THE Gamma Alpha Chi fashion dance appears as the big event for this week-end.

Besides serving as a harbinger of spring, at which the modes of the season will be modeled after the established tradition, the dance will also be a Co-Ed's Revenge since all inviting will be done by the women. Campus males this week can do no more than stand around and look coy, while the girls take the aggressive and keep them worried.

Fifteen mannequins will model the latest spring apparel, ranging all the way from sports wear to formals.

Engagement Is Announced

The engagement of Velma Hamilton, '34, to Harry Visse, graduate student, was announced recently. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Hamilton is a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority and Gamma Alpha Chi, women's advertising honorary. She is from Corvallis and a senior in journalism.

Mr. Visse is a member of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity, is working for a master's degree in business administration, and is from Pomona, California.

Alum Is Guest

Miss Louise Webber, Portland, was a guest at the Gamma Phi Beta house last week-end.

Miss Beebe Returns

Miss Evelyn Beebe, Portland, was in Eugene, Tuesday, visiting friends on the campus. Miss Beebe recently returned from a trip on the Continent, where she has been touring with her parents and sister, Jane.

Miss Beebe is a University student and a member of Kappa Alpha Theta.

Graduate to Wed

Miss Thora Boesen, formerly of Eugene, and George F. Taylor, Seattle, are to be married in Seattle, April 11.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. C. M. Boesen of Eugene. She is a graduate of the University of Oregon and former executive secretary of the Red Cross in Salem.

The young couple will make their home in Seattle.

Entertained at Tea

Sigma Alpha Epsilon chapter house was the scene of an Easter tea, Sunday, April 1, when the Minerva club, composed of wives and mothers of the S. A. E.'s, entertained the members and guests of that fraternity. Tea and cakes were served from 5 to 7:30 p. m.

Nice Fresh Trout, Menu for 'Lucky' Women Patients

Patients of the infirmary will get a break today for trout fresh from the McKenzie river will be served for dinner. Miss Margaret L. Colahan, nurse in the infirmary, is the donor, she accompanied by Phoebe Thomas, Ed Cross, and Raymond Force, yesterday caught nineteen trout, ranging from 14 to 18 inches in length, above the dam.

Ruth Hansen and Virginia George are the lucky ones now at the infirmary and will be the only ones to be served this dish unless there should be a sudden epidemic spread over the campus caused by the odor from the frying pan of those fish.

Yesterday being the opening day of the fish catching season, and a perfect day, lured many anglers to the pool. Everyone seemed to be having good luck reported Miss Colahan.

Miss Colahan plans another fishing trip April 20, this time it will be in Salem.

Speakers Tell of Woman's Relation To Surroundings

Mrs. Van Loan Says Few Women Can Combine Home, Career Successfully

It happened that the speakers at both of yesterday afternoon's round tables, held under the A. W. S. vocational conference, considered women in relation to the community.

Mrs. W. L. Van Loan, Eugene Girl Scout commissioner, speaking on "Woman in the Home and Community," dealt with the voluntary participation in community service during leisure time; while Mrs. Dorothy McKee Fudge, supervisor of Portland playgrounds, although her speech was on "Vocational Training and Its Application to the Field of Recreation," spoke largely of the value and service of recreational work to the community.

It is only a superior woman who can combine a position and a career with marriage, said Mrs. W. L. VanLoan, who, herself, she admitted, at one time attempted to combine the two. The attention which must be given to the home and career is so great that most women must make one of the two secondary, stated the Girl Scout commissioner, adding (and this was addressed to a particular girl), "And I hope, for your sake, that you will make the career second."

Mrs. Van Loan sat comfortably in front of the audience as she talked, most of the time discussing problems and answering questions, rather than actually giving a speech. "Every woman must have a plan of living," she emphasized several times. In this way she can divide her time so that she can fulfill her home duties and have leisure time to devote to work in the community.

Mrs. Van Loan recommended some branch of community service work as an outlet of energy for women who are not actively busy at home, as well as for the spare time even of women who are just making a home. The broader outlook which interests outside the home give a woman, according to Mrs. Van Loan, enable her to be a better helpmate and inspiration to her husband, and a more understanding and intelligent mother, thus making the woman even better qualified for the three jobs of the married woman—housekeeper, wife, and mother.

Mrs. Dorothy McKee Fudge, speaking after Mrs. Van Loan, considered the practical aspects and problems of the woman who takes as a vocation the field of recreational work in the community.

With actual experience as a background, Mrs. Fudge discussed possible positions in recreational work, and the programs which are carried on in community houses and playgrounds, which furnish one of the greatest possibilities in the field. Mrs. Fudge enumerated the activities which are found on recreational programs, and the training necessary for teaching or supervising these activities.

"It is absolutely essential that you cater to the popular demand of the general public," stated Mrs. Fudge in speaking of the activities and programs carried on by recreational workers. She discussed the problems in certain activities, and how they have been met in her experience.

