McDONALD—"Death Takes a Holiday," Frederic March, Evelyn Venable, Sir Guy Standing. Also "Merry Wives of Reno," Glenda Farrell, Frank McHugh, Guy Kibbee, Margaret Lindsay.

COLONIAL—"The Black Cat," Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi, David Manners.

Supernatural Style

THERE is one dominant mood in "Death Takes a Holiday," and that is the feeling that there is a shadow hovering over all the characters. Death himself is first introduced as a transparent black shadow, and by clever directorial devices the shadowy presence is never dispelled, though Death assumes the appearance of a human being.

Briefly this is the story of Death's three-day holiday from his usual duties. He wonders why men fear him and why they act in such pointless ways. He finds out when he meets Evelyn Venable. He realizes why men fear him as his time draws to a close. The girl, who loves him also, has to decide whether she will go with him or stay.

The musical background is beautifully worked in with the action of the picture, and is excellently recorded, as well as being fine music.

Frederic March, is as usual, practically perfect in the role. Evelyn Venable is charming as the girl with misty eyes and the strange, quiet ways.

"Merry Wives of Reno" is a galloping farce built around the Nevada divorce trade. Presents three couples who have marital troubles and decide to take the Reno cure.

Frankenstein and Dracula

The scene of the action in "The Black Cat" is a modernistic castle built on the site of a former fortress. The background is quite effective, especially when the action shifts to the intricate concrete cellars under the place.

Some of the shots during this part of the show are artistic and clever.

Famous Actors Recalled by Players in Shakespeare Act

Of all Shakespeare's heroines Katharine the Shrew probably has the most unbroken record of existence since the author's own day. She has always been a favorite with comedienne, but often a tragedienne. Mrs. Siddons, for example, indulged herself in a farcical "fling."

In Shakespeare's day the role of the Shrew was played by a boy, but most great actresses from the famous Kitty Clive down have included the Shrew in their repertoires. From the days of David Garrick to the end of the 19th century the acted version was not that, now attributed to Shakespeare, but a much shortened version called Katharine and Petruchio, arranged by Garrick for his own use.

We find innumerable famous names attached to this play: Otis Skinner, Edwin Booth, Fanny Davenport, Macready, Kemble, and Clara Morris. But three especially famous pairs of players to undertake these famous roles are Ellen Terry and Henry Irving, Ada Rehan and John Drew, and most recently withdrawn from the stage, Julia Marlowe and E. H. Sothern. Of all these Ada Rehan is conceded to have been the finest Katharine. In 1887 as members of Augustin Daly's famous company in New York, she played the role with John Drew as Petruchio and Otis Skinner as Lucentio.

Julia Marlowe and E. H. Sothern kept the play in their repertoire until their withdrawal from the stage about six years ago. Since then no famous actors have been doing it with any regularity. It was, however, produced recently in New York in modern dress with Mary Ellis as the Shrew. This novel treatment of the story lent special point to many of the well known scenes, especially that in which master and man exchange garments. Of course Shakespeare's own company always played in "modern dress."

It also holds a "first" in the realm of cinema. A few years ago Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks presented a spectacular film version. No other Shakespearean play has as yet been undertaken on the screen.

With these many famous actors and actresses to spur them on, Virginia Wappenstein and Bill Schloth will undertake these two roles in the University production of "The Taming of the Shrew," to be given on the campus May 25 and 26. Both players have been very active in the theater this year. They are playing together for the first time. Virginia, whose versatility will be tested by this new role, appeared last as Marcella, the mischievous nun in "Cradle Song." Bill Schloth appeared as Antonio in the same play, and earlier in the year he appeared as the exuberant lover in a Chinese Fantasy. Later he portrayed the role of Agmar, leader of the beggars in "Gods of the Mountain."

Meetings Stress Wide Knowledge

A wide knowledge of all social and academic activities has been stressed in the Frosh Counsellor meetings led by members of the directorate during the past two weeks, declared Roberta Moody, chairman of the movement.

Two more group meetings and a mass meeting are being planned. The program presented to the counsellors includes information such as registration activities, panhellenic, traditions, buildings, and clothes, as well as other miscellaneous information that might come under these general heads.

