First Announcements Arrive at Co-op; More Orders May Be Made

The first shipment of commencement announcements has been received at the Co-op, and students who have submitted and paid for orders may receive the cards now. Additional orders may be placed at the Co-op at 10 cents for each announcement.

In Spite of Spring Weather Student Dispensary Is Busy

Perfect weather at the beginning of the term may have made a great deal of difference with the growth of flowers and gardens, but it made very little difference with student health. Statistics taken from the University health service reveal that calls made last year during the month of April are approximately the same for the month of April this year. The statistics show 2081 calls made during April of this year, which is a slight gain over April of last year, with a total of 2058. And old man bad health during April of this year won the booby prize over April of last year in the race for the number of cases treated, this year being 805, against last year's 784. Common colds, the menace of health, and a consistent record leader, again leads the race with the highest number of cases, but last year's group had a slight edge over this year's, the amount being 167 to 158.

Summer Session Catalog Appears For Distribution

First Period from June 18 to 27 Of July Announced; Details Available at Office

Preliminary announcements for the summer sessions at the Oregon state institutions of higher education appeared Monday. The complete catalogue for the University sessions at Portland and Eugene will appear next week.

The six-week sessions begin June 18 and finish July 27. Post session at Eugene is listed for July 30 to August 24. The month-long session begins July 30 and finishes August 31. The post session at Eugene serves the regular sessions at Eugene, Portland and Corvallis. That at Monmouth serves Monmouth, Ashland and La Grande.

The faculty at the summer sessions is composed of regular staff members and is supplemented by visiting instructors from other institutions. Sessions are open to anyone who is able to do the work.

Anyone wishing descriptions of courses, class schedules, details of living costs and full information on the summer sessions may obtain institutional summer catalogues upon request. Inquiries should be addressed to Alfred Powers, director of summer sessions, 814 Oregon Building, Portland, Oregon.

Good Work Given By Students Last Night in Concert

By J. A. NEWTON
Students are presented in recital in order that they might have experience similar to that of a professional appearance. They may, and are expected to profit from their efforts. Madalena Guistina, violin student of Rex Underwood, who was presented on last night's program, shows unusual promise. There are certain technical lackings about her playing arising from inexperience which will be ironed out with continued public appearance and study. These technical lackings have nothing to do with her native musical understanding, which we consider of a high order. And we reiterate that musical understanding is of greater importance than technical perfection, since the former may produce music with little of the latter, but the reverse is impossible, from an artistic standpoint.

We will mention these technical lackings. And while the undiscerning will believe that we've said Miss Guistina is impossible as a violinist, we refer them to the above statement, which we meant, that she shows unusual promise. First of all, her tremolo seems just a trifle broad, giving a hint of a trill, rather than a single note.

Secondly, there was a certain coarseness about her tone on occasion as though she were pressing her bow too hard or there were too much resin on it. Thirdly, at times she produced an extended full-bow note which began slowly, sped in the middle, and slowed at the end. This, coupled with the broad tremolo, gives music a certain mushiness which cannot be identified with what is accepted as musical emotion, except by crooners. Miss Guistina played a Sonata in D major by Nardini, "Slavonic" (Continued on Page Four)

Preliminary Catalog Is Out for Summer Term

Copies of the preliminary catalog for the summer session are now available for anyone desiring information on courses to be offered at the University of Oregon at Eugene and Portland, Oregon State college, and the normal schools.

This preliminary catalog was compiled by the extension division, and gives a brief outline of courses to be offered and other information. The complete catalog will be out in a few weeks. Students wishing copies of the catalog may call at room 2, Johnson hall.

Latin Instructor Will Give Illustrated Talk

Dr. Frederic Dunn, professor of Latin, will give an illustrated lecture on "Racine and the Classic Drama" at 4 this afternoon in room 107 Oregon.

The lecture, which is open to the public, is being held under the auspices of Phi Sigma, Latin honorary. The class in Racine's dramas, taught by Miss Christina A. Crane, instructor in romance languages, as well as the Latin classes, will combine to attend the lecture.

Junior Weekend Program Pleases Mothers, Students

Junior Weekend ushered in the seventh annual Mothers' Day celebration on the University campus May 11, 12 and 13 and was voted by mothers and students alike the most successful ever held in the history of the organization. Not only were mothers entertained at a great variety of events, but the visitors themselves showed great interest in what is going on at the University. All events were highly successful, due, mothers declared, to the efficient work of the student committee. The Canoe Fete, directed by George Schenk, and the Mother's Day banquet, Althea Petersen, chairman, were outstanding events

Campus Groups Cooperate to Give Anti-Military Ball

Dance to Be Held at Gerlinger Hall Friday; Tickets Available at Houses, Co-op

Student groups at the University are cooperating to put on a huge anti-military ball on Friday night, May 18, in Gerlinger hall. With the addition of the campus Y.W.C.A. and the Eclectic club, Friday night dinner group, the list of sponsors of the ball had grown to 11 last night when representatives met at the Y hut to make plans for the peace dance.

