The Spanish Revolt

Anti-red Scare

New NRA Chief

The jigsaw puzzle of Spanish supremacy seemed one move closer to solution yesterday with the announcement by Premier Alejandro Lerroux, Conservative leader, that the republic's troops had entered Oviedo, the chief rebel stronghold in Asturias.

Catalonia Wants Secession

The whole dissension found its origin in the constant cry for secession that has gone up in latter years from radical Catalonia, Asturias, Santander, and the three implacable Basque provinces.

State Socialism

Long an enemy to foreign capital, the Catalan government set about redistributing the wealth of the district among the citizens, passed a land grant act which cut deeply into the capitalistic pie in Catalonia.

General Strike

The change of cabinets was the signal for a general strike, one of the most frequently used weapons of Spanish belligerents. The general strike precipitated almost immediate conflict all through Andalusia and the northern provinces.

It is now Great Britain's turn to "view with alarm." With Red Russia's entrance into the league, the jingoistic Saturday Review, bludgeon of British conservative interests decries the admission of the U. S. S. R. into the world's debating club.

Shades of Barthou

The truth of the matter is, that pudgy Maxim Litvinov (pronounced with the accent on the second syllable) could find more to be satisfied with in the official welcome given by the British representative, Captain Anthony Eden, than in the equivocating welcome given by one now dead for a country that had more to gain by Russia's entrance into the league than Great Britain. Namely, Louis

Attempt To Reinstatement Polivka Defeated

Move To Bring Back Deposed Editor Ended

Students Vote Against Resolution

Count Is 323 to 123

Vote of Confidence Given Committee for Action

The student body yesterday defeated a resolution "recommending to the executive council that Douglas Polivka be reinstated as editor of the Oregon Emerald." The standing vote was 123 for; 323 against. The student body approved a resolution "given in the form of a vote of confidence to the publications committee and the executive council in affirmation of their recent action in removing Polivka as editor."

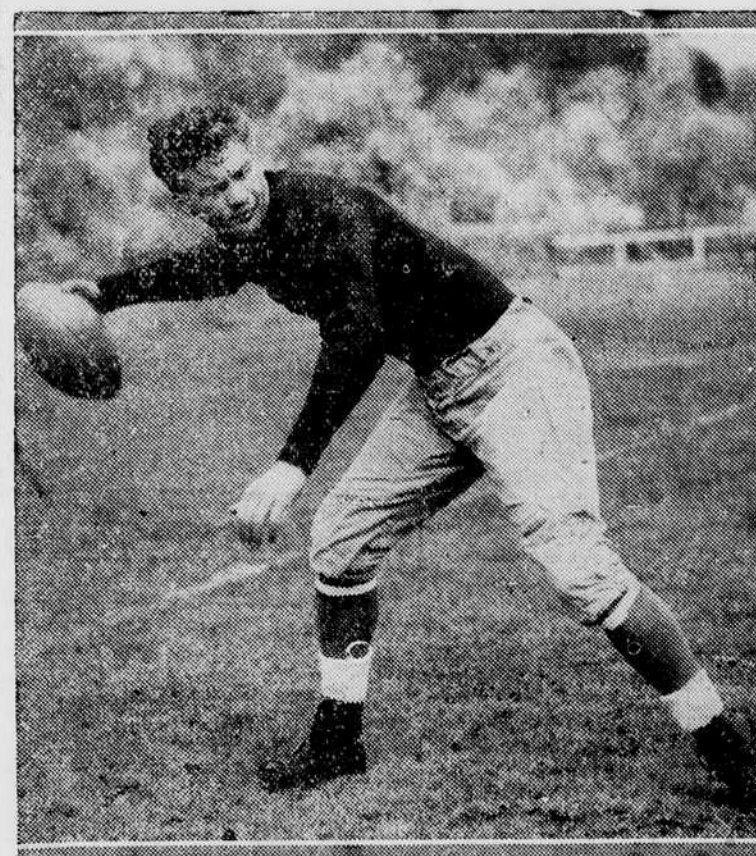

The meeting was punctuated by spasmodic applause, vigorous demands for the floor, equally vigorous "rappings" of the gavel, and dramatic oratory. All things were challenged from the rules governing parliamentary law, to man's rights under the Magna Charta, and the meeting closed with an abruptness that left several would-be orators standing open-mouthed.

Joe Renner, student body president, opened the meeting by introducing as first speaker Orlando J. Hollis, professor of law. Hollis said that he was speaking in behalf of Dr. Boyer, at his request, and that Dr. Boyer would be fully responsible for any of the remarks made in the speech. Mr. Hollis attempted to outline the facts of the controversy and gave a brief history of the present system of appointing the editor of the Emerald.

With regard to the controversy of the moment he said, "I have no

Byrl Buffkin, Husky off-tackle slanter, and Art Ahonen, expert pass-tosser are two lads Phelan will be pinning his hopes on today. So the Lemon-Yellow grid club expects to treat these boys just as rough as the rest of the Husky squad.

Tidbits for Fighting Ducks

Oregon Determined To Hold Husky Short Of Duck Goal Again

Muczynski, Jones Not Slated for Action In Crucial Tilt; Betting Odds Favor Washington

Portland, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Washington was reported a 10 to 9 favorite in the betting odds tonight as thousands of rooters from both the University of Oregon and the University of Washington jammed downtown streets with pep rallies.

