Committee Asks Time To Choose Chancellor; Board Discusses Code

Brand Moves to Strike
Nelson Statement From
Printed Record
2 Members Argue

Former President Wants
Policy Omitted

PORTLAND, Jan. 28.—(AP)—A slight echo of past controversial matters arose today in connection with a move to print the state board's administrative code which has been under consideration for several months.

C. A. Brand of Roseburg moved that the section embodying the lengthy statement of a former board president, Roscoe Nelson, be omitted from the printed document. While the statement at that time was adopted as the policy of the board, Brand today said it was something they "all want to forget."

The section dealing with treatment to be accorded any insubordination among staff members or "subversive tactics."

Defending the section, B. F. Irvine said: "We might leave that out of the code, but it is still good law. I don't think the faculties should be telling the board what to do, and I believe the statement is as good now as it was then, but I have no objection to taking it out if you don't want it in there."

Brand explained that all concerned, including Chancellor Kerr and Nelson, would prefer that it be omitted. There were no adverse votes to the motion.

Summer sessions were authorized for 1935 on the usual basis, these now being so largely self-supporting that only $7500 was appropriated to supplement the fee income.

Provisional awarding of bids on the Eastern Oregon Normal training school to be built with a PWA grant and loan was made by the board. It was not fully determined whether the bids for the entire construction, involving approximately $138,000 could be accepted or whether the construction must proceed without the physical education plant, leaving the cost at about $120,000.

Business Group To Initiate, Dine

Beta Gamma Sigma, national scholastic honorary in Commerce will give its annual banquet at the Cafe Del Rey Wednesday evening at 6:30 with Dr. C. V. Boyer presiding at the University, as the principal speaker.

Invitations have been sent to the alumni of the society and special invitations are being extended to several juniors and seniors in the business administration school.

Immediately preceding the banquet, initiation of three candidates into Beta Gamma Sigma will be held at the Women's building. The three initiates are Edgar Perry, Norman Swanson, and Robert Crouter.

H. V. Hoyt, dean of the school of business administration, will introduce President Boyer.

The committee in charge of the preparation for the banquet, appointed by the president, A. B. Stillman, includes Beth Beal, Lloyd Humphreys, Donald Emry, and Margaret Davidson.

Grafious Passes Final Master's Degree Exam

Louis Grafious, a major in English, passed the final examination for his master of arts degree Saturday, January 26. The title of his thesis was "Philosophy of Love in the Poetry of John Donne in Relation to Renaissance Tradition."

Grafious is a teacher in the Elmira high school at Elmira, Oregon. He received his B.A. from Albany college.

OSEA Board Resigns Code Authority Job

Publishers' Group Quits
NEA; Seeks Payment
Of Money Spent

Oregon editors landed a hard blow flush on the chin of the graphic arts code Saturday morning when Arne Rae, field secretary of the Oregon State Editorial association, announced that the board of directors had unanimously voted to resign as regional code authority, to sever all relations with the national authority, and to demand payment for traveling expenses and other obligations which have been incurred while administering the code.

The board's resolution said in part: "The national code authority's failure to adequately reimburse this regional has forced the Oregon code authority to expend funds of the Oregon State Editorial association that properly should not be used for this purpose. Furthermore, members of this regional code authority have paid their own traveling and other expenses incident to code authority meetings, and have not been repaid, and

Townsend Heads East for Learned Societies Meeting

Delegates of 18 National
Club to Attend

Dr. H. G. Townsend, professor of philosophy, and secretary of the American Philosophical association left Saturday for Boston where he will attend the annual meeting of the American council of learned societies to be held there February 1, 2, and 3.

The dual aim of the council which is composed of delegates from 18 national organizations devoted to humanistic and social studies is to advance the interest of those sciences in America by encouraging, initiating, and promoting research and by maintaining and strengthening the relations between American organizations of scholars and similar bodies in foreign countries.

Among the studies and publications of the council most familiar to students are: The Dictionary of American Biography in 20 volumes, The Linguistic Atlas of the United States, Greek scientific and philosophical thought prior to Aristotle, a bibliography of philosophy from 1900 to the present time, Sabin's dictionary of books relating to America, and an historical dictionary of American English which is to the Oxford dictionary is what the Oxford dictionary is to that used in England.

For the past two years the society has had a budget of $158,000 which it has expended for aids in research projects, publications, and other work.

Idaho Officials To Select Coach

MOSCOW, Idaho, Jan. 28.—Dean Ivan C. Crawford, chairman of the faculty-alumni-student committee to advise President M. G. Neale in selection of a new University of Idaho football coach, today said he would soon present to the committee information he gleaned from interviews with half a dozen candidates.

Dean Crawford has returned from a meeting in New York of the American Society of Civil Engineers, of which he is Pacific Northwest director.

Difficulties Are Shown In Report in Effort To Replace Kerr

Block Retirement
Education Head Requests
Release From Office

PORTLAND, Jan. 28.—(AP)—More time was asked today by the board of higher education committee searching for a new chancellor for Oregon's system of higher education.

Chancellor W. J. Kerr, for 25 years president of Oregon State college, has asked to be retired as soon as a suitable successor can be found.

