At least one nation that knows what she wants will be in attendance at the naval conference in London next Monday.

The Jugglers Great Britain's Ramsey Norman and United States' Macdonald are not so sure.

Just who the juggler and who the juggled next week in London is a question that has excited no little interest.

The Aleutian Situation Admiral Yamamoto is quite friendly and pleasant, but nevertheless he has made it clear enough that Tokio would hardly relish the fortification of the Aleutian islands.

Large corporations of this country are finding out, much to their sorrow, and high finances are feeling very low because they have found that it really doesn't pay to transfer taxable profits to surplus.

Round Mouthed Fish? Unfortunately, the people and the companies who believed in this sharpster and his advocates, paid him some of their ill-gotten gains.

Little Entente to Stand Together Against Enemies

Protest About Hungary's Alleged Harboring of Terrorists

BELGRADE, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The Little Entente, stoutly determined to "stand four square against all who attack any one of its members," tonight decided to protest to Hungary and the League of Nations Hungary's alleged harboring of international terrorists.

Meeting here to consider the critical political situation growing out of the assassination at Marseille of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and to seek ways of extending their alliance throughout the Balkans, the south European statesmen decided to protest against alleged existence of terrorist camps in Hungary.

They will charge, it is understood, that Hungary, despite its claims to the contrary, has taken no steps to disband the groups of political terrorists they assert have found shelter within her boundaries.

Yeomen Banquet In Y Hut Attended By Large Number

Opportunities Afforded to Unaffiliated Men Explained

With the regular school year just barely under way, better than 50 independent men turned out for the Yeomen banquet held last night at the Y-hut.

Other members of this year's cabinet including Donald Farr, vice-president, Earnest Savage, secretary, and Fred Gieseke, treasurer were all given an opportunity to explain their departments to the assembled group.

Ingram Kjosness, Yeomen intramural manager for this year, discussed the organization's chances of winning the intramural championship this year.

The highlight of the evening was a humorous reading presented by John Casteel, head of the speech department. Independent men were urged to be at the Y-hut at 7:00 tonight to take part in the annual open house program.

Vandal Eleven Ready to Face Duck Gridders

Idaho Footballers Hope To Score Upset

Back May Play Full

Michek, Bishop Injured; Likely to Watch Tilt From Sidelines

MOSCOW, Idaho, Oct. 20—Members of Coach Leo Calland's 1934 edition of the University of Idaho football team, considered one of the strongest Vandal elevens in recent years, anxiously awaited the start of today's grueling encounter with the Oregon Webfoot aggregation, confident that they were capable of taming the squad of Ducks in the contest this afternoon.

Plan Varied Attack Calland's offense for today's game will feature a diversified attack that will mix several clever running plays with powerful aerial maneuvers expected to cause the Webfoots plenty of trouble.

Starting Fullback Uncertain The Oregon eleven will probably be minus the services of its star line-plunging fullback, Frank Michek, a sophomore sensation from Scappoose, injured a knee in last week's tilt with Washington and will not be able to play a full game.

Dick Bishop, Michek's understudy, is also on the "sick-and-injured" list and is not on good enough shape to play the entire 60 minutes.

The handling of the fullback duties, then, will likely be left to Walter Back, a California junior college transfer. Back, too, was hurt this week, but is in fair shape and stands more chance than Bishop and Michek of playing against Calland's men.

While the condition of several members of the Oregon team has been a source of worry to the Webfoot coaching staff for the past few days, Calland is prepared to shoot his strongest combination of the season at the Green-clad gridsters when the two schools meet. With a two-week rest under their belts the Idaho athletes are in excellent condition for a rough 60-minute battle with Callison's charges, and are striving to score a major upset of the Oregonians.

Elbert Inman, Clarence Devin, and "Bullet Bob" McCue, a trio of better-than-average footballists rated among the leading gridsters in the west, will lead the Vandals in battle against Callison's team. These three athletes are all triple threat acres and will bother the Greenies amply with their grid-iron tactics.

C.S. Hall, New Psychology Professor, Fools Reporter

By ROBERT LUCAS DR. C. S. HALL, the new assistant professor of psychology, who arrived on the campus Sunday last, looked up quickly when the writer trickled meekly into his offices in Condon hall. Meekly? Well, after all, isn't it legion that the retreat of the scholar be a secluded imposing spot? And aren't college professors supposed to look up slowly from their work, gaze abstractedly for a moment in your general direction, and dive once more into their copies of Plato—letting one wander about the room, shivering with neglect? "Well," he said, after the introduction, "an Emerald reporter. Won't you sit down?" The writer badly dazed, reached for a chair.

"brain trust" and a home run on the side of youth in the field of intellectual pursuit. "Yes," he replied in answer to queries, "I like Eugene very much. Of course I miss the ocean and the salt air to be had in Berkeley, but then you have such clean picturesque rivers and gorgeous falls. Dr. Taylor and Dr. Gilbert took me for a drive up the McKenzie river and I enjoyed the scenery immensely." Dr. Hall is 25 years old and is married. "Mrs. Hall is still in the south where she is an instructor in the household science department at the University of California. "It's rather tough to leave her after having been married for only two years. But that's what happens when there are two careers in the same family." When asked as to what he thought of the students after his brief contact with them he said, "I think the girls are very good looking, and the men are larger here than in the south. There aren't as many students on the campus as I expected."
