensive program of extra-curricular activities, including sports, class events, orchestra and band concerts, and similar functions.

Tongue, student body president, explained the possibility that unless the students show an interest in their organization that the state board of higher education might see fit to change radically the existing system of student self-government. "The one way to show this loyalty and interest in student government," concluded Tongue, "is to show your approval of the present system by subscribing to the $5 fee."

Last night marked the opening of the organized drive, and all non-members, independents as well as members of living organizations, will be given an opportunity to gain the privileges of student body membership. Already one sorority, Alpha Phi, has announced 100 per cent membership. Others are expected to reach this limit in the near future.

Brian Heath Wins Edison Marshall Award for Story

'Trilogy of Youth' Wins $50 Prize; Ethan Newman, Marjorie Neill Receive Mention

Brian Heath, sophomore social science major, is winner of the Edison Marshall short story contest which was conducted during winter term under the direction of W. F. G. Thacher, professor of English. Heath's entry was entitled "The Trilogy of Youth."

Ethan Newman, senior economic major, and Marjorie Neill, sophomore art major, received honorable mention with their short stories entitled "The Gold Star" and "Other People's Lives."

Heath said that he had never entered a story in a contest before, and although interested in writing he had done nothing more than just "scribble some."

The contest in which 26 manuscripts were entered was judged by M. F. McClain, manager of Co-op store; Mrs. Beatrice Beebe, formerly of the Eugene high school faculty; and Dean M. Ellwood Smith, director of lower division at the University and O. S. C. The prize going to the winner of the contest is $50.

Professor Thacher announced that with the consent of the authors he would enter these three manuscripts and possibly two or three other entries in the college short story contest which is being conducted by the magazine Story. This contest is open to all students of colleges and universities in the United States and will close April 15. The prizes will be $100 and $50.

The Edison Marshall short story contest is one of the oldest contests on the campus, having been held annually for about 18 years. Marshall, a well-known writer now living in Augusta, Georgia, was a member of Professor Thacher's first short story class at the University 20 years ago.

36 CWA Workers Clean Out Old Libe

Employment in the old library during spring vacation was given to 36 student CWA workers. Much needed work was accomplished, according to M. H. Douglass, librarian. The workers checked through half the shelves arranging books in their proper order and striving to account for errant volumes.

Books were mended; newspapers were copied; manuscripts were checked; pictures were mounted; labels were pasted; clippings were arranged; stencils were made of lists of magazines for exchange—there was little rest for the student workers when they whipped the library into shape for the new term.

Librarian Douglass pleads for students to bring in stray books.

Fellowships Prove Scarce Even for Brilliant Students

By HOWARD KESSLER
"The present economic depression" which has, in four years become the blitest of trite phrases, is not to be blamed for unemployment alone. When the official indictment is drawn up, one of the principal charges laid against Old Man Depression will be "that he did cause a lapse in the education of the peoples of the world."

There are on file in the graduate division office in Johnson hall, papers which tend to prove this assertion beyond reasonable doubt. These files, which consist of applications for teaching fellowships at the University, have all been answered negatively and with regret, for many of them are from brilliant scholars and professors willing to work for a minimum stipend. Whereas 72 fellowships and assistantships were granted by the University in 1931, and 56 in 1932, last year there were but 16, with probabilities of even fewer in 1934.

Max W. Salvadori's is a case in point. He writes requesting a teaching fellowship which would enable him to complete the social and political studies he undertook several years ago.

"It is my intention to complete a compared study of the social transformations which are at present occurring in three typical countries, as are Traditionalist Fascist Italy," Salvadori writes, with degrees from universities in Geneva, Rome and Turin as a background. "I could teach political science, social science, international relations or economic geography."

The applicant is an English, is 26 years old, a British subject, can speak fluently English, French and Italian, and bears recommendations from Ferrero, one of the greatest authorities on history, whose exile from Italy was caused by his opposition to Mussolini, and, strangely, also from Croci, internationally

Officers of the associated women students for 1934-35 will be elected today, with voting taking place from 9 to 5 in front of the old library. Women must show their A. S. U. O. cards in order to vote.

This spring, for the first time in several years, the A. W. S. president will be elected over competition. During the last few A. W. S. elections, there has been only one presidential candidate; however, in accordance with a recommendation of last year's planning conference, two candidates, Catherine Coleman and Marygoldie Hardison, will oppose each other for the office.

Candidates Prominent

Both Miss Coleman and Miss Hardison are well known juniors and have had experience in campus as well as A. W. S. activities. Both women have served on the A. W. S. council during the past year, and are members of Phi Theta Upsilon, women's upperclass service honorary.

Catherine Coleman is now chairman of the A. W. S. speakers' committee, in charge of registration for Mother's day, and is on the Y. W. C. A. cabinet. She was assistant chairman of Coed Capers last term and chairman of tickets and masks for the A. W. S. Masked Ball. She has been on the Tonqued council and was in charge of the Tonqued Christmas Ball. She was general chairman of the 1933 Y. W. C. A. hot cross bun sale, and was in charge of the A. W. S. scrapbook in 1931-32.

Activity Varied

Marygoldie Hardison was chairman of frosh councilors this year, is chairman of the A. W. S. vocational conference, now in session, and is a member of the student body enforcement committee. She has been on the Coed Capers directorate, and was assistant chairman of the A. W. S. carnival last year. Fall term she was in charge of registration for Dad's day. She has been a member of the freshman, sophomore, and upperclass service honoraries—Thespians, Kwama, and Phi Theta Upsilon.

