Oregon Has Experience But OSC Leads In Weight Season's Records Favor Lemon-Yellow

Duck Eleven Boasts More Veteran Men

Two Squads Even on Total Poundage; Regular Beaver Lineup Holds Weight Advantage

By GORDON CONNELLY

Almost two tons of beef will face each other this afternoon in Portland when 2070 pounds of the University of Oregon locks horns with 2090 pounds of Oregon State college in the 38th little "civil war" between the Eugene and Corvallis elevens.

While the average Webfoot will be outweighed 190 to 188 pounds, the Lemon-Yellow gladiators boast the advantage in experience, counting nine lettermen in their starting machine to eight in the entire Orange aggregation. In the forward wall Oregon has a one pound to the man edge with an average of 196 pounds a player to 195 for Oregon State. The Orangemen have a decided backfield weight advantage, however, with each back tipping the beam at 182 to the Green's 174 average.

Morse to Start

Commencing at left end for the Callison crew will most likely be 6 feet 2 inch co-captain Raymond "Butch" Morse, stellar wingman from Benson Titch where he was chosen in 1930 at the most valuable player in Portland. The 198-pound two-year letterman will possibly match blocks and tackles with Maynard Schultz, Oregon State right end, who plays opposite him in the forward wall. Schultz may not get into the fray and in such case transfer Casserly will handle the position.

If Morse's casualty proves serious enough, the Ducks' own "Grantland Rice," Ned Simpson, prep star from Connecticut in ice hockey, track, crew, and football may play.

Frye Holds Edge

Gardner Frye, two-year Duck left tackle letterman, registers about even with Jack Brandis, 198-pound State sophomore at right tackle, in weight and height, but holds a distinct advantage in experience.

At the guard post Prink rates a nine-pound edge with 196-pound Andy Hurney over 187-pound Jack Woerner, Beaver right guard. Both are junior college transfers, and both hover around the 22-year age line.

Fury, Devine Even

Although Con Fury, University center, is a fairly tall lad of 192 pounds and 5 feet 11 inches, he will have to look up physically to Clyde Devine, Orange pivot man of 205 pounds and 6 feet 6 inches. Both have one letter to their credit and are 23 and 20 years of age respectively. Ken Deming, a sophomore, may again steal Devine's starting honors however.

Roy Gagnon, Oregon right guard with two stripes, will have the edge over Ed Strack, subbing for the crippled Bill Tomschek, one of the original "iron men." Rosy weighs 195 pounds and stands 5 feet 11.

On comparatively even terms are Alex Eagle, Webfoot right tackle, and Dan Mitola, former Commerce high, Portland, star. Although Eagle, reaching 196 on the Fairbanks, must spot the Orangeman a nine-pound weight advantage, both huskies measure more than six feet up in stocking feet, and both have a pair of letters.

Jones May Play

Budd Jones, if he gets into his spot at right end, will give Woody Joslin, Beaver left ender, plenty to think about. But if Vincent Walker, 201-pounder, should keep the post which he has filled since Budd's injury early in the season, the rangy Orange blonde will hold the edge.

With blocking and defensive duties as their main chores, Ralph Terjeson, Oregon quarter, and Hal Pangle, Orange signal barker, will be set for a busy afternoon. Terj is a two-year veteran; weighs 193, and is 5 feet 11 inches tall, while Pangle, also a two-year letterman, ranks as the foremost tackler in the conference; weighs 196, and is 5 feet 10 inches high.

Franklin Ready

Against Bob Parke, Oregon's co-captain, Lon Stiner will start Norman "Red" Franklin, who has been out with injuries a good deal of this year. Parke, weighing only 170 figures and standing 5 feet 9 inches, is one of the outstanding punters of the coast. The only remnant of the great 1933 backfield figures on both ends of passing plays with Flit Van Vliet. Franklin, whose specialty is returning kicks for touchdowns, tips the beam at 164 and is one year older than Parke at 22.

lison system of play, does mostly ball-toting at the other halfback post, while Tom Swanson of the Stinermen spends most of his time making way for other backs. The fleetly Oregon sensation weighs but 155 pounds, stands 5 feet 9 inches, and wears one yellow stripe. Soph Swanson is 183 pounds in weight and is about 6 feet aloft.

Michek Better

Outstanding on driving offense, Frank Michek, Oregon's fullback cruncher from Scappoose, will exchange plunges with Dick Joslin, Staters' reserve for Arnold Heiken, who will witness the brawl from the sidelines because of an injury sustained in the game with Washington last week. Weighing 185 pounds and elevating to 6 feet, the "Scappoose Unlimited" is expected to outshine his opponent, a brother of Woody and Hal Joslin.

Last minute announcements still take Johnny Reischman slated to take Bob Parke's place at halfback.

