Philomete Hobby Divisions Interest Freshmen Women

PHILOMELETE hobby groups, now entering their seventh year of sponsorship by Phi Theta Upsilon, are well under way, with freshmen women showing a great deal of interest, according to Dagmar Haugen.

Philomete is organized to promote friendships based on mutual interests. It is divided into charm school, music group, outdoor group, prose, poetry and drama group, and the travel group.

Charm school under the leadership of Dorothe Hagge studies and discusses subjects pertaining to personal charm and etiquette. The music group is for those interested in music and offers an informal study of the art and its pleasures. Virginia Endicott heads this group.

Girls particularly interested in hikes and picnics are attending the outdoor group, led by Lillian England. Eleanor Heggins is in charge of the group which studies prose, poetry and drama. Marian Johnston has charge of the travel group.

There is a possibility of the origin of a new group if a sufficient number of women are interested. This group would make puppets and present puppet shows with the finished products.

These groups meet every two weeks.

CAMPUS COSTUMES

By MARY GRAHAM

"It isn't raining rain to me, 'Tis the raining daffodils." TO the poet who penned these lines comfortably ensconced by a roaring fire and merely gazing out at the pelting drops, rain might be daffodilic. But to those who have to go out in the rain it's anything but flowery. But the day of the drab, buttoned-up effect on rainy days is past and now fair co-eds sally forth in the rain playing the part of the aforementioned daffodils.

For those who dislike wearing 'slickers' there is a new skirt and sweater suit made of rainproof cloth which resembles a jersey. The skirt is made on straight lines and the jacket can be had in buttoned or zippered style. Fitting tightly around the waistline and having a stand-up collar, these jackets have an added feature—deep, slip-in pockets which zipper, too.

For the eradication of wet feet and the resulting sniffles we recommend the cute new galoshes. These, made like a short riding boot, are topped with a border of fur and come in almost every color one would ask for. For evening these come in white topped with white bunny fur, so you see there is no reason for spoiled evening slippers either. These galoshes are so cute that one might just wear them to her destination and take her shoes along—!

Wonder of wonders! Rainproof stockings are now being sold—ringless gunmetal with black feet and heels, a perfect Godsend to those who are partying on rainy days and don't like spoiled hose and silk dresses.

Ultra-Violet Light Shows Changes In Shades of Stones

A demonstration of fluorescence under the ultra-violet light was recently put on display in the main entrance of McClure hall. The case appears at first to be filled with drab looking rocks but when the electric button is pushed the rocks take on shades of blues, oranges and greens.

The principle is based on the fact that some bodies possess a property of giving off, when illuminated, light of a color differing from their own and from that of the incident light. The light given off is usually of greater wavelength than the incident light and the violet and ultra-violet rays are the best exciters of it.

A case of precious and semi-precious stones is on display in Condon hall. Examples of tourmaline, amber, garnet, zircon, opal, coral, and other specimens are shown. There is a small bottle of Klondike gold, which was mined two years ago by Warren D. Smith, and a sample of gold in quartz from the Philippine Islands. There is now a gold rush on in the Philippines.

A small collection of agates and jasper from Newport, Oregon is included in the display.

night. It is rumored that they served real beer. Tsk. Tsk.

While the Phi Psis were busily engaged in their revelry the Deltas had a quiet little dancing party at their chapter house. Outside the fact that the musicians barged through a "wrong" door not a thing happened—much.

Sophomores Will Hold Drive for Class Fees

Plans for a sophomore class membership drive were started at a meeting of sophomore representatives Tuesday. Fred Hammond and Martha McCall were elected by the delegates as co-chairmen of the drive.

The sophomore class this year is in need of financial support with which to carry on the customary sophomore class functions, and the best plan seemed to be an organized membership drive.

Among the various activities which the class will sponsor are the Sophomore Informal, to be held December 1, the Whiskerino Shuffle, and various other functions. All class members are urged to support their class by paying the fifty cent fee.

Game Motif Predominates At Homecoming Dance Saturday Night

Football Motif Predominates

Football, the king of sports, will be glorified Saturday evening when the University of Oregon alumni and dads gather at McArthur court to witness the traditional Homecoming dance, the climax of each year's homecoming festivities.

The hall will be decorated to represent a football field, goal posts being erected at either extremities. The Oregon and Montana colors will be displayed through streamers and signs of Dads' will adorn the side walls. "Welcome Alumni" and "Welcome Dads." Special seating sections for the honored guests will be arranged.

Exchange Dinners Popular

Exchange dinners continue to hold social prominence throughout

An influx of social activities, stimulated by living organization pledge dances, marks the remaining weeks of fall term. The dance season was inaugurated this past week-end with ten organizations honoring their new members at such affairs.

Alpha Omicron Pi entertained Friday evening with an informal dance, the decoration of which consisted of gold leaves about the rooms of the chapter house. Patrons and patronesses were Dean and Mrs. Wayne Morse, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. A.

the midweek as the school term progresses. Last evening saw Beta Theta Pi entertaining for Kappa Alpha Theta; Alpha Chi for Chi Psi; Delta Tau Delta for Phi Mu; Phi Gamma Delta for Kappa Kappa Gamma; Phi Sigma Kappa for Alpha Omicron Pi; Alpha Chi Omega for Delta Upsilon, and Zeta Tau Alpha for Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

This evening Delta Gamma will entertain for Delta Upsilon, Pi Kappa Alpha for Alpha Chi Omega and Phi Kappa Psi for Kappa Alpha Theta.