Two women are also competing for each of the remaining five A. W. S. offices. Marie Saccamanno and Virginia Howard, candidates for vice-president, are both juniors, and have both served on A. W. S. council during the past year. The candidates for the offices of secretary and treasurer are sophomores, and those for sergeant-at-arms and reporter freshmen.

The elected officers will be installed in a few weeks at an A. W. S. mass meeting, and will take over their duties immediately afterward.

Friday Last Day For Entering in Warner Contest

Essay Competition Gives Chance To Students to Win $400 Worth of Prizes

Friday, April 6, is the last date for submission of essays to the Warner contest dealing with the life and problems of the Pacific area. Professor Harold J. Noble, chairman of the committee in charge of the competition, announced yesterday that about 25 essays are expected to be submitted by that time covering such topics as "Japan's Trade Conflicts with Great Britain," "Extra-Territoriality in China," "Effect of the Japanese Protectorate in Manchuria on American Commerce," and "The Problem of Exchange Professions and Students Between the United States, China, and Japan."

"We are rather astonished that there are not more entrants for a contest of this kind," said Noble, commenting on the opportunities available for research in the Murray Warner oriental art museum and the prizes offered, totaling $400.

The Warner essay contest, sponsored by Mrs. Gertrude Bass Warner annually was instituted "to promote better understanding between Americans and Orientals." The general subject of this year's contest deals with methods to improve relations of the United States and the countries of East-ern Asia.

Nine awards are given to American and foreign students, who must have taken one classroom course dealing with the history, economic and social, or international relations of countries of the Far East.

University Group Chooses Drama For Spring Term

Puppet Show, Shakespearean and Russian Comedies to Be Presented

A modern Russian comedy, a Shakespearean comedy, and a puppet show—such is the program of the University theater group for the spring term as announced by Mrs. Ottilie T. Seybolt, dramatics director of the University.

"Evelevnov's 'The Chief Thing'" will be given on May 2, 4, and 5. It is a comedy in a light vein as contrasted with the somberness of the usual Russian play. Horace W. Robinson is directing the performance.

A specially constructed sylvan theater will be used for Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew," which is to be given on May 25 and 26 under the direction of Mrs. Seybolt. A number of University theater players will form the nucleus for a group of actors and actresses which will include faculty members and town-people as well as University students.

"The Wizard of Oz," a marionette performance by the Cornish Puppeteers will be brought to Eugene by the University theater group. The date for this show, which is especially interesting to children, has not been announced yet. There will be, however, a matinee for children as well as a performance for adults.

Mrs. Seybolt, in commenting on the Cornish Puppeteers, ranked them with the famous Italian Teatro dei Piccoli, which showed with great success in New York two years ago. She also said that she considered "The Wizard of Oz" one of the finest puppet shows which has been in the United States in the last decade.

AWS President Warns Women Houses Not To Give 100% Vote

Warning has been issued by Jean Failing, A.W.S. president, that women's living organizations are not allowed to pledge themselves to support any candidate or group of candidates 100 per cent in today's elections. Voting is to be absolutely individual.

The penalty for an organization pledging 100 per cent support will be that all members of that organization will be automatically prohibited from holding office or participating in any way in the A.W.S. for the ensuing term.

This ruling and the penalty accompanying it are final, having been passed last year by action of the A.W.S. council and heads of houses.

200 Jobless C.W.A. Students Still Wait For Official News

University Relief Committee Makes Final Arrangements to Help Should Aid Fall

University officials and approximately 200 jobless students, confronted with the possible necessity of withdrawing from school, waited and hoped in vain yesterday for notification from Portland FERA headquarters that student emergency relief work would be resumed. The word did not come.

Chancellor W. J. Kerr, who told the Emerald Monday night that he had received information indirectly from Senators McNary and Steiwer in Washington, D. C., to the effect that the student aid work would be resumed, said last night that he was "hopefully expectant" that official word from Elmer Goudy, Oregon FERA, will be received today.

The University's committee on federal relief for students met yesterday afternoon and made final arrangements for putting the students to work if and when it receives official authorization. The committee is considering applications of needy students to replace some whose low scholastic average last term makes them ineligible for the federal aid work this spring term.

Summer Session Invitation Given To Harold Noble

Seminar on Berkeley Campus Would Further Interest in the Orient

Harold J. Noble, associate professor of history, has been invited to attend a summer seminar on Far Eastern studies at the University of California at Berkeley, according to a letter received recently by him from Allen C. Blaisdell, director of International house on the U. of O. campus, one of the organizations that is sponsoring the six weeks of study.

The classes, which will last from June 25 to August 3, are under the auspices of the Committee on the Promotion of Chinese Studies of the American Council of Learned Societies, the Committee on Japanese Studies of the American Council of Learned Societies, the Committee of International Relations of the University of California and International house, and will consist of a group of not more than 30 professors from the universities and colleges of the Pacific coast states.

"We feel that the seminar is to be an important experiment in an effort to increase our concern on the Pacific coast relative to the culture of the Orient," writes Blaisdell. "The selected group of scholars will have the opportunity to supplement their knowledge of Far Eastern matters, to discover the ways in which that knowledge can be subsequently increased, to become acquainted with a number of the active scholars in the field and to discuss the particular problems which they have to face in offering instruction."