The committee reported that it had "obtained information on a number of persons, most of whom have been investigated without their knowledge."

A man well qualified to handle the position and one who would be able to serve the best interests of higher education for many years is being sought, the committee said. "The committee has faced conditions which perhaps are not generally realized, financial and otherwise," the report said. "Because of this situation it asks the board for further time in which to pursue its search."

On the committee are E. C. Sammons, now on an extensive tour of the orient; Willard Marks, board president; B. F. Irvine, and Leif S. Finseth. The report was received without comment and no further action was taken.

This was the first meeting attended by Mrs. Beatrice Walton Sackett of Salem who recently was appointed to the place of George B. McLeob, who resigned. Six of the nine board members were present.

More of the board meetings will be on the campuses, it was decided, and the next will be at the University of Oregon unless public works administration business makes it necessary to meet in Portland.

Stearns Appoints 2 Staff Members

Newton Stearns, business manager of the Oregonian, announced the appointment last night of Bob Parker, sophomore in science, as organization manager and Justine Miller, freshman in journalism, as general secretary of the business staff of the year book. Miss Miller is filling the position left vacant by Barbara Smith, who has left Stearns.

Stearns commended the showing made by the number of students who have subscribed for the Oregonian. There are 1,100 subscriptions to date.

Anyone desiring to subscribe for the Oregonian may do so at the graduate manager's office at any time before the end of this term. It is not necessary for any money to be paid now, but a total payment of $2.50 must be completed on the yearbook by registration day of spring term.

Students who subscribed last term may pay their dollar at any time. The remaining $2 for the cost of the book will be taken from the student's deposit with the University.

Board Definitely Puts Library Southwest of Warner Art Museum

PORTLAND, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Despite criticism, the newly authorized $350,000 PWA library at the University was definitely located by the state board of higher education on the southwest of the art museum building, and the alternate plan known as C-2 was adopted. The firm of Lawrence, Holford, and Allyn of Eugene was employed as architects.

9 Will Judge Novel Attire At AWS Ball

Capering Coeds to Dance
To McCall's Music
On January 1

The costumes of the various coeds on the Oregon campus will be judged strictly on originality and the ability of the individual to carry out the intended idea throughout the evening Thursday night, January 31, at the annual A.W.S. Coed Capers. A committee of several prominent Eugene women will select the first and second place winners.

The committee of judges is composed of the following women: Mrs. William Jasper Kerr, Mrs. Hazel Putman Schwering, Mrs. James Gilbert, Mrs. Wayne Morse, Madame Rose McGraw, Miss Janet Smith, Mrs. Orin F. Stafford, Mrs. Frank L. Chambers, and Mrs. Alice B. Macduff. Honored guests for the evening will be Mrs. Burt Brown Barker, Mrs. George W. Peavy, Mrs. Kate Jameson, and Mrs. Lorna Jessup.

Sociology Editors Appoint Jameson

Dr. Samuel H. Jameson, professor of sociology, has just received notice of his election to the staff of cooperating editors of Sociology and Social Research at its last editorial meeting.

Sociology and Social Research, one of the three basic publications in its field, is a bi-monthly magazine. It has a world-wide representation on its editorial staff which greatly broadens the scope of its comprehensive and accurate presentations of social facts, research study carried on over the world, and of the various social problems in different countries.

Besides a number of representations on the cooperating editorial staff from various universities throughout the United States from Southern California, universities in Hawaii, Germany, Canada, Switzerland, China, Argentina, South Africa, and Poland are also represented on the staff.

The University of Oregon, through Dr. Jameson, will henceforth also hold claim to membership on the editorial staff of this widely-read publication.

Military Pomp of Japanese Depicted by Museum Dolls

Hideyoshi, Japan's greatest military hero of all times, mounted on a spirited horse and surrounded by his most trusted generals and guards, dominates the attention of the group of boys' festival dolls which is on display in the Japanese room of the Murray Warner Oriental Art museum.

For centuries it has been the custom in Japan to set aside each fifth day of May for the boys of the land. At this time they are given dolls depicting the noted statesmen, warriors, and heroes of the country. The boys themselves dress as warriors and carry small weapons of battle. Valor and military virtue are the paramount idea of the day, while the dolls are a secondary feature to carry out the principal meaning. Parades, military exhibitions, and displays of various types comprise the main activities of the festival.

The set of boys dolls in the museum were made for a boy in a family of rank of Daimyo about the year 1770. Standing fully a foot high the dolls present a very realistic appearance, contrasting remarkably with the more conventionalized and formal dolls made for girls. Hideyoshi, who is often called the Napoleon of Japan, and who expanded the empire into the mainland and became the regent of one of Japan's most brilliant epochs, has an idealistic expression characteristic of his nature. The facial expression of his two generals are appropriate to their characters also—the one appearing wise and just, typifying the true statesman that he was; the other expressing clearly his nature, which won for him the reputation of being Hideyoshi's most fiery warrior.

The dolls are complete in every respect from their carefully constructed armor and battle equipment to their features and bearings. They belong to the Tensho period.

