Emerald Workers Head Co-op Browsers

Very Mysterious Mystery Stories Are Required by Wallie Hug George Bennett

Athletes and the great majority of other outstanding men of action find little time for recreational reading. Mrs. Elsie Belknap, Co-op librarian, concluded yesterday as she thumbed through her file of customers in a vain effort to find names of campus notables.

The one group of activity students who find time to browse through books not required by college courses, are Emerald workers, the files showed. Some of the slaves of the press, who find relaxation in reading are: Sterling Green, Emerald editor, who displays fine discrimination in his selection of books, reading only books of established merit; Barney Clark, humor editor and author of "Innocent Bystander," who never takes a book out to read through, but haunts the library reading snatches from all types of books—especially the lighter types; Peggy Chessman, who reads all of the new books for material to fill her Emerald column; Parks Hitchcock, who reads extensively, showing good taste in his selection; Cynthia Liljeqvist, who likes books on current topics.

Activity women find more time than men to patronize the "high-hat" library. Jean Failing and Elizabeth Bendstrup both like to relax by reading a well-chosen romantic book of fiction.

Wallace Hug, varsity swimmer, loves to read mystery stories during his leisure moments as life-guard at the men's pool.

Ed Martindale, president of the senior class, finds time to devour numerous non-fiction books, biographies being his favorites.

George Bennett, senior in political science, during his numerous and long moments of relaxation, notes on reading very mysterious m y s t e r y stories. Occasionally, when he feels a little more ambitions, he turns to the books of such modern economic writers as Norman Thomas and Stuart Chase, with whom he disagrees.

Walter McCaffery, senior in history is very fastidious about his reading. He demands mystery stories, tastily spiced with a wee bit of romance.

Thus is finished the roll call of the most consistent hauntings of that little corner of the Co-op, called the "high-hat" library.

Britain, Holland, Iceland, Italy, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, and Canada.

To the westerner the early time in the east means that he will get news in the evening paper that ordinarily would have been left over until the morning paper goes to press, he can hear Amos and Andy one hour earlier, and enjoy many eastern orchestras in the early part of the evening.

The hour robbed from the early risers last week will be paid back next September 30.

SORORITY PRIZE TO BE GIVEN FOR MOTHERS

This theme is regarded as particularly appropriate, since the state's diamond jubilee is also scheduled at Medford in early June.

Events carrying out the theme include the canoe fete, and exercises at the statues of the Pioneer and the Pioneer Mother. Other weekend events are the coronation of the campus queen, the pledging to Friars and Mortar Board, the campus luncheon, campus day, junior prom, and various athletic events. Bill C. Davis, junior in science, is chairman of the Junior Weekend committee.

By GEORGE BIKMAN

If you're a Pitts-Sumnerville fan, and even if you aren't, you should like "Love Birds." The title is a pun on the chickens which Slim loves so dearly until he meets Zasu.

They are separately rooked into buying a lonely place "of peace and quiet." They scrap entertainingly for the property. A prospector finds a gold vein out of Slim's mouth, and news gets around that there's gold on the place. Fortune seekers come swarming, and what, with a villain and some more people, there are things doing. But if all's swell that ends well, this is swell.

Little Buster Phelps does well in "Broken Dreams." His mother dies when he is born, and his father refuses to see the boy until he is six. Meanwhile the father, Randolph Scott marries a nice girl, Martha Sleeper. The married couple bring the lad to live with them, but the sophisticated wife bungles the job as substitute mother. She feels that the boy is taking her husband away from her.

The father is called away, and little Buster is seriously injured. Guess the rest.

Doc Clark Gable
By J. A. NEWTON

A director named Boleslavsky directed "Men in White," which is showing at the Mac. He's the same one who did "Fugitive Lovers," which I think was pretty good stuff.

This is the story of a young interne, who slips up one night after everything has gone wrong, and the nurse, a very lonely English girl, played by Elizabeth Allen. The doc is scheduled to marry Myrna Loy, but when this girl arries at the hospital in trouble, and eventually dies of an illegal operation, which had been performed by the young doc, the story gets out.

