Strange Screams Prove to Be Only More 'Stage Stuff'

Strange sounds reverberate through the central campus area these nights. But do not be alarmed. They are the cries of Katharine the Shrew (Virginia Wappenstein) as Petruchio, her tamer (Bill Schlotz), throws her over his shoulder and carries her off, kicking and screaming. The three deaths hovering against the unlighted background are barely visible. Bianca (Althea Peterson) and Lucentio (Bob Cathay) going through their love scene, dressed in long flowing capes, and seated on a garden bench, give all the effects of the famous couples. Paolo and Francesca, or Pelleas and Mellisande. Monday night, the cast went into rehearsal on the stage of the outdoor theater which will "house" the performance next week, Friday and Saturday, May 25 and 26, with only two dim lights to make the actors visible to the director. A high wind was blowing and several of the main characters wrapped in long black velvet cloaks, borrowed for wind breaks from the drama department, gave an odd effect, not unlike scenes from "Death Takes a Holiday." But all this will change with the gay lights and vivid costumes of the Elizabethan period, to be worn when the production is ready for an audience. The very shadows and mysterious background will give place to color and warmth, and boisterous laughter, and to the humor that is characteristic of Shakespeare's comedies.

Strikebreakers Flee Wrath of Longshoremen

Above is a group of San Francisco strikebreakers who were marching under police protection to work, but at the sight of a group of strikers broke into a run for shelter. Striking longshoremen have tied up shipping on the Pacific coast, and strikebreakers have been employed to load and unload vessels.

Law School Will Celebrate Annual Homecoming Day

Baseball Game Between Business And Legal Group Is Feature For Friday Afternoon

With a tumult among members of the law school student body, equalled only by the wild signs and notices on the bulletin board, the law school is preparing for its "homecoming celebration" next Friday, according to Art Clarke, chairman.

First on the program comes election of student body officers Friday morning, followed by installation—into the millrace. Last year's officers are in charge of installation.

The big feature of the afternoon is the annual baseball game between the law and business schools. The law school has issued a challenge to the business school, formally made out, with a copy filed in the county clerk's office, and the challenge signed with the evidently official seal—a picture of a fish.

The challenge reads, in part: "Whereas it has been called to our attention that the members of your unparticular and degenerate student body, concerning an unjustified victory, won by your school in the year 1933, have constantly, continuously, and contentedly, bragged, blown, ballyhoed, and blabbered as regards the athletic prowess of your notorious members."

"Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved: that we, the said Law School Student Body do hereby challenge and summon you to assemble your scrawny, puny, imbecilic, and anaemic athletes to do battle with the said Law School in a game of softball upon the field adjoining, abutting, and adjacent to Hayward Field, on the eighteenth day of May in the Year of our Lord nineteen hundred and thirty-four, there to be humiliated, chastised, and again place in your proper position subservient to the worthy members of the said School of Law, or in lieu thereof, anticipating your inevitable defeat, ignobly decline the challenge and cease once and forever your loud mouthed and slanderous statements concerning the said Law School of the University of Oregon."

Harold March and Henry Ireland are co-chairmen of the committee in charge of the peace dance. On the committee are representatives of the cooperating organizations, which include Cosmopolitan club, YMCA, YWCA, Wesley club, Westminster house, student forum of the Congregational church, student council of the Episcopal church, student council of the Unitarian church, Oregon Radical club, Orides, the Eclectic club, and the Eugene chapter of the National Council for the Prevention of War.

Advertisers Will Hold Convention

The annual advertising conclave under the joint auspices of Gamma Alpha Chi, women's professional advertising fraternity, and Alpha Delta Sigma, men's professional advertising fraternity, will be held in Eugene Saturday and Sunday, May 26 and 27.

Several unusual events have been planned for the conclave. A directory will be published containing the names and occupations of all members of Alpha Delta Sigma. The purpose of the publication is to find out how many members are engaged in advertising or in some closely related activity. Ninety-nine questionnaires were sent out, and from the preliminary examination of the cards returned, it is shown a large proportion of members have been or are engaged in the advertising field.

