Eligibility Captures
Spotlight in Donut
Sports Discussions

ELIGIBILITY... The question of eligibility for intramural basketball competition... That much harassed word, and that decidedly snooty question are the spotlights in today's little discussion.

This column is not assuming the attitude of a snooper, but instead taking the stand that whatever action is best for the greatest number of intramural competitors is the correct thing to do.

We pointedly suggest that either the intramural administrative board, the managers, or interested competitors start a general house-cleaning which will put the intramural program back on the basis it is supposed to be conducted and end the rumors and arguments floating around the campus.

The purpose of the donut program is to provide exercise, sportsmanlike competition, and general good feeling for the average student here. The program is very definitely for the average man and not for any athlete who is good enough for Varsity competition. Of course in the competitive heat for the championship honors everyone forgets this.

And so much is everyone forgetting it that several teams are using ineligible men... the majority of them ineligible because they are of Varsity ability, are trying out for Varsity, but are still playing intramural ball in direct disagreement with the rules. Others are forgetting the rule about shifting from "A" to "B" teams.

After last year's general kick about stars competing and in particular about the Jones boys playing... made by the living organizations who do not possess fine crops of athletes (by far the largest number of the groups were in this class) the intramural board added rules to prevent a similar occurrence this season.

These rulings, (this may contradict a statement we made a few issues ago but the following is correct), without question prevent any man who plays Varsity basketball, whether he goes out before intramural season started or afterwards, from playing intramural ball.

The rulings in Section 3-a and Section 4 are:

"No individual who has been a member of a varsity squad at the time of a regularly scheduled game, or who joins a varsity squad after the starting of the intramural season in that sport, shall play on an intramural team in that sport during the season."

That takes care of men who joined the Varsity men after the intramural games began. Then for the elimination of players who joined the Varsity before donut competition started:

"No regular members of Fresh or Varsity squads shall compete on intramural teams in the same sport that season. All individuals who are members of these squads one day prior to the opening of the intramural season shall be considered as regular members."

Not attempting to flay any particular organization but just to help in clearing the thing up, we will list a few men who according to impartial statements by various Emerald sports reporters are definitely breaking the rule.

They are: John Mullen, A.T.O., who went out for Varsity two days before donut competition started; Bill Harcombe, S.P.E., who played last night against the Abba Dabbas and who has been out for Varsity; (therefore the Abba Dabbas can protest yesterday's game if they wish) Ken Phillips, Theta Chi, Bunny Butler, Frank Levings, Sigma Chi; all of whom turned out for Varsity and also are playing intramural. This was a hurried check—we don't know how many more are on the list.

And then about shifting from "A" to "B" competition. A few nights ago the Chi Psis were awarded a forfeit because the Sigma Chis did this... Now in checking the records we find in the same game that the Chi Psis also used an ineligible man. He was

Six Contests To Be Played By Hoopsters

Varsity Squad Will Meet Strong Teams

Union Oil, Sons, Clubbers Will Appear Here Next Month

What appeared to be the best pre-season basketball schedule yet listed for the Oregon hoop quintet was drawn up by Coach Bill Reinhart here today. The Oregon 1935 squad will play six non-conference games during December with outstanding independent fives in the state.

Monday, Dec. 3
Jack Robertson the Union Oil team of Portland, acknowledged the strongest independent quintet in Oregon, has been scheduled at McArthur court. Three ex-Oregon basketball stars appear in the Oilers' line-up.

Jack "Spook" Robertson, all-Northwestern forward from last year's Webfoot squad, leads the list of Oregon men who are to Kermit Stevens and Henry Levoff, Webfoot team mates of four years ago, are the other Oregon representatives on the Union Oil squad.

SONS TO SHOW
December 7 and 8 Reinhart's five will probably meet Ashland Normal. If the Teachers are unable to play, another opponent will be found. Both nights the game will be played on McArthur court.

Multnomah club of Portland will journey here Tuesday, December 11 with an opposing array of ex-college stars. The heavy pre-season schedule will be climaxed with a two game return series in Portland against the Union Oilers. Last year the Oregon Varsity split a two-game series with the Oilers.

