DEATH RIDES IN AIR RACE
ROME, Oct. 22.—(AP) — Two British entrants in the London-Melbourne air derby, their venture ridden by misfortunes since the start, crashed to flaming death in the Neapolitan Appennines today, sole victims thus far of the race across half the world.

Flying Officer H. D. Gilman and J. Y. C. Baines, co-pilot, Sussex men flying a British Fairey Fox machine, fell from a height of 4,500 feet in the hilly sector not long after taking off from Rome today, far behind the leaders in the race.

Derby Leaders' Positions

Positions of the leaders in the London-to-Melbourne air derby, and the approximate distance covered, were as follows at last reports Monday night.

1—C. W. A. Scott and Campbell Black, England, arrived Charleville, last control point in Australia, only 787 miles from the finish. Distance flown—10,500 miles.

2—K. D. Parmentier and J. J. Moll, The Netherlands, landed at Darwin, Australia—9,100 miles.

3—Clyde Pangborn and Roscoe Turner, United States, en route from Singapore to Darwin—8,000 miles (estimated).

F. D. CALLS FOR CHARITY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—President Roosevelt called upon the people of the nation tonight to lighten the load of government expenditures for unemployment relief through the 1934 mobilization for human needs.

In a radio address opening a campaign for private charities, headed by Newton D. Baker, of Ohio, Mr. Roosevelt said the government counted upon a continuation of private contributions to private organizations. He called for a "decentralization of relief."

DOZEN MOTORISTS FREED

BEND, Ore., Oct. 22.—(AP)—More than a dozen motorists stranded near the summit of the storm swept Cascade mountains west of Sisters were released shortly before midnight last night when a snow plow working up the east side of the mountain opened the McKenzie pass to travel.

UPTON SINCLAIR ATTACKED

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—Opponents of Upton Sinclair launched more attacks today against the Democratic nominee for governor of California, with some Hollywood movie studios reported collecting funds to work for the former Socialist's defeat in the November election.

GAS DEALERS GO TO COURT

PORLTAND, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The question of whether gasoline, after it has come to rest in the storage tanks of a retail gasoline dealer, can be governed by interstate commerce provisions of the national industrial recovery act, was before federal Judge John McNary tonight.

The question was raised by four service stations in motions asking dismissal of actions brought against them by the government in federal court here. The stations were charged with violation of the NRA by selling gasoline below prices posted in their places of business.

Labor Adopts Policy Against Tax Proposal

Osborne Voices Views Over Station KOIN

Proposed Tax Amendment Stands as Destructive To Labor Secretary

Ben T. Osborne, executive secretary of the State Federation of Labor, declared that organized labor was against the proposed 20-mill tax limitation movement, speaking over radio station KOIN Saturday night.

According to Osborne, the proposed amendment is the most vicious and potentially destructive piece of legislation ever offered to the voters of Oregon.

In his speech Osborne, who not only spoke for organized labor, but for 40 or 50 civic, social service and educational groups, states: "That the proposed measure is a more serious threat and a greater menace than all of the red agitation that has been done in Oregon in a decade."

Public education would be the most crippled of all public services, said Osborne. "Organized labor, more than any other one group was responsible for this system of education. Labor takes this position because we believe in the principles of democracy, and a democracy can succeed only to the extent that the people are informed."

Curtailment Shown

Osborne quoted statements issued by State Superintendent Howard, which showed what the adoption of the amendment would do in curtailing school facilities, including the closing of high schools, or the alternative of paying tuition to attend them.

Selfish Interests Sponsor

"The amendment is sponsored by a group which is acting in its own selfish interests, and which has no regard for the welfare of the great mass of citizens of Oregon. It is designed to relieve the wealthy, and shift the burden of taxation more and more on the shoulders of those least able to pay," the speaker declared.