Wednesday evening Phi Delta Theta entertained at the chapter house with a banquet for sisters. Sigma Alpha Mu entertained that same evening with a dinner honoring Prof. J. T. Ganoe.

The inter-fraternity council is meeting this evening at the Chi Psi lodge.

F. Rapp and Prof. and Mrs. Jesse H. Bond. Mary Margaret Hunt was chairman of the dance.

A Hallowe'en costume dance was also scheduled for Friday evening, this one being sponsored by Gamma Phi Beta. Barbara Bean was chairman of arrangements. Dr. and Mrs. Leslie Schwering, Mr. and Mrs. Rex Sanford, Mr. and Mrs. William East and Howard Stafford were patrons.

Saturday evening Alpha Chi Omega entertained for its pledges with "A Night in Paris," the chapter house being divided into the various quarters. In charge of the affair was Helen Beeler. Honored guests were Mrs. Jane Blair, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Sipe, Mr. and Mrs. James Crissey and Dr. and Mrs. Robert Horn.

Seven fraternity dances were also scheduled on the social calendar for the past week-end.

Gamma Alpha of Kappa Sigma's pledge dance featured a Coconut Grove idea with palms and flood lights. Dick Walstrom was chairman. Also attending the dance were Dr. and Mrs. D. C. Stanard, Dean and Mrs. H. V. Hoyt and Prof. and Mrs. Carlton Spencer.

A "hard time costume" dance of Saturday evening was that given by Beta Theta Pi for its pledges. Patrons were Prof. and Mrs. W. F. G. Thacher, Prof. and Mrs. Paul R. Washke, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rhinehart and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Morris.

Alpha Tau Omega, with Ben Groat as chairman, honored its new members Saturday with an informal ball, carrying out a weird and mysterious Hallowe'en motif. Prof. and Mrs. John Stark Evans, Lieut. and Mrs. Edward W. Kelly and Dean and Mrs. Karl Onthank were patrons.

Delta Tau Delta carried out an old time saloon dance Saturday, with Elaine Ballah in charge. Pictures of the pledges, as notorious characters, decorated the walls of the rooms. Prof. and Mrs. Carlton Bruce, Mr. and Mrs. William Bruce and Mr. and Mrs. William East were patrons.

Beer kegs and souvenirs carried out a Rathskeller idea Saturday evening when Phi Kappa Psi entertained for its pledges. Bob Hackney, Mark Corey and Rupert Pray were in charge. At intermission Treecop sang and offered tap dance features. Patrons and patronesses were Miss Mary Jean Walker, Prof. and Mrs. S. S. Smith, Joseph Angel, Dr. and Mrs. Sante Caniparoli, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Beck and Mr. and Mrs. F. Chambers.

Both Phi Delta Theta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon were hosts to their pledges Friday evening with dinner dances, the former carrying out a Spanish cabaret idea and the latter decorating in the fraternity colors, purple and gold.

Patrons at the Phi Delta Theta dance were Prof. and Mrs. N. B.

I Only Heard

IF you asked some of the Oregon co-eds how they liked the rally dance Saturday, you would probably receive a very cool reply. We heard that there were plenty of men in the stag line—but there were also more than enough women on the side lines. The only trouble was—they just couldn't get together. (We know that the men aren't that bashful.)

There were so many pledge dances last week-end that almost every one had a date for one of them at least. And those who did not, remained silent.

Did any one hear about the co-ed who had a date for one of the fraternity dances but didn't seem to know which one. She thought she knew who she was going with. And were the "Sisters" in a quandry? They just knew that it would be a costume dance since she was dressed in an informal. To make the evening complete, it wasn't even the man she thought it was going to be. In case you have not guessed, it was an Open House date.

We heard that there was a "leaf fight" outside of the BETA house Saturday night. Well, boys, we thought you could do better than that.

Zane, Prof. and Mrs. E. C. Lesch, Prof. and Mrs. Roy Bryson and Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Hall.

To the Sigma Alpha Epsilon affair were invited Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Alderman, Dr. and Mrs. J. P. MacKinnon, Prof. W. A. Dahlberg and Miss Lucy Norton.

For the coming week Alpha Xi Delta is the only organization having scheduled a dance. This affair will be given Friday evening. Saturday evening has been left free of house dances in favor of the annual Homecoming dance, an informal affair.

NORM (Santa Claus) HAMP-TON and PETE (skimmilk) BUCK were the main attractions at the BETA dance. We shouldn't forget BUD SHOEMAKE, fastest white man on the campus.

We noticed that the famous ATO paddle was used as a decoration at their dance. And the freshmen were mighty glad to see it used for something besides "hacking."

We want to compliment RALPH SCHOMP on his artistic decorations for the PHI DELT dance.

A certain THETA pledge has been having SAE songs sung to her lately, and she seems to like it. Tell us, RUTH, do you enjoy the song, or do you just naturally like MRS. HOOD'S little boy, CAROL?

We know it must have been interesting to see the prize fight at the ALPHA PHI hallowe'en party last night. When BARBARA FAIRHURST and ALICE BRADFORD come to blows every one sits up and takes notice.

And the crazy style show given by the freshmen was amusing. Can't you just see JANE CHAPLER in some queer but cunning outfit?

GEORGE KOTCHICK would like every one to know that he still hasn't a cold. What a relief that must be to JANET McMICKEN!

Another BETA pin has found its way to a pretty girl's heart. DICK McCLUNG and NANCY RICHARDS finally decided there was something nice about "going steady."

We want to know which KAPPA SIG pledge is cutting a certain football player's throat. It's the topic of conversation around the campus.