Two freshmen are assigned to each frosh counsellor; personal correspondence being emphasized throughout the summer.

The directorate aided by Dean Scherwing, and Dean Onthank are making further plans for presentation to the 150 counsellors who have been chosen on interest, responsibility, and capability.

Tokyo Applicants Must File Today

Applicants for the trip to Tokyo as delegates to the American-Japan student conference this summer must submit their entries before 5 o'clock this afternoon at the personnel division offices in Johnson hall, announced Dean Karl W. Onthank, chairman of the selection committee, yesterday.

Both a small blank, and a larger one, 8 by 11 inches, must be filled out by applicants before that time. Forty students have signified their desire to attend the conference, from which four will be chosen by the committee of Onthank, Victor P. Morris, professor of economics and Harrison V. Hoyt, dean of the business administration school.

Officers Elected

The recently installed Oregon chapter of the D.A.R. met in Gerlinger hall last night and elected officers for the coming year. Those elected were Marion Sheldon, regent; Nancy Weston, vice regent; Helen Right, recording secretary; Mary Jeanette Dennis-ton, corresponding secretary; Barbara Jean Payne registrar; Pat Gallagher, historian. After the program for next year had been discussed, and plans made for a social meeting in the near future, before coming to the meeting and to vote intelligently.

The retiring president will give a brief resume of the school year and the work accomplished during 1933-34, following which he will administer oaths to the new officers. Renner will then take charge of the rest of the meeting.

"Regardless of the party supported before elections, every student should show he is behind the new officers now," stated Tongue.

"All students should attend the meeting and campus guests are invited." The meeting will be short to enable the students to reach the campus luncheon on time.

Medals to Be Presented

An added feature of the session will be the presentation of silver medals to the five members of the Oregon rifle squad which won second place in the Hearst competition. Earl Thompson, Horace Neely, Harold Price, John Beard, and Harlan Atterbury will receive awards.

The University band will be present to play a few numbers at the opening of the assembly.

campus day, assisted by Hague Callister and Robert Lull. Athletic events, including tennis, golf, baseball, and track, are the features of their plans.

Tea for the Mothers will be served by the Y. W. C. A. Council in the Y. W. C. A. Bungalow from 3:30 to 5:30. Mothers and daughters are all urged to attend.