A joint banquet will be held Saturday evening, May 26, and a breakfast for Alpha Delta Sigma members only, Sunday morning, May 27. A large number of alumni are expected to return for the conclave as Alpha Delta Sigma is celebrating the tenth anniversary of the granting of its charter.

Harold March and Henry Ireland are co-chairmen of the committee in charge of the peace dance. On the committee are representatives of the cooperating organizations, which include Cosmopolitan club, YMCA, YWCA, Wesley club, Westminster house, student forum of the Congregational church, student council of the Episcopal church, student council of the Unitarian church, Oregon Radical club, Orides, the Eclectic club, and the Eugene chapter of the National Council for the Prevention of War.

Oregon Students Will Attend Reed Regional Meeting

At least a dozen representatives from Oregon are assured for the regional conference of liberal students at Reed college May 19. Members of different campus groups have declared their intentions of going, and Reed students, the hosts of the conference, will provide for three persons as official delegates from each group which votes to send representatives, according to Charles Paddock, president of the Radical club.

Transportation for official delegates has been planned by the Oregon Radical club, and plans are being made to transport all students who wish to attend. Students are also expected from Oregon State and Willamette university. Campus groups from the University of Washington have already accepted the invitation to attend and other acceptances are expected this weekend.

Cosmopolitan club will send delegates, as will the Oregon Radical club. Charles Paddock, Edith Hult and Clayton Van Lydegraf are to represent the latter. Van Lydegraf is speaker for the group. Henry Ireland, vice-president of the club, has been chosen chairman of the conference.

Humphreys Selected High Scholarship Man

Lloyd Humphreys was selected as the junior in the school of business administration who has made the highest scholastic record during his three years at the University.

Humphreys has an all-time average of 2.78. Instead of receiving an individual plaque of his own, Humphreys will be the first student to have his name engraved on a large plaque to be hung under the Alpha Kappa Psi charter in the hall of the business school. The plaque will hold the coat of arms of Alpha Kappa Psi, national business fraternity.

The annual forensic banquet will be held tonight in the John Straub Memorial hall. Toastmaster position will be taken over by Burt Brown Barker, vice-president of the University. William Tugman, managing editor of the Eugene Register-Guard, is listed as the principal speaker of the evening.

Mrs. Mary H. Jewett, who has sponsored the series of Jewett after-dinner, extempore, and oratorical contests held each year on the campus, will be the guest of honor.

Approximately fifteen members of the speech department who have taken part in either debate work or oratory during the past year will receive awards.

Awards will be divided into classes ranging from those who have done outstanding work in speech for one to four years. Geraldine Hickson will receive a plaque for outstanding work during her entire four years at the University. Names of other winners will be announced at the dinner.

The debate team made over 30 different appearances ranging from Portland to Ashland and other parts of the state during this season. At several of these engagements, members of the school of music accompanied the speakers and performed for the audience. These musicians will also be invited to attend the banquet.

Immediately following the dinner, a dance will take place in the dormitory hall. Nora Hitchman is in charge of the program. Tickets which should be reserved at the speech office before today at noon, will cost 60 cents.

Master's Exams To Be Given Soon

Three applicants for master of arts degrees are scheduled to take their examinations soon, it was announced yesterday from the graduate division offices.

Russell K. Cutler, instructor in physical education, will receive his exam this evening. Cutler's thesis was "A Statistical Presentation of Scoring Systems for the Measurement and Evaluation of Performance in Physical Ability Tests and the Determination of the Value of the Constant 'A' in the Parabolic Formula Y=Ax."

Ida Markusen, graduate in history, and J. C. Branaman will try for their master's degrees in history, the former on May 31 and the latter May 29.

Miss Markusen wrote her thesis on "Frederick Denison Maurice and Charles Kingsley: Their Relation to the Christian Socialist Movements in England," and Branaman on "Benton and the Oregon Country."