Reinhart's men are rapidly being shaped into a polished team before they meet Union Oil in the initial "acid test." However, only two members of the team, Bill Berg and Willie Jones, appear to be certain of starting places on the Varsity five. Berg, chosen captain of Oregon's 1935 basketball team, will play in his regular forward position. Lanky William Jones will make a bid for all-Coast honors at the center post. Upon these two veterans the Webfoot offense relies.

Fight for Positions
Sam Liebowitz, flashy frosh team graduate and wizard ball passer, seems to have his feet set pretty solidly for the other forward post. But three varsity lettermen are fighting it out for the two guard positions at the present time. Glen Sanford, Rollie Rourke, and Ron Gemmill—all one stripe men—appear on a par at the present time.

However, when the Webfoot football teams rolls home from Huey Long's state, several pigskin artists will turn their attentions toward the maple court. Budd Jones, injured Oregon wingman, seems to have the best chance of breaking into the initial quintet since he is a regular of last year. Stan Riordan, transfer from Pasadena junior college, and Andy Hurney, transfer from St. Martin junior college, are two football men with good J. C. basketball records.

Clyde Keller, who had previously played "A" ball.

To make matters still worse we read Section 16 which says:

"Any team using an ineligible player in Class B basketball is automatically barred from further competition in that sport and loses all participation points."

Now to get matters straight... We are not stirring up this cloudy mixture for spite, or just for excitement, but simply in fairness to the basic principles the intramural program is supposed to be running under, and in fairness to the greatest number of donut

Phi Psis Take Forfeit From Alpha Hall

SPE's Cinch Section Title Four in 'A' League With Easy Win

TODAY'S "B" SCHEDULE
4:40—Phi Delta Theta vs. Gamma Hall.
4:40—Sigma Alpha Epsilon vs. Sigma Chi.
5:20—Sigma Phi Epsilon vs. Kappa Sigma.

The independent Abba Dabbas were the fourth and final quintet to be trampled beneath the Sigma Phi Epsilon march to the annual intramural basketball playoff, as they fell yesterday, 30 to 1, in league four of the "A" division.

Physically short and little, but a big man in defensive and offensive basketball, Bobby Anderson, light-haired forward, was the spark that set off the SPE tally rocket. His seven field goals with three by former all-star, Arne Lindgren, composed the majority of SPE points, and his checking and ball hawking was the reason for the walk-away.

Franz Scores
While finishing their competition in the fourth league with no defeats and assuring themselves of a place in the elimination tournament, the victors held their opponents scoreless until the final quarter when James Franz, Abba Dabba pivot man, tossed in a free toss on the SPE's only foul, that by Paul Conroy.

Certain of at least a tie in league one of the "B" section, the A.T.O. hoopsters definitely eliminated the defending champion Betas from any possible entrance in the final tournament, by whipping them, 13 to 6, in their second straight defeat.

The third consecutive A.T.O. victory featured the play of Art Dickson, A.T.O. forward, and Bob "Bullneck" Millard the Beta who guarded him. These hoopsters were teammates on both the junior and varsity squads in Grant high at Portland.

Dickson, however slipped clear for four goals and a total of eight points made on hard shots, while Millard went scores sin all periods. Dave Morris led the defending titlists with four tallies.

Pi Kaps Remain
Only the Pi Kaps, who conquered the Betas, 17 to 13, obstruct the A.T.O. path to the elimination tournament, and the boys have already taken the Phi Psis and Alpha hall, as well as the Betas. In these games they totaled 71 marks to 22 by their maple foes.

At 5:20 the Phi Psis took a "E" game by forfeit from Alpha hall.

competitors, either individual or as living organizations.

So what's to be done. The intramural handbook says:

"The intramural office cannot be responsible for checking up the eligibility of men playing on the various teams, but will post a notice on the bulletin board giving the names of members of varsity and freshman squads. ANY INELIGIBLE PLAYER COMING TO OUR NOTICE WILL BE DISQUALIFIED. Team managers should check on the eligibility of their opponents and report any infractions of the rules to the intramural office."

