

Oregon Rifle Squad Shoots In Last Meet

Season Ended Monday With Match

Webfoot Marksmen Compete With Best Teams in Country Via Telegraph

The University rifle team completed its season Monday, when it met the best teams of the country in a telegraphic meet to determine the national champion, according to Harvey Blythe, who is in charge of the sharpshooters. The results of the tourney will be known in about two weeks.

The teams competing in this meet were the highest 15 percent, chosen by an elimination process, sponsored by the war department of the National Rifle Association. Oregon, which is in the western portion, placed third, with U.C.L.A., first, and Washington second. California, Idaho, and Washington State college also slipped into the finals.

Season Successful

During the regular season the duck marksmen went through the most successful year ever enjoyed by an Oregon rifle team, winning 22, and losing 3. The Webfoots bowed to North Dakota A. & M., Cornell, and Idaho. They met and defeated such strong outfits as Washington, Oregon State college, Stanford, and New York stock exchange.

A new impetus was given the team when it competed for the Hearst trophy. This award, donated by W. R. Hearst, is given to the five-man team placing highest in the Hearst trophy match. Every club enters this tourney, if possible, and ownership of the cup is prized. Blythe stated that the Ducks, competing for the award, bettered by 10 points the mark of the champion last year.

Turnout Increases

Blythe, who came to the University of Oregon two years ago, has been successful with his rifle teams. When he started as head of the rifle shooting department, only 15 turned out, whereas he is greeted with 40 aspirants last fall. In 1933, his first year, the rifle team won 26 and lost 7. The members of the team which competed this year include Horace Neely, Earl Thompson, B. J. Cross, John Beard, Phil Mulder, Harold Price, K. E. BeLieu, Bill Rice, Walt Swanson, P. J. Lew, Bob Parker, Leith Oglesby, Ralph Osborn, Del Bjork, and C. A. Ayers. Out of this group, 11 will return next year.

Political Science Student to Make Ordinance Study

Municipal Research Bureau Will Take Charge of House Moving Project

A project which involves the study of 19 city ordinances for house-moving taken from various cities in all parts of the United States has been taken over by the municipal research bureau of the University.

The analysis which is being done at the request of Ormond R. Bean, commissioner of public works of Portland, has been placed in the hands of Upton Bickford, political science student.

"This is a very important piece of work," is stated Herman Kehrl, director of the bureau, "and it is seldom that we would intrust it in the hands of a student."

Bean expects to draw up a new ordinance for Portland from the data revealed by this analysis. The ordinances are being examined on eight different points: amount of bond, license fee, method used in collection of damage costs, how cost of moving wires etc. is handled, inspection before and after removal, limitations on size, penalty for unnecessary delay, and hours of day or night that a house can be moved.

Bulletin Includes Dean's Statement Of Oriental Policy

Wayne L. Morse Quoted in Opinion On United States' Stand On Immigration

The March, 1934, bulletin of the Pacific Coast Council on Oriental Relations, which includes the opinions of authoritative men throughout the United States who favor the quota plan for China and Japan, contains a statement by Wayne L. Morse, dean of the University law school, concerning the United States' policy in Oriental immigration.

The statement is: "International understanding and good will between the United States and the Orient are handicapped by the immigration policy of the United States. Public pronouncements by American statesmen to the effect that we seek only friendly relations with China and Japan seem to ring falsely with hypocrisy when considered in the light of the exclusion act. Quota methods should appeal to every American's sense of fair dealing."

Dean Morse is a member of the American Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations, and is very much interested in problems of international law connected with the Orient.

Thursday evening. Guests will include Mrs. Alice B. Macduff, Mrs. Murray Warner, Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Schwering, Dean and Mrs. James H. Gilbert, Dean and Mrs. Harrison V. Hoyt, and Dean and Mrs. George Rebec.

McDonald—"Wonder Bar," Al Jolson, Dick Powell, Kay Francis, Dolores Del Rio. Colonial—"Catherine the Great," Elizabeth Bergner.

By J. A. NEWTON

"Catherine the Great" is the second big production from the studio and director which and who gave us "Henry VIII." It recalls its predecessor very strongly. The general atmosphere is the same, if the characters and situations do differ, and the picture is fully as good.

The story is built on the incidents connected with the accession of Catherine the Great to the throne of Russia. The drama is centered about Catherine's loyalty to her husband, the mad Czar Peter. The people hate Peter and want Catherine on the throne. Peter becomes more and more eccentric in his treatment of general and his household in cathart until the people persuade her to take the throne and put Peter where he won't cause any more disturbance.

Douglas Fairbanks Jr. does a fine bit of acting, as well as Elizabeth Bergner, as noted yesterday. In fact, one wonders if he is not the star.

"Wonder Bar" is the show bar of Paris. It is run by Al Wonder (Jolson), and the main attraction is the rumba dance team of Ricardo Cortez and Dolores Del Rio. The play begins approximately at the evening opening of the bar and ends with the closing on the same night, or should I say the next morning?

Within this time Cortez is murdered, Jolson puts on two revue extravaganzas, Guy Kibbee and Hugh Herbert almost succeed in having a good evening's entertainment with Fifi D'Orsay and Dolores Kennedy, Dick Powell and Dolores Del Rio fall in love.

The revues make this very worthwhile. Busby Berkeley, who was responsible for the revues in "Forty-second Street," "Mermaid Scandals," "Gold Diggers," etc. And nobody can beat him at that business.

Go for the revues and the Jolson personality.