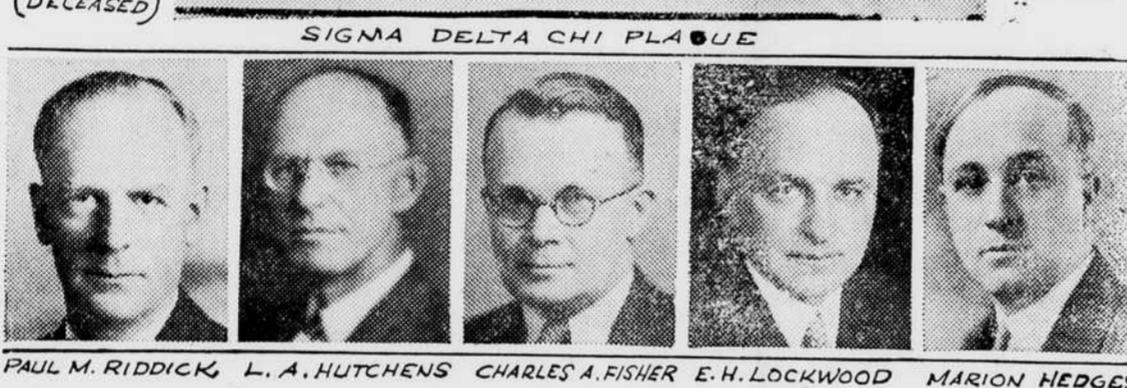

Other statements by Osborne indicated that labor believed that if the amendment was adopted it would have demoralizing effects on all public schools and the fire and police departments in every city in Oregon. Public payrolls would be reduced, public employees discharged, and the public would be the ultimate ones to suffer.

Small Tax Reduction

In refuting arguments made by the exponents of the measure Osborne told of the comparatively small reduction in taxes which would be made to the small property owner, the loss of valuable public services including the educational facilities of the state, and the fact that by the adoption of an unjust form of taxation the small landholder or property owner would have to pay many times the tax he is now paying.

Osborne told of the inability of the state, if the proposed measure should pass, to meet such necessities as care for the aged and other social insurance.

Refutation of the statements

Theater Revue

By R. KNUDSEN

"Belle of the Nineties"

CLEAN or unclean, censored or uncensored, Mae West still packs them in and lays them in the aisles. Although her type of production has been the center of violent controversy through the recent purging of the films movement, she is still one of the best drawing cards in filmdom.

Sunday, when the "Belle of the Nineties" began its run at the McDonald theater, all existing attendance records for the last three years were broken. Even such pictures as "Judge Priest" and "Smiling Through" failed to draw made by the advocates of the measure as to the efficiency of tax limitation was then made by the speaker.

Concluding, Mr. Osborne told his listeners that they had the opportunity to either join with the enemies of government or go against them, and asked that all of them turn their eyes toward the future and vote 303XNO against the 20-mill tax limitation amendment.

comparable crowds on their opening nights.

Whether or not public opinion is clamoring for pure and adulterated pictures, it still retains a warm place for Mae West.

Many observers with discerning eyes, however, might have detected scenes that smelled strangely of having been revamped or rewritten. "Belle of the Nineties" was originally sent out under the title "It Ain't No Sin," but through the efforts of Will Hayes censor board and other organizations of a similar nature, certain parts of the original version were cut and the title changed.

Justice Evens Score in Duel With Gunman

'Pretty Boy' Floyd Slain By Federal Agents

Violent Ozark Criminal Admits His Identity As He Dies

EAST LIVERPOOL, O.—The long arm of the Department of Justice caught up with Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, violent criminal of the Ozarks, near here today, and snuffed out his life in a hail of rifle, pistol and machine gun bullets.

Federal agents and police came upon the No. 1 public enemy at a lonely farm, seven miles north of this city, in a section much like the country where he was born and raised.

Fifty or more shots rang out as the officers halted the criminal's flight, and he fell mortally wounded and unable to use either of the two automatics he was carrying.

Identifies Self

Just before he died, Floyd said to Melvin Purvis, head of the justice department's bureau of investigation in Chicago, "I am Floyd." It was apparent that Floyd knew he was dying.

Police Chief Hugh J. McDermott, of East Liverpool, who participated in the final run-down of the criminal, said Floyd was wounded at least eight times and possibly 20 by the officer's guns.

Floyd died about 15 minutes after he was shot while officers were carrying him to a nearby road where they had an automobile which was waiting to take him to a hospital.

Lived Violently

Death came to Floyd in the same violent manner by which he had lived. At the time he was slain he was the principal figure in a nation-wide search, being sought as the trigger-man in the Kansas City union station machine gun massacre in which five men were shot to death in June 1933.

The officers who finally caught up with Floyd today were led by Purvis, the same federal operative who tracked down the notorious John Dillinger.

Hadley Appointed Successor to Rae

Subject to the state board of higher education's approval, Claudius D. Hadley, graduate and former assistant professor of the school of business, has been announced as John M. Rae's successor in the school of business administration at the University in 1928 and taught business administration here in 1930-31.

As a freshman, Hadley attended Colby college in Waterville, Maine; and transferred to Oregon the next year, graduating from here.

Hadley spent last year teaching and studying here at the University but left early in the spring to become a member of the California Park Commission. During 1932 and 1933 Hadley was at work on his doctor's degree.

Professor Hadley has just returned from a vacation to his home in Maine.