This column would like to see these managers show some action, see the administrative board do its duty, and see the entire donut program restored to what it was originally intended to be—a sportsmanlike competition for the greatest possible number of mediocre athletes.

Cross-country Program

Following is the complete list of officials and entries, with their numbers for the intramural cross-country race to be staged on the University campus and in outlying districts beginning at 4 p. m. today.

Spring Term Managers Win Appointments

Baseball, Track and Golf Posts Filled

Art Muller Is Recipient of Baseball Service Monogram

Athletic managers were appointed by the executive council at a meeting held Wednesday and were announced last night by Joe Renner, ASUO president.

Fred Whittlesey was appointed as chief athletic manager. Leonard Marshall is to be baseball manager with John Powers as an alternate. Three junior managers of baseball were also appointed. They are Paulen Kaseberg, Lyle Rowan, and Tom Aughtinbaugh.

The position of track manager is to be filled by Jim Ringrose, with Doug Ward, Chuck Hetezel, and Jack Mulhall as junior managers.

The golf athletic manager is Norman Swanson. Chet Bede, Robert Welch, and Willard Waldo will serve as junior managers.

These appointments were recommended to the athletic committee and were then approved by the executive council, composed of faculty, student, and alumni representatives. This group serves as the governing body of the ASUO.

It was also concluded at the meeting to give Arthur Muller a service award in baseball which he earned last year.

43 Harriers Will Compete In Donut Race

Twelve Campus Groups To Vie for Cup

Start Set for Four Sharp; Hayward Donates Two Prizes

When Colonel Bill Hayward, track coach and athletic trainer at the University of Oregon, fires the shot starting this afternoon's donut cross-country meet, 43 harriers, representing twelve campus organizations will take to their toes and begin the gruelling 2.7-mile race for intramural honors. As incentives for victory in this contest, two prizes, both of which are being donated by Hayward, will be offered the athletes. A trophy will be presented to the group scoring the highest number of points, while the individual crossing the finish line first will receive a turkey.

Start at Hayward Field

The race will start promptly at 4 o'clock. Runners will line up in starting lanes at the north end of the athletic field located immediately west of the stadium. The course will lead the athletes through the field to Twenty-third avenue, east across the vacant lot to Columbia street, and through Fairmounts heights to the top of the peak in Hendricks park. After reaching the summit of the crest, the runners will proceed down through Hendricks park, past the elk and deer pens, climb a small hill, and then descend down the slope into Sixteenth street, and into the east end of Hayward field where the finish line is located.

Drawings for starting lanes will be held immediately prior to the meet.

Course judges will be stationed at various places along the course to direct the runners and regulate traffic.

Finish Line Fixed

house sport innovation is the finish line. To avoid all probable confusion at this point, Russ Cutler, supervisor of the race, has devised a method whereby only one runner is able to cross the line at a time. Two ropes extending along the last ten yards of the home stretch will form an alleyway wide enough for only one man to pass through. As the runners trot out of this lane they will be timed by the judges, thereby eliminating all possibilities of disputes.

A last-minute withdrawal from the race by the Delta Tau Delta has caused a change in the entry list as published in yesterday's Emerald. Injuries will prevent Comet Gibbons and Paul Rix of the Deltas from competing in the contest, so that fraternity will be disqualified from team competition. They will be represented in the meet, however, by Phil Gambee who will attempt to win the turkey.

Yeomen Add Two Runners
Another change saw the Gunderson brothers and R. Ashton shift their allegiance from the Independent entry to Yeomen. M. Lacy was added to the Beta Theta Pi list of runners.

Today's meet is of special significance to Hayward as he has long promoted cross-country at Oregon and has worked hard to initiate it as an intramural sport. Oregon has been represented by cross-country teams in the past but this affair is the first of its kind in donut circles and realizes one of the track tutor's most anxious desires.