Interpretive Artistry Shown By Charles Fahey in Recital

Charles Fahey, tenor, who sang on the student program last night is the second vocal student to appear recently to show unusual interpretive artistry. A former recitalist was proficient at establishing a mood. Fahey established a picture.

He puts an intensity into his singing which eliminates the necessity for the listener to expend energy in an effort to catch a shred of musical feeling. His music comes from inside. He sings because he likes to sing.

Such is the tradition behind all sincere musical ability. The third number in each of Fahey's two groups were the easiest for us to "catch" since they were in English, although it isn't to be assumed that foreign language numbers were not effective.

Weekend Will Be Filled With Many Musical Events

Gleemen Concert, Music Teachers' Convention, Phi Mu Alpha Conclave Listed

Music events at the University school of music will crowd upon each other in swift succession this weekend, starting with the Gleemen concert, Thursday and Friday, the Phi Mu Alpha province convention, Friday and Saturday, and the Oregon State Music Teachers' association meet Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday.

The chief event on Sunday will be the orchestra concert in the evening, and the appearance of the Oregon winner of piano, vocal, and violin contests with the organization.

The Polyphonic choir will give its first concert of the year Monday evening, when Frederick Goodrich of Portland will play a Handel concerto for the organ. Frances Brockman, well known University virtuoso, has been selected to play the Tschalkowsky concerto with the orchestra.

Plans for the meeting also include piano and voice clinics, luncheons, banquets, and a tour of the campus.

Freshman Beauty To Come Forward At Yearling Picnic

Feminine pulchritude will have its reward at the Fresh Picnic to be held at Swimmer's Delight, next Sunday, said Dave Lowry, chairman. The frosh class will sponsor a beauty contest.

In order to circumvent difficulties and house jealousies in selecting the most beautiful girl in a given house to compete, two girls may be entered from each women's living organization. A suitable prize will be awarded the winner.

The judges, selected mainly on the basis of their connoisseurship of beauty, although a minor consideration is their impartiality, are Frank Nash, Bob Helliwell, and Dave Lowry. The contest will be held Sunday at 3 o'clock. Names of the entries from each house must be turned in to Bob Helliwell by Friday at 7 o'clock.

Onthank, Cabinet Will Attend YM Conference

Loan for New Library Now Looks Hopeful

Oregon's Application for Funds Examined

PROJECT APPROVED

Money to Be Apportioned When Legislature Appropriates PWA Request

Hope for a new library on the campus within the near future was given impetus yesterday by the announcement from Washington of the approval by PWA examining divisions of the $350,000 application.

"Examination of the University of Oregon's application for library completed," reads a telegram received from Congressman James Mott Tuesday. "Found eligible for loan and grant, project will be approved as soon as money is available in new PWA bill."

The new bill referred to is President Roosevelt's $1,322,000,000 appropriation request which was placed before congress yesterday. Ear-marked for public buildings construction in the bill is $35,000,000, under which heading would come the proposed library.

As soon as the legislative body appropriates funds for PWA projects, money for the library will be apportioned and preparation of contracts will get under way. Since the government grants directly only 30 percent of the total cost of the building, the remainder of the construction outlay would be in the form of a loan.

"It seems to me we have reached the most hopeful stage in our library planning yet," stated President C. V. Boyer last night. "The matter does not rest any longer on our having to demonstrate it as a good project as it now has the necessary background of PWA approval. We were in doubt for a while as to whether they would recognize our ability to pay the loan."

Sigma Delta Chi To Publish Paper

The Green Goose, scandal sheet, annual publication of Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalism fraternity, will be published May 29, it was decided at the meeting of the organization yesterday. Bill Phipps, junior in journalism, was placed in charge of advertising.

Don Caswell, senior in journalism, former president of the chapter, was named to represent the chapter at the tenth anniversary banquet of Alpha Delta Sigma, men's professional advertising fraternity, to be held on May 26.
