W.S.C. Idaho May Split Over Paint Smearing

Pullman Buildings Get Decorations

Presidents Confer

Feelings Aroused on Eve Of Vandal-Cougar Fracas

PULLMAN, Wash., Nov. 9—(AP)—Amid paint smeared buildings, Washington State's Cougars and the University of Idaho Vandals ended training today for their annual football classic as the presidents of their respective schools discussed the advisability of severing football relations.

The two Pacific coast conference teams meet here tomorrow afternoon in renewal of a football feud that started in 1893. The game 41 years ago ended, so the old grads says, with members of each team hurling epithets and rocks at each other. Idaho, won, according to the best legend and a two-sentence account of the affair in a local paper, by a 12 to 0 score.

Idaho Colors Used President E. O. Holland of the State college awoke this morning to find the new gymnasium and other buildings smeared with yellow and silver paint—Idaho's colors. Occasionally there was a daub of black paint around the letter "I."

Indications were that a University of Idaho raiding party visited the campus between 1 and 4 o'clock this morning, after Washington State guards had retired.

"If this sort of rowdism is not eliminated, we may have to discontinue this game in the future," said (Please turn to page 4)

Hempstead Sets Up Office in Oregon City

Walter E. Hempstead, Jr., a graduate of the University of Oregon school of law last June, has established offices with his father, Dr. Walter E. Hempstead, in the Liberty theater building in Oregon City, according to word received here.

Hempstead, who successfully passed the state bar examination this summer was active in forensics and journalism while on the campus. He was a member of the round-the-world debate team which several years ago represented the University. He also served as a staff member of the Emerald, campus daily, and took part in many debates and oratorical contests. For a time he was an instructor in public speaking.

Traditional Gridiron Battles Scheduled for Coast Today

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9—(AP)—On the green turfed battle field of Stanford stadium tomorrow, with 60,000 or more roaring rooters in the stands, Washington's Huskies and Stanford's Indians will clash in the season's football classic expected to clear the way for the coast conference championship and the right to represent the West in the Pasadena Rose bowl, New Year's day.

The two teams, strongest in many years at the respective institutions, come together at the peak of a season that sees Washington neither tied nor defeated and Stanford once held even in a nonconference game.

The outcome tomorrow will not determine the title. Each squad has additional encounters necessary to complete the season. If Stanford justifies the one-sided odds of 3 to 1 by which it is favored it must

Monday Classes Out; Any Train Good for Return

There will be no classes for University of Oregon students Monday, when all of Eugene celebrates the dedication of the new Skinner's Butte park. Dr. C. V. Boyer, president of the University, Thursday authorized the dismissal in order to cooperate with the city in making it possible for R.O.T.C. cadets to take part in the dedication ceremonies.

The University band and R.O.T.C. will assemble at the drill grounds at 8:30 a. m. Monday.

Students are not required to be back on the campus until Tuesday morning, and those holding tickets entitling them to a seat on the rally train may return on any train leaving Portland before midnight Monday. Eugene bound trains leave the Union depot at 8:15 a. m., 7:15 p. m., 9:50 p. m., and 10:05 p. m. each day.

Callison To Show Full Bag of Tricks In Annual Cival War

Prospective Coast All-stars to Perform Before Capacity Crowd At Stadium

Table with 2 columns: OREGON and OREGON STATE. Lists players and their positions: Morse, Eagle, Carter, C. Fury, Bjork, Frye, Walker, Terjeson, Van Vliet, Reischman, Michek vs. Scott, Mitola, Strack, Deming, Woerner, Brandis, Casserly, Pangle, Franklin, Swanson, D. Joslin.

By BILL McINTURFF "We can't lose," Maury Van Vliet, lightning half of Oregon's thunder and lightning backfield, told a cheering rally crowd before entraining for Portland yesterday. And it is with this spirit that a determined Webfoot team will face Oregon State's eleven this afternoon on the fortieth anniversary of football competition between the two schools.

Coach Prink Callison will unleash every trick in the bag today in order to give Oregon its third straight victory over its ancient rival. In this last week of practice the Webfoots have been taught six new "touchdown" plays which they will bring to light for the first time against the Beavers. Callison has also schooled his squad in defensive system designed to check the Orange running attack.

Especially does Prink fear an Oregon State aerial defense, should Multnomah field be dry.

Parke, Jones Out The Lemon-Yellow team starting the game today has reached the peak of its perfection and, excepting the loss of co-Captain Bob Parke and Budd Jones, represents the finest of Oregon's line and backfield material. Starting at fullback will be Frank Michek, 185-pound power house and key man in the Webfoots' renowned "cruncher play". Carrot-topped Maury Van Vliet, starting the game at left half, will carry the passing and punting burden of the University eleven. In addition the midget triple threat man excels in around-end sprints, cut backs, and open field dashes.

Coach and Team Will Be Honored In San Francisco

California Alumni Plans Dinner Dance Before St. Mary's Tilt

Prince Gary (Prink) Callison, his Oregon football squad, and Hugh E. Rosson, graduate manager, will be honored guests at an alumni dinner and dance which will be given at the Clift hotel in San Francisco November 28. Any students, faculty, or alumni members who will be in San Francisco that night are invited.

Maurice Hyde of the San Francisco alumni is in charge. Invitations have been sent out to over 600 alumni.

The dinner and dance will be held the night before the Oregon-St. Mary's game and is taking the place of the luncheon which usually has been given before the game.

Morse, Parke Claim Staters Won't Have Taste of Duck

TALKING things over with Butch Morse and Bob Parke shortly before they left for Portland yesterday, an Emerald reporter was unable to get the leaders of the Webfoot team to commit themselves very definitely on what the chances of the Duck eleven would be in today's battle.

However if the opinions of the co-captains may be regarded as prophecies, then it would seem that the Oregon State Beavers will do without their long looked-for Duck dinner when the two teams meet in their annual clash today. Although Parke is greatly handicapped with an injured foot he is expected to play at least a quarter of the game and if the injury responds to last minute treatment it is likely he will see more than a quarter of play in his usual position.

In regard to the condition of the team Parke said, "The squad is in good shape and is as well prepared for this game as they were for the UCLA game in which we were really 'hot.'" In that game the Ducks won by a 26 to 3 score over their southern opponents.

Butch Morse was confident of a win over the Beavers but is looking for a fast hard battle. Butch said, "The games played in the past years have proven that no (Please turn to page 4)