The operation sequence looks as good to me as did the one in "Symphony of Six Million," and I've heard that the latter was very good.

In "You're Telling Me," W. C. Fields is an inventor who produces a bullet-proof tire. His daughter, the very cute Joan Marsh, won't marry the son of the town's wealthiest and snootiest family, Buster Crabbe, because she lives on "the other side of the railroad tracks."

Well, papa Fields sells the tire and gets rich, and everything is fine.

Adrienne Ames plays the visiting princess who takes a liking to the homely ways of Fields and puts him and his family on the social map.

College Students' Reading Contest Will Close May 15

Length of Reviews to Be Between 20 and 150 Words; Co-op Has Guide Pamphlets

May 15 is to be the deadline date for entrance in the University's brief book review contest being conducted on the campus under the auspices of National Committee on College Reading, according to Mrs. Elsie Belknap, Co-op librarian and S. Stephenson Smith, associate professor of English and member of the national college reading committee.

The contest offers a first prize of three $1 books and a second prize of two books for the best brief, original descriptions of any of the 900 books, which are listed in the committee's pamphlet, "Students' Guide to Good Reading." These pamphlets are available at the Co-op to students desiring to enter the competition.

Rules of the contest require that each entrant submit a minimum of three such descriptions, but students may submit as many more as they wish. The reviews may be as short as 20 words and as long as 150, but description from 50 to 100 words in length is preferable. Last year's contest winners were Laura O. Goldsmith, junior in Romance languages and Jay R. Wilson, senior in economics. Miss Goldsmith's winning review was a review of Emily Bronte's "Wuthering Heights." Wilson's prize-

The Guide lists and classifies 900 books, considered by the national committee of teachers of English to have merit as well as popularity. Many of the list can be secured at the Co-op rental library and nearly all are sold in dollar editions at the Co-op.

S. Stephenson Smith, associate professor of English, prepared the section of the Guide listing outstanding books coming under the head of renaissance on the continent.

They Taste Better!

Luckies are all-ways kind to your throat

WHEREVER the finest tobaccos grow—in our own Southland, in Turkey, in Greece—all over the world, we gather the very Cream of the tobacco Crops for Lucky Strike. And that means only the clean center leaves. The center leaves are the mildest leaves—they taste better and farmers are paid higher prices for them. These clean center leaves are the only ones used in making Luckies. Then "It's toasted"—for throat protection. And every Lucky is fully packed with these choice tobaccos—made round and firm, free from loose ends—that's why Luckies "keep in condition"—why you'll find that Luckies do not dry out—an important point to every smoker. Naturally, Luckies are always in all-ways kind to your throat.

Announcement of Rules Made for Rhodes Scholars

Award of $2000 for Two Years at Oxford Is Available for Annual Contest

The announcement of, and regulations for the 1934 Rhodes scholarships have been received by the committee of selection for the University, S. Stephenson Smith, associate professor of English, and George Rebec, professor of philosophy.

Applications for this year must be in by November 17. Elections will be held the first week in January, 1935, and scholars elected at that time will enter Oxford university in October, 1935. The stipend of the scholarship is 400 pounds, or approximately $2000 a year for two years, but a third year may be awarded to men who have made outstanding records during their first two years, and whose program of studies makes a third year necessary.

To be eligible a candidate "must be a male citizen of the United States and unmarried; be between the ages of 19 and 25; and have completed at least his sophomore year at college."

Qualities which are considered in making the selection are literary and scholastic ability and attainments; qualities of manhood, truth, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy, kindness, unselfishness and fellowship; exhibition of moral force of character and of instincts to lead and to take an interest in his schoolmates; physical vigor as shown by interest in outdoor sports or in other ways.

Competition for Rhodes scholarships is held every year in every state, and for purposes of selection the United States is divided into eight districts of six states each. Each state committee is empowered to nominate two men to appear before the district committee, and from the 12 men so nominated the district committee selects four to represent their states at Oxford. The state may thus receive two scholarships or none in any one year in accordance with the merits of its candidates.

Application blanks may be obtained from Dr. George Rebec in Johnson hall, along with further information regarding the scholarships.