Lemon-Yellow Leads In Ancient Rivalry

Oregon Duck Holds Edge in Annual Battle

Webfoots Have 21 Wins To OSC's 9

Game to Be 38th Renewal Of Meet for State Championship

Since 1894 they have been doing it, and again today will find the Multnomah civic stadium the scene of the northwest's leading gridiron classic, when the University of Oregon Webfoots meet the Oregon State college in their annual battle.

Today's contest will mark the 38th renewal of the annual battle for the grid championship of the state of Oregon, and while also doing this, eliminates one of the probable contenders for the Pacific coast championship. The Orangemen are not, this year, contenders for the crown, but on the other hand, the Webfoots have a possibility of still tying for the championship.

Portland's Third Tilt

When the two teams meet for the kickoff today, this will be the third time in the history of the school that they have met on a neutral field. Last year, for the first time since 1918, the game has been shifted to Portland in hopes of bolstering sagging money bags of both schools.

With the advance ticket sale hovering around the twenty thousand mark, a financial success is assured this year. More than 32,000 witnessed last year's encounter and are waiting for today's kickoff with keen interest.

Ducks Win Last

The battle last year was just about as thrilling as any game on the entire Pacific coast, with the Webfoots emerging on the long end of a 13 to 3 count. Both teams, up to the time of the 1933 game entered the game with clean conference slates. O.S.C. having held the mighty Trojans to a scoreless tie, walked through Montana and eked out a win over Washington State. Oregon previous to the game had hurdled Washington, U.C.L.A. and Idaho.

The history of the Webfoot-Beaver football rivalry dates as far back as 1894, when the Staters capped the first game 18 to 0. However the Webfoots came through with a smashing 42 to 0 win the next year, and since then have walked over the Orangemen in the remaining 36 games to win 21, while the Beavers were being content with nine.

He'll Call 'em Wrong

Hal Pangle, signal barker for the O.S.C. Orangemen, is pictured above seemingly trying to think up something that may gain a yard against the Ducks in today's game. The Webfoots are betting he'll call the wrong play.

Orange Docs Haven't Chance Against Bill; Ducks 7, Even 3, OSC 1

By CLAIR JOHNSON
Emerald Sports Editor

It begins to look like the Beavers are not quite content with taking a beating in football today but also want to put on little side contests in which Oregon can whip them. We refer to the case of Red Franklin getting hurt a few weeks ago and at the time Colonel Bill Hayward, master second to none of braces, pads and special arrangements to let injured players compete, offered to construct one of his fine art devices for the Redhead.

The Orangemen officials kindly refused the sportsmanlike offer and put their star all-American on the bench for the past few contests. Now they come out and say he is finally going to play, and only because of a very special harnesslike contraption which Doc Swan and Dr. Bosworth, trainer and team physician of the Corvallis team, have been able to construct.

They also offer the idea that the two doctors are would-be rivals of our own Colonel Bill. Now not picking an argument or doubting the ability of these men it looks to us as though it's just about a losing battle for anyone to even think of insisting there is a trainer around who can come anywhere near doing what Hayward has done.

If the O.S.C. headmen would have quit sidestepping around right after Franklin was hurt, pushed their false pride aside and made Hayward a visit, the speedy Orangeman would have been back in there a long time ago winning games for his team. It's really too bad because the layoff has bumped Franklin off from a perch mighty close to the top rankings in the all-American ratings.

Why are the Ducks going to topple their old opponents today? Because they have a better season's record, they have more experienced men, they have a more powerful offense headed by Callison's unstoppable cruncher, and man for man they line up better.

Butch Morse, headed on his way for national honors, easily tops Schultz at one wing, although the other one is about a flip between Budd Jones and Woody Joslin.

Oregon's flock of guards, (upon which Callison's plays are so dependent), including Gagnon, Carter, Hurney and Bjork, are heads above the Beaver offering of Strack and Woerner.

That puts the Ducks three up and one even.

The other dependent part of the power plays with which Oregon goes places is the fullback post, and here the Webfoots, with the Scappoose Unlimited, Frank Michek, tops the Orange entry, Dick Joslin, by a long way. About the only claim Joslin has to fame is that he is a brother of Hal and perhaps Dick.

Score: Ducks 4—Even 1.

Underrating Con Fury we'll say he's even up with Devine. Also the same goes for Eagle and Mitola. So far this leaves no counters for the Stinermen. Give them one by a slight advantage with Hal Pangle over Roundup Terjeson.

Add our tallies and it's Ducks 4, Beavers 1, Even 3.

Line up Bob Parke against Swanson and its another touchdown for the Lemon-Yellow. Let Van Vliet and Franklin loose with the ball—if Red had a Hayward brace he'd pass up Flit, but in today's game it's another add for the Callison coached lads. And Frye spanks Brandis for the final Duck tabulation.