A girl who wishes to enter the recreational field should have a complete academic background, according to Mrs. Fudge, who went on to tell the requirements of different positions, and the methods and requirements in applying for them.

Clark Notified of New Appointment

R. C. Clark, head of the history department, was recently notified of his appointment to the editorial board of the Frontier and Midland, a quarterly magazine published at the University of Montana and edited by Prof. H. G. Merriam, head of the English department of that institution and formerly of the faculty of Reed college in Portland.

The publication gives space to articles and documents relating to the Pacific Northwest, and Professor Clark has been offered the position because of his writing and research in this field.

Of the Frontier and Midland Harry Hansen, writing in the New York World-Telegram, says: "Among the magazines that have recently reached me, Frontier and Midland stacks up the best."

Considerable fiction is contained in the magazine besides the historical section which Clark will help to prepare.

Inspects Scouts

Miss Vaal Stark, regional director of the Girl Scouts, who is here to conduct a leaders' training course and inspect the district.

Girl Scout Leader Will Offer Course

Miss Vaal Stark, executive leader of the Girl Scouts of Oregon, Washington, California, the Hawaiian Islands, and Alaska, will personally conduct a Eugene leaders' training course all day today, during which time all girls who are interested in the principles of training and discipline may attend the conference.

While the course is especially designed for those women planning to become leaders of Girl Scouts, any University woman who is planning to become an instructor or leader of girls is privileged to attend these lectures.

The meetings will be held at the Skinner's Butte park from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. Lectures and informal round table discussions have been arranged so that University students may come at their most convenient hours and still gain information.

A Drink Is Legal, But When a Dog Quaffs, It's News

The business administration of the University does not keep a record of stray dogs, their age, class, or how long they have attended the University, but it is known that they are learning something. Yesterday a few students were watching two dogs trying to drink from the fountain in front of the main library.

The feat was accomplished by the smaller of the two German police dogs, after the larger one had forced him from a drinking hole back of the fountain. After circling the fountain several times and trying out different positions, he finally learned that if he stood on his hind feet with his side to the fountain and allowed his shoulder to lean against the bowl, he could lick the water as it spouted out.

Some observers said the dog had learned this feat by watching students drink at the fountain, while others maintained that he knew the water was there and, being thirsty, learned through a trial and error process how to get it.

Last term a similar feat was performed by a dog that was run over by a passing automobile and brought to the dispensary.

Senior Honorary To Give Campus Formal April 28

Kwamas for New Year Formally Pledged at Mortar Board Ball

One of the most important events of the spring term social calendar, the Mortar Board ball, is scheduled for April 28. It is sponsored by Mortar Board, senior women's honorary. This year it will be held at the Osburn hotel and the price will be one dollar a couple. Since it is sponsored by a women's honorary, it is an occasion when women invite and call for the men.

Three purposes are served by the Mortar Board ball: it is the honorary's largest project by which money for service work is obtained; it is the occasion chosen as appropriate for formally pledging the new members of Kwama, sophomore women's service honorary; and it is the time tuxes and formal gowns appear for an all-campus formal spring term.

The money gained from the ball will be used this term for small scholarships to be presented to girls working their way through college. A part of the returns will also finance the tea to be held in the near future for junior women and faculty wives.

The formal pledging of Kwamas follows the secret election of the new members by the old. The identity of the new members is not revealed until the night of the dance, when they are tapped by the old members and parade through the ball room. After the parade, the pledge ribbons are pinned on each new Kwama by Dean Hazel P. Schwering.

Entrance in Pingpong Meet Declared Open

Entry in the annual intramural sponsorship of the campus Y, was declared open yesterday by Henry Roberts, who is in charge of the event.

Men's living organizations wishing to compete for the trophy now held by Sigma Alpha Epsilon, should phone their entries to the Y hut, Roberts said. No definite date has as yet been set for the competition.

INCONSISTENCY (Editorial)

By C. J. L.
No truer saying than "Woman, thy name is inconsistency," could be applied to the turnout of women at the A.W.S. vocational conferences Wednesday and Thursday. It was a startling incongruity to see how few women attended these meetings in comparison to the number who vouch they will surely have a "career" or get a job after they graduate.
As a canon is to a popgun, so is three-fourths of the women's ostensible determination to make something of themselves, compared to what they really accomplish. We are not disparaging the "little house to keep," but only showing up that group of coeds who say they are "careering" and don't mean it.
The splendid chance to get the "low down" on the way successful women feel about their world and their jobs was offered by the women's association here, with the results mentioned. May we apologize to the speakers who gave their time to enlighten the Oregon coeds and found themselves talking to a scanty group?

Josephine Waffle Elected to Office

Josephine Waffle was elected president of heads of houses at a dinner given at the Chi Omega house Thursday evening at 6:30. Eleanor Stevenson was elected vice-president, and Mary Stewart, secretary-treasurer.

Ida Mae Nickels, retiring president, took charge of the business meeting.

Miss Sherman Receives M. A.