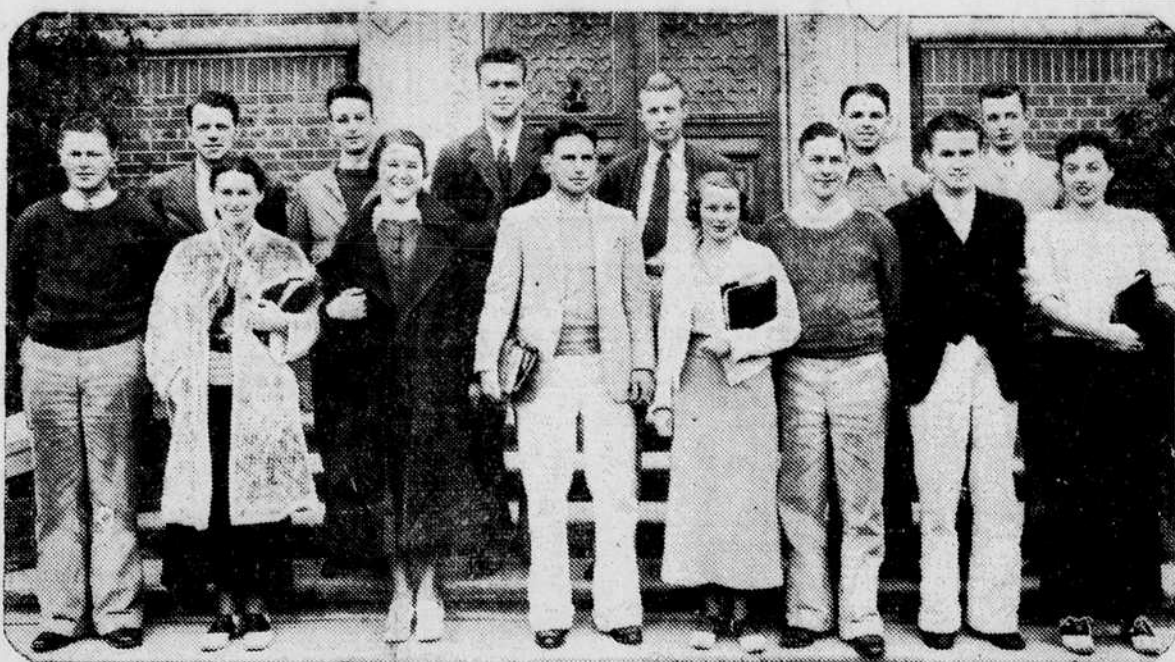

At 9:00 the Junior Prom begins at McArthur Court. Mother's will have specially reserved seats in the balcony. Nancy Archbold of Portland is chairman of the Mother's day directorate. She has been assisted by William Meissner,

Learning Things

Children aren't taught words by syllables any more, but by their meanings. They learn it's the use of a word that counts---not merely its pleasing sound.

When you buy, you know it's the use of a product that counts, not merely its pleasing sound. You can learn its uses and all it means---before you buy. If you read the advertisements, you know definitely how a certain refrigerator will act in your own kitchen; how that furniture polish will improve your own chairs. What is advertised has to do what it's advertised to do. Advertisements are honest. They invite too many thousands of testers not to be honest. Their continued advertising proves them honest! You take advertised facts on faith---as you take the dictionary on faith. You know that the perfume, hosiery, canned goods they describe are the perfumes, hosiery, canned goods widely enjoyed. You read advertisements to know the true meaning of things before you invest in their use.

Reporters for Women's Contest Edition Needed

More reporters are needed for the all-women's edition of the Emerald. Women students, whether journalism majors or not, are urged to work on this contest edition. Applications should be made to Mary Louise Edinger, editor, or Margaret Brown, news editor.

The work for this issue will be done Friday, May 18, and the paper will appear Saturday. The all-women's edition, which appeared last Saturday, May 5, and the women's issue will be judged by Dean Eric W. Allen, George Turnbull, and Robert C. Hall. The winners will be entertained by the losing group.

Band to Travel

The University band, accompanied by John Stehn, director, will take its longest journey of the year, to Staten, about 60 miles north of Eugene. The band, about 20 in number, will leave at 10 o'clock, and return about 4.

Are you looking for anything? Tell your wants to us—we will tell the campus. Phone the Emerald—3300, local 214.

Music Junior Will Be Phi Beta Head

Helene Ferris, junior in music, was elected president of Phi Beta, women's professional music and drama fraternity, at a meeting Tuesday evening in Gerlinger hall.

Miss Ferris has been active in the music department as well as in Phi Beta for several years. She has been vice-president of Phi Beta this year.

The other officers who were elected for 1934-35 are Mary Babson, first vice-president; Dorothy Parks, second vice-president; Floy Young, secretary; Robin Le Vee, treasurer; and Marian Moore, historian. Irene Van Houten was elected president of pledges.

SHOPPING COLUMN

HELLO TO OREGON MOTHERS!--

Let's put this week-end, which is in honor of our Mothers, over with a colossal bang. Show 'em a time! Show 'em the campus! Show 'em the Eugene shops! By all means shop! This is your chance to show Mother "that darling dress" and to get the long desired permanent wave over with which you'll wear the-perky new hat.

INCOMPARABLE ---

The answer to a college maiden's prayer is the complete line of correct campus clothes that you will find at THE ANGLELINE DRESS SHOP for only $1.98. They are all strictly tailored—in other words the most important fashions for campus wear—and their variations make them more exciting than anything Sue has seen in ages. You'll like their white piques with just that correct tailored trim that is so necessary for campus wear. For active sports you'll want one of the three piece outfits of shorts, skirt and blouse. If you don't swim and want to tan get one of their clever sun suits. And will you "oh" and "ah" over the grand boucle suits for only $10. Don't miss a bargain like this.