Total them all up again and it looks like this:
Oregon men better—7 positions.
O.S.C. tops Ducks—1 single post.
Flip a coin—3 positions.

Frosh Hoopers Continue Practice On Fundamentals

Watts Pleased With Men; Miller, Crawford, and Silver Good

With an imposing array of former high school stars present on the roster, prospects for a successful Frosh hoop team appear very good, according to Jim Watts, who has charge of the Yearlings.

Darrel Miller and Jack Crawford, both from Klamath Falls, and Dave Silver from Lincoln high in Portland, all three well-known in high school hoop circles last year, have especially caught the eye of Watts. Bob McKenzie and Bob Beard are also showing up well in the preliminary work.

Thus far all practice sessions have been devoted to an intensive training in the fundamentals of basketball with dribbling, checking, passing, and shooting all coming in for their share of attention. This will continue to be the daily routine for at least two more weeks.

"The squad as a whole looks pretty good to me," said Watts, commenting on the outlook, "but the boys still need a lot of drill on the fundamentals."

No games are scheduled as yet, though overtures have been received from the Longview junior college for a game here in December. Watts is desirous of lining up a pre-Christmas list of tilts and, if the proper connections are made, he will probably send his young hopefuls up against local independent and high school quintets next month.

Monday's Donut Contests Shifted

Intramural contests scheduled for Monday will not be played on that date but postponed until later in the season. The regular schedule will not be affected by this shift however and games will proceed according to the printed schedule on Tuesday.

The postponed hoop games will be worked in according to arrangements made between the team managers and the intramural department.

WAA to Sponsor Health Program

Annual health week, sponsored each year by the Woman's Athletic association, will be held this year November 19-23. Sports, a campus wide tea, posture contest and menu contest will be among the varied interests of the week.

Mary Margaret Hunt has been appointed general chairman for Health week this year by Dorothy Bergstrom, president of the Association.

The Alden cup, awarded each year to the house entering the best menu, has been won for two successive years by the Delta Zeta house.

The sports contest was won last year by Alpha Delta Pi, while Alpha Omicron Pi placed first in the posture contest.

When the Oregon and Oregon State football teams trot on Multnomah field today the Oregon Webfoots will have a decided advantage over their opponents on the basis of this year's record. The Ducks have won five out of six contests, while the best the Beavers could do was to win three, lose four, and tie one.

Above we have Maury Van Vliet, who will provide the lightning in Oregon's backfield combination in today's battle with the Beavers.

Webfoots Lead

Oregon has won three conference games and lost one which places them in fourth position, while the Orangemen have dropped three conference tilts and tied one for ninth place standing.

Oregon State has rolled up 84 points in eight games while the Ducks have scored 79 counters in six. Oregon scored against every opponent while the Beavers were blanked by the Don, Card, and Cougar elevens. On defense the Webfoots have held opponents to 32 points or an average of slightly over 5 per game. The Orange team has had 90 points rolled up against it which averages about 11 marks per game.

Oregon State started out the season by playing a double-header against Willamette and Pacific. Willamette fell 13 to 0, and Pacific 19 to 0, the same afternoon.

Oregon downed a fighting Gonzaga team with power plays in the season's opener by a score of 13 to 0.

Beavers Lose

The Beavers suffered their first loss of the season on September 28 in Corvallis when they went down under a superior University of San Francisco squad 10 to 0. Red Franklin, the Beaver all-American half, was injured in the first quarter and the Orange team could do little without him.

Oregon played her first conference game in Portland on September 29 against the Uclans, and the Ducks astounded the football world by rolling up a 26 to 3 count against the southern team.

Oregon State opened her conference schedule the following week in Portland against the powerful Stanford team. The Beavers, without the services of Franklin, put up a stubborn defense the first half and were trailing only 3 to 0 at the half. However, in the second half Stanford turned on the heat and went over for two touchdowns and a final score of 17 to 0.

The Duck eleven received its first setback on October 13 when the Washington Huskies upset the Oregon jinx of six scoreless years and downed a fighting green and yellow eleven 16 to 6.

The preceding day Oregon State, using may reserves, scored a 39 to 12 win over Columbia university of Portland. The next week the Webfoots splashed their way to a 13 to 6 to win over Idaho up at Moscow, while the Orangemen upset the dope by tying the Southern California Trojans 6 to 6 in the last two minutes of play.

On October 27 Oregon traveled to Salt Lake where they beat the Rocky Mountain champions, Utah, by the narrow margin of 8 to 7. The same day the Washington State Cougars walked over the Beavers by a score of 31 to 0.

Last week Oregon won an easy homecoming game from Montana 13 to 0 while the Oregon State eleven lost to the strong Washington Huskies 14 to 7.

Now for today's game.