Verne Adams, chairman of the ticket sale, announced his list of salesmen and requested that any who have not already gotten their tickets see him at the Y hut either between 12:30 and 1:30 or 4:30 and 5:30 today. Already over 200 tickets are out, and Adams reported that early sales were large.

Adams named Wallace Campbell and Elizabeth Struggs to contact faculty members. House representatives are as follows: Chi Psi, Bill Russell; Delta Tau Delta, Jim Blais; Phi Delta Theta, Max Carter; Phi Gamma Delta, Newton Stearns; Phi Kappa Kappa, Bill Jordan; Pi Kappa Alpha, Ed Raudser; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Robert Poley; Sigma Alpha Mu, Maurice Rosenfeld; Sigma Chi, Edward Wheelock; Sigma Nu, Robert Knapp; Sigma Pi Tau, Kenneth Belieu; Theta Chi, Andrew Newhouse; Theta Phi Epsilon, Robert Anderson; Phi Kappa Psi, Edward Meserve; Omega hall, Gordon Powell; Kappa Sigma, Ralph Walstrom; Beta Theta Pi, Edward Simpson; and Alpha hall, George Minturn. Verne Adams will have tickets for Yeomen and Laura Goldsmith for Orides. Other group representatives include: Westminster house, Leslie Dunton; Wesley club, Howard Ohmart; YMCA, Gene Whartberg; YWCA, Eleanor Wharton; Cosmopolitan club, Gottfried Hesse; and Eclectic club, Wallace Campbell. Tickets are 50 cents each and will also be on sale at the University Co-op.

Boyer Makes Theme 'Future of University'

Better Spirit of Faculty And Students Noted

800 ATTEND DINNER

Immediate Selection of Chancellor Necessary, Says Thompson, President of Dads

Oregon has reached the turning point and is now pointing definitely toward better times and greater achievements, said President C. V. Boyer in his address before 800 mothers and their sons and daughters at the seventh annual Mother's Day banquet held in John Straub Memorial hall Saturday evening.

Taking as his theme "The Future of the University," Dr. Boyer said that a better spirit of cooperation and confidence is noted among the students and the faculty and staff members. He stressed the fact that higher education is a means toward a richer life rather than merely a more leisure higher education giving a great opportunity to be of service to men and women.

"The University strives to the expanding character along with the developing mind," said Dr. Boyer. "We feel it is our duty and privilege to build a superstructure of character and realization of ideals on the foundation which the mothers have made in the minds and hearts of their children."

The close relationship between the mothers of the students and the (Continued on Page Three)

Women's Division Of PE Tries New Examination Plan

Comprehensive System Allows Student Test Covering Two Years' Work

A new system of comprehensive examinations for seniors, which has already developed a marked change in the attitude of both students and faculty members, has been installed in the women's division of the school of physical education, announced Miss Florence Alden, professor and head of this division, today.

The new system does away entirely with the usual formal type of examinations in each subject, and students are given one test that completely covers not only their physical education courses during the last two years, but much of their other work as well.

The examinations have proved to be a genuine "inventory" of what the student has learned that will be of practical value, and further, gives the prospective worker in physical education a definite idea of what conditions and problems will be met after graduation. The test is built largely around the idea of "what would you do under such and such conditions," instead of merely asking the student to repeat what she has read or has been told, states Miss Alden.

Since the examination takes the place of all regular subject examinations, it has become necessary (Continued on Page Two)

Financial Study Will Be Made With SERA Funds

Additional study on the financial condition of Oregon counties will be made possible through an SERA fund granted the municipal research and service bureau of the University. The work will proceed under the direction of Herman Kehrl, director of the bureau.

FERA Checks Received At Johnson Business Office for 196 Students

FERA checks for 196 students employed during the month of April on the campus have been received at the business offices in Johnson hall, it was announced yesterday by administration officials. All students who were engaged in relief work during that time are requested to apply at window two on the second floor of Johnson hall to receive their pay checks as soon as possible.

Eugene Gleemen To Present Home Spring Concerts

Choral Group to Sing Thursday, Friday Nights; John Stark Evans Is Leader

The Eugene Gleemen, who have gained state-wide fame for their accomplishments as a choral body, will present their annual spring home concert Thursday and Friday evenings in the music auditorium. John Stark Evans, University instructor, is the leader of the group, and Cora Moore, accompanist.

The Gleemen presented their last Eugene concert last winter, and drew a large crowd at McArthur court. Since that time the group has sung in Portland, Corvallis, and Salem.

Although no solo passages are listed, several incidental solos are listed, chief of which are those by George Bishop, baritone, Delbert Moore, violinist, John Carpenter, tenor, Earl Pallett, contrabass, and the Gleeman quartet, which will sing the song "Wagon Wheels."