'ROUND THE "SIDE" ---

Strike up Lombardo's band in commemoration of Pin Planting Week. Those who have entered pin hanging advertisements at the FIJI dive are JEFF HOWARD, WILSON AUGHLIN, DICK MEARS on MARYANN SKIRVING, and TOM AUGHLIN-BAUGH on DOT ANN CLARK— And why did JACK THORNE look like a mere shadow of his former self Thursday morning? —WELDON ROSS looks awfully smooth in tricky linen pants and a gray bi-swing sweater—MARY JANE JENKINS looked grand in a rose colored corded wool spring suit with a white blouse—What's this we hear about MIKE PINKSTAFF? —What has been puzzling Sue and the rest of the femmes is why FRED (tennis champ) FISHER was buying a dress in one of the local dress shops—

BE HAIR CONSCIOUS! ---

Wear your hair to fit your personality. Expert advice for your own individual type is available at MILL'S BEAUTY STUDIO. Surely you don't want to be one of the stereotypes seen at every gathering. Be individual! Wear your hair according to the demands of your personality. You'll have a brand new collegiate dash or a strikingly sophisticated air of demure waves, according to your type if you will only consult MILL'S Studio experts who specialize in waves with a personality and facials that invigorate, relax and soothe tired coiled nerves. You'll love their permanent waves for $3.50 and $5. Mother may want expert advice, you know where the studio is on Willamette. Be sure to call 1040 for an appointment.

TOP NOTCHERS ---

You'll see hats and—what wonderful hats! Where? At the E. HEIDEL HAT SHOP of course. This is an important message! Spring 1934, is keyed to excitement. So are the wonderful new hats you may see here. Judging from the grand straws and silks and lacy weaves spring zephyrs are surely blowing chic-ward! Amongst the various straw fabrics found here, almost any weave taste can be satisfied. Brims are obligingly almost any width, though generally not too generous for these early spring days. And have they been dipped and tilted to emphasize good facial points. These fetchin' hats all have a follow-me-lad air. Now, how about a hat for Mother? Discard the old gray bonnet with the little ribbons on it, and get one of the new black Milan straws with a perky three tone ribbon trim in back. Just that correct touch for our modern Mothers.

ARE YOU READY? ---

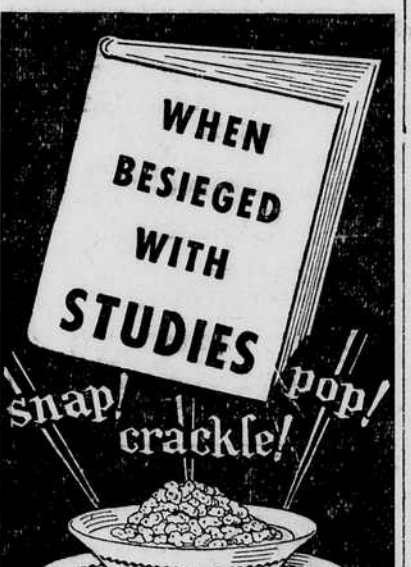

Of course you've heard about the perfect new rubber bathing suits at H. Grove you see them? If you are economy conscious you'll grab at this chance. They are only $2.75, and are they grand! They look like a million, fit like a million and are style personified. You have no idea how they look 'til you've tried one on. They come in the loveliest shades as mandarin, sunflower, white, and two shades of blue. Then for those unmentionables! Vanity Fair Taffie undies are the very last word. They are perfect fits and absolutely do not show under tight fitting formals. The proper foundation for lovely spring outfits and at very reasonable prices. Then for campus wear don't miss the dress specials for $7.95. They are ribbed wash silks in the snappiest styles and colors and with awfully swank novelty trims. Mother will know they are just the thing for campus wear, to say nothing of daughter. The perfect dress for teeing off at 8:00 or teeing up at 5:00.

HEY, HEY! ---

If you are a smart young thing you will learn how to brush your curls up and backwards, as if you were facing a strong wind. To learn the newest modes of hair styles make an appointment at the SUPER-CURLINE PERMANENT WAVE SHOPPE. They have perfectly grand specials on perms now. Don't miss this your one great chance, and with Mother here too. Regular $3.00 permanent waves are $1.98 and regular $5.00 waves, for fine and white hair, for only $3.00. For Junior Week-end surely you'll want a 35c manicure and a shampoo and finger wave for 50c. Marcells are only 50c too. Come on, gals, and bring your Mother too, and get all fixed up for this festive week-end.