By EARL BUCKNUM

When the Oregon Webfoots and the Washington Huskies trot out on Multnomah field this afternoon at 2 o'clock they will be starting a football battle which has the eyes of the football world on it.

The Callison coached men, captained by Butch Morse and Bobby Parke, will be out there all set to chalk up the seventh straight whitewash victory over the Seattle team, while the northern eleven are fighting not only to upset the jinx but to save the scalp of their coach, Jimmy Phelan.

Both teams have clear conference slates with Oregon holding a 26 to 3 victory over the Uclans, and the Huskies a 13 to 0 defeat of Idaho. The betting odds in Portland, according to last minute quotations, still favored the Seattlites by a slight margin.

Webfoots Heavier

The Eugene squad will enter the contest outweighing the Washington line 10 pounds to the man according to reports from the Phelan camp. The Duck backfield quartet averages 179 to 171 for their opponents.

At present the only regular who will not be able to start is Budd Jones' right end for Oregon, who is out with an infected knee. Roy Gagnon has an injured ankle and may not see much action in his guard post. Hugh McCreddie has a pulled muscle that may keep him out. Pat Fury, reserve tackle, who was injured in the Gonzaga contest, is still not ready. Gardner Frye, two year veteran tackle, while not in the starting lineup for three weeks, is now in good condition.

Muczynski Injured The Washington eleven is in good condition with the exception of Matt Muczynski, smashing fullback, who has a charley horse which will keep him on the bench the entire game.

Although the starting lineups are very uncertain because of various shifts of the two mentors, a comparison of the men who are likely to play opposite each other is as follows: Raymond "Butch" Morse, Oregon co-captain and two year letter man weighs 196, and is considered one of the best wingmen on the coast. He is great on defense, a fine pass catcher, and can block with the best of them. Last year he was named on several all-coast teams, and he is possible all-American this year.

Playing opposite Morse for Washington is Ted Markov, a one year letterman, and one of the "iron men" that played sixty minutes and downed Stanford last year.

Tackles Compared At left tackle for Oregon is Alex Eagle, two year letterman, and one of the best linemen on the coast. Eagle weighs 196.

Starting at right tackle for the Huskies is Woody Ullin, captain of this year's team. Ullin is one of the best in the Washington line. He is a two year letterman, weighs 192, and stands six feet, three inches.

Opposite Ullin is Roy Gagnon, a two year letterman, holds down left guard for the Lemon-Yellow. Rosy hits the scales at 195.

Opposite Gagnon is Chuck Mucha, two year veteran in the Washington line. Mucha is hailed by Washington supporters as being a certain all-coast guard this year.

Pivot Men Listed Playing center for Oregon is Con Fury, one year letterman who weighs 192. Fury has filled the shoes of Huges, all-coast center of last year, in great style.

Opposite him for Washington today is Tony Burke, 181, a one

OSC Runs Wild To Pile Up 39-12 Win Over Irish

Jimmy Daneri Stars With Franklin Out; Losers Lack Offense

Bell Field, Corvallis, Ore., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Oregon State college ran wild over Columbia university of Portland, when the teams met in a non-conference game here this afternoon. The final score was 39-12 in favor of Oregon State.

The Beavers got off to an overwhelming three-touchdown lead before the end of the first quarter, and thereafter it was pretty much a question of just how large the score would be.

Taking the ball immediately after the kickoff, the Staters carried it straight down the field for the first touchdown. Then, while

Rae Denies Story Of Federal Job

The Eugene Register Guard said last night that John M. Rae, professor of business administration at the University for the past six years had accepted a position with the civil service commission in Washington, D. C.

Rae last night stated that such information was not true as no definite arrangements had been made. He reserved further statement upon his plans regarding the federal job.

FORMER STUDENT HERE

Paul Luy, a member of the class of '29 and a former journalism student of the University, has been visiting on the campus previous to going to the game in Portland today. A member of Phi Sigma Kappa and former editor of the Emerald humor column, Mr. Luy is now doing newspaper work and free lancing in Medford.

Training Institute For Teachers Will Commence Oct. 16

Instructors to Be Chosen For Adult Education Classes at Meet

Teachers interested in the new state-wide campaign for adult education will meet in a three-day training session at Friendly hall beginning Tuesday morning. Supt. H. R. Gould of the city schools, and Supt. L. C. Moffitt of the county school system will be in charge of the conference and will select the teachers from this county.

More than half a hundred prospective instructors from Lane, Benton, Crook, Deschutes, Jefferson, Linn and Lincoln counties will be present. From this group will be chosen teachers of adult education classes provided by the emergency fund.

Oregon Graduate Writes New Book

Highly recommended by Eugene O'Neill himself, a study of dramatic technique of America's leading playwright has just been issued by Random House. The author is Sophus Winther, professor of English at the University of Washington and a graduate of the University of Oregon.

The work makes no attempt to outline the biographical details of O'Neill's life but is rather a study of the underlying factors and purposes with their relative degree of success in O'Neill's major plays.

Scarsdale, N. Y., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Edward West Browning, the "Daddy" Browning of turbulent romances and sensational court squabbles, died today after a long illness.

The multi-millionaire real estate operator would have been 60 years old Sunday.

These Boys Hope to Aid in a Husky Massacre Today

The Webfoots pictured above are just a few of the squad that will take the field today against the Huskies determined to come home with a Washington scalp.