Miss Dorothy Sherman of Portland recently successfully passed her final examinations for her M. A. degree in history, writing her thesis on the subject, "The History of the Lumber Industry in Oregon." She returned to her home at the end of the winter term.

Department Head Speaks to Group On Creating Jobs

Miss Cooley Says Graduates Must Have Enthusiasm Above Academic Training

"No longer can a college graduate say that she is 'looking' for a job, and very often do it," declared Miss Vivian Cooley, head of Meier and Frank's book department, Portland, when she spoke on "Modern Trends in Business" at the Wednesday evening session of the A. W. S. vocational conference. "Today a college graduate must create a place for herself or herself in the business world."

"It is not so much what you know, but what you do with what you know, that is important in finding a job," emphasized Miss Cooley. As some of the requisites of a person who succeeds in the business world, she stresses creative genius, creative ability, and the desire to serve, which, she stated, is the foundation of life and living. Enthusiasm was ranked by Miss Cooley above academic training; however, the ideal situation is to have a sufficient amount of both. "But one must have enthusiasm in business," she declared, "whether it be in selling flowers, or coffins."

Miss Cooley also pointed out the importance of knowing exactly what one was doing, and urged the coeds to beware of the applicant for a job who claims he can do everything. "Usually such people do nothing well," she added.

Two books were recommended by her for prospective job seekers. "Finding a Job," by Roger Babson, and "Careers for Women," by Catherine Filene. Both of these may be obtained at the campus library.

Y Committee Chosen

Five University men, prominent in campus Y. M. C. A. activities, were appointed by this year's Y president, Cosgrove La Barre, on a committee to nominate candidates for office in next year's Y cabinet. Jay Wilson, chairman, Bob Foley, Clark Irwin, Howard Ohmart, Andy Newhouse, and Eugene Stomberg compose the committee.

Spring Fashions for Milady To Be Promenaded at Dance

30 Oregon Coeds To Attend Meeting

Leaving tomorrow at 12:30, approximately 30 University women will attend the annual Y. W. C. A. training conference to be held for the second successive year at Cold Springs.

The purpose of this conference is to bring the new cabinet closer together, to formulate new plans for the coming year, to bring the new and old members to a better realization of the Y's place on the campus, and create closer friendship and understanding among all members of the Y. W. C. A.

Outstanding speakers of the conference will be John L. Caspell and Mrs. George Winchell. Other features of the program are opening and closing vespers services, discussions of various Y activities, how to improve them and promote general campus interest in them, and interesting recreational hours.

Rosalind Gray, president of the Y. W. C. A., is chairman of the conference. Sub-chairmen are: Frances Rothwell, registrar; Jean Lewis, program; and Betty Ohlmann, transportation.

Because so many people who were interested in attending the conference are unable to leave Saturday afternoon, a few cars are leaving early Sunday morning.

Arne Rae Will Attend Code Authority Meet

Arne G. Rae, assistant professor of journalism and field manager of the Oregon State Editorial association, left for Portland Thursday morning, where he will attend a regional joint code authority meeting at the Multnomah hotel Friday.

Rae, regional code administration manager for the two divisions of the publishing and printing industry in Oregon, will attend meetings of the Oregon State Editorial association and of the regional code authority Saturday.

All the latest notes that fashion has named foremost for spring modes will be shown tomorrow evening at the Gamma Alpha Chi fashion dance, according to interviews with Eugene merchants who are contributing displays for the style parade, which will be featured at the intermission, near 10:30.

Stylists have ordained that femininity be an outstanding factor in the lines of the new gowns, so the 15 coed mannequins who will exhibit the costumes will be featured at the intermission, near 10:30.

Stylists have ordained that femininity be an outstanding factor in the lines of the new gowns, so the 15 coed mannequins who will exhibit the costumes will be featured at the intermission, near 10:30.

Pleating, according to the outstanding Paris and Hollywood designers should be shown somewhere on every dress, no matter what its type. To fit in with this theory, two particular gowns will be shown. One is a hand embroidered evening frock of sheer white organdy. The contrasting colors, carried out by the handwork, are red, blue, and yellow. The low back and shoulders are banded by pleated ruffs. The dress is shown by McMorran and Washburne.

Densmore-Leonard will feature another dress that fits in well with the latest style notes. It is a white sand crepe afternoon dress with drop sleeve effect. A sapphire blue belt and pleats on the sleeves, hem, and pockets make it quite unusual. To complete the costume the model will wear one of the popular new large brimmed hats.

From Beard's comes a lightweight wool angora three-piece sport suit. It is one of the exclusive Hollywood style dresses, and is carried out in the unusual, but effective, color scheme of fall colors—yellow, green, and rust.

The essence of simplicity and sophistication is the Town Talk washable formal depicted in Vogue and offered by Barnhart's. It is a blue and white striped toe-length frock, complete with train and pleats.

A unique feature of the style show will be the floral display and personal adornments. The most popular spring flowers will be made into corsages, bracelets, and tiaras to suit the costume. These are being arranged by the College Flower shop.