A feature of interest will be "Dark Valley," a number written by Evans especially for the concert. Pallett and Bishop carry the incidental solos. "Till Sing The Songs of Araby," presented a few years ago by the Gleemen, has been revived for this week's presentation, with Carpenter singing a solo.

The group will depart from the heavy type of music in the second group of compositions, presenting such numbers as "The Hand Organ Man," by Von Othebrand, an old favorite; Johnny Schmocker, an old German student song; two skits, including "The Grasshopper."

Kappa Sig Frosh Challenge to Row Remains Untaken

Last night the freshmen of Kappa Sigma fraternity issued a challenge to any freshman living group on the campus to a rowing boat race at the frosh picnic to be held near Goshen at Swimmer's Delight, next Sunday afternoon. Some of the Kappa Sigma boys in commenting on the prowess of the Kappa Sigma boys said, "Guess we'll have to go up and race Washington to get any competition. After we beat them by three lengths there won't be anyone brave enough to challenge us on the campus and then we'll clean up the winnings."

Others don't seem to have the confidence in the Kappa Sigma boys that the Kappa Sigma boys do. Fred Hammond's dollar bet on his brothers was quickly taken by a bystander. "Well, there my money goes," sighed Hammond. The challengers say they will row a one or two-man team and add that it doesn't matter as they will win anyway.

Dave Lowry, general chairman for the affair, was rather chagrined that no one would accept the challenge and has issued a call for husky oarsmen from the different houses on the campus. "If the river were wider we would make it a mixed race," said Lowry, "but there isn't room for boats to go around in big circles!"

Law Institute To Be Held in Late Summer

$1000 Carnegie Grant To Finance Event

MEET TO BE ANNUAL

Oregon State Bar Association Will Convene Here at Same Time; Committee Now Working

Under the leadership of leading legal authorities of the United States, the first annual Pacific Coast Institute of Law and Administration of Justice will be held on the University campus the last week of August or the first week in September, it was announced here today by Wayne L. Morse, dean of the school of law and chairman of the institute for the Pacific coast section of the Social Science Research council.

The institute has been made possible this year by a grant of $1,000 by the Carnegie foundation, which will finance the event. Word of the grant was received by Dean Morse today from F. P. Kleppel, president of the corporation, who expressed great interest in the plans.

Since the Oregon State Bar association will hold its annual meeting at this time, and since members of the bar from all coast states will be invited to attend, at least 500 are expected to be in Eugene for the event, it is stated.

Session Divided

The session will be divided into three round tables, each under the chairmanship of a nationally recognized legal authority. Topic suggested to date include taxation, criminology and criminal law, fault detection, labor problems and labor law, regulatory laws for business, municipal corporation law, conflicts of psychology and sociology with law, political science as practiced, federal emergency "new deal" legislation and constitutional law doctrines.

The institute as planned will be an annual affair, with sessions rotating among leading law schools of the Pacific coast. The committee now at work on arrangements includes Dean Morse, Harold Shepherd, dean of the University of Washington law school; Marion Kirkwood, dean of the Stanford university law school; William G. Hale, dean of the University of Southern California law school; Orrin K. McMurray, dean of the University of California school of jurisprudence; Professor Max Radin, Dr. Alexander Adler, Professor Alexander Kidd and Ronald Beattie, all of the University of California. 'Oregon Trail' Theme Takes First in Annual Canoe Fete

Ten floats, each depicting a salient event in the history of Oregon, passed slowly and gracefully before the bleachers on the millrace Saturday, May 12, where several hundred guest mothers and students were assembled for the annual Canoe Fete, climax of Junior Weekend, this year entitled "Where Rolls the Oregon."

Sigma Kappa and Phi Sigma Kappa were awarded first place by their float, "The Oregon Trail," an artistically arranged group showing a covered wagon in which a mother and child watched a fight between the father and Indians. Second place went to Phi Mu and Phi Kappa Alpha, "Captain Robert Grey's Good Ship Columbia," a small sail boat fitted out in every detail including men. Third place went to Zeta Tau Alpha and Phi Kappa Psi, "The Eruption of Mt. Mazama." Ralph Schomp, junior in art, acted as master of ceremonies. He assisted Queen Josephine from her barge to the throne situated at the left of Sherwood Burr's orchestra. Here she and her four attendants, Margaret Ann Howland, Cynthia Liljeqvist, Miriam Henderson, and Maryline New, presided over the pageant.

Several guests remarked about the excellent timing of the floats this year which appeared through the curtain, decorated as a log blockhouse, just as Schomp finished the story of the development of Oregon which introduced each float, with "Look, oh queen, Comedy relief of the dramatic program was unconsciously produced by those on the stage when they forgot that the public address system amplified every whisper. Several unwitting and amusing remarks were broadcast to the bleachers.

Don Eva, tenor, and George Bishop, baritone, were well received by their interpretation of old songs. "Land of the Empire Builders" was used as the theme song of the event.