Revived Husky Slashes Ducks In 42-36 Battle

Game Tied 5 Times First
Half; Huskies Apply
Steam in Second

Teams Play Again Tonight;
Oregon in Basement

By Bill McInturff

A pack of basket-crazed Huskies boomed back in the second half last night at McArthur court to defeat Oregon, 42-36. The game was tied five times in the first half, was tied five times in the first half, Washington's last minute stalling came failed, although Sanford and Liebowitz managed to slice four points off the Husky lead. Glen Sanford, smallest man on the floor, was the bulwark of the Webfoot quintet. He not only dogged Bobby Galer's every move but also ran up high score of the game, with 11 points.

Chuck Wagner, Washington wild man, was outstanding for the visitors. With a total of 10 points, he tied his teammate, Ralph Bishop, and Willie Jones of Oregon for second rank scoring honors.

Tie for Cellar Position

With this, the fifth, loss Oregon ties Washington State in the conference basement. Washington's second place standing was unaffected by the results of last night's game. Oregon State continues to lead the conference with five victories and but two defeats. The Huskies and Webfoots meet again in McArthur court at 7:30 tonight.

The first half of the game was definitely Oregon's just as the second went almost exclusively to the Huskies. Glen Sanford opened the bidding with a surprise dash under the basket. The Husky defense, not yet set, allowed Sanford to plop in the initial basket un-

3-5 Vote Banishes Law Blocking Sale Over Large District

Repeal in Effect Immediately; Petition
Presented by 21 Restauranters;
Action Is Surprise

By George Callas

There shall be no dry zone around the University of Oregon campus. So ordained the Eugene city councilmen in their meeting last night when they voted a repeal ordinance to prohibit from going into effect an ordinance which they passed in their last meeting. The latter legislation provided that an area around the University, from Pearl street east to the city limits and from Broadway south to the city limits, be designated as a dry zone wherein no alcoholic beverages could be dispensed after February 1.

The repeal will become effective immediately and consequently the previous ordinance will not have any effect on owners of establishments where beer is sold.

The motion was passed by a 5-3 vote after the council had heard read a petition which was signed by 21 restaurant owners that would have been included in the dry zone. This dry ordinance had been passed upon in the January 14 meeting was merely a revision of the first dry zone law which was passed in April, 1934, and was later revoked. This second attempt at prohibition, however, had extended the area affected by the ruling to almost double the original territory.

There was no serious opposition to the bill, and the council passed it without any dilly-dallying or any voiced objection from members of the council or from the townspeople who were present.

Those who were opposed to the ordinance in the final voting were Simon, Harris, Zumwalt. In favor of the repeal act were Lamb, Bond, Wendershott, Carlson and Reed.

Rex Underwood Speaks to Crowd At Music Concert

Conductor Declares Need
For Instruments

Rex Underwood, conductor of the Eugene Junior Symphony orchestra, which played in concert Sunday afternoon at the music building, made a radical departure from the practice usually observed at concerts and spoke to the audience twice during the program.

Before the concert commenced, because the Eugene Junior Symphony has only been organized for three months, he explained the general plan of symphonic construction.

He pointed out, among other things, the various choirs, brass, reed, and string which make up the orchestra and explained that these groups either alone, or in combination, build up the entire effect of a symphonic number.

Underwood outlined the history of the organization of the symphony, and made an appeal to the sponsors of the orchestra and their friends to help build up a fund to buy much-needed instruments. For this reason, he said, it had been necessary to augment at several strategic positions in the orchestra, with players from the University.

He appealed strongly to the people of Eugene to supply the needed instruments that they might be (Please turn to page 4)

Emerald Has New Business Service

An entirely new department specifically designed to produce a high quality of advertising and show the benefits of such advertising has been added to the business department of the Emerald.

The new service agency is called the Emerald merchandising and promotion department. It is under the direct management of Eldon Haberman, who will be assisted by Ed Morrow and Cliff Thomas. The department will contact all Eugene merchants to get suggestions as to how the Emerald may assist them in selling their products.

Surveys will be made to obtain facts and data that will prove to Eugene merchants that Emerald advertising does pay. Hereafter no such facts were available and advertising solicitors had to rely solely on their ability to talk fast and convincingly. The new department will also handle all the promotion work of the Emerald.

6 Tax Committee Members Added

Earl C. Bronaugh, Jr., who recently elected chairman of the Tax Program committee of the Oregon Civic Education league announced recently the following appointees to his committee: Gust Anderson, representing organized labor; Ralph Hamilton, president state chamber of commerce; Merle Chessman, representing the state press; J. A. Churchill, president, state normal schools, and Charles A. Rice, superintendent of schools, representing education; and W. J. Chamberlain, state commander of the American Legion.

Bronaugh's board expects to evolve a constructive tax program for Oregon which will be submitted to the entire membership of the league for their approval.

Earl Wellington, state chairman of the Oregon Civic Education league, states that their entire membership of 35 leaders of statewide civic, financial, educational and welfare groups are working in full accord with Governor Martin, with two definite objectives: First, to oppose and defeat any radical tax legislation that might be enacted during the present legislative session or by initiative; and secondly, to work out eventually a definite and constructive tax program, emanating from the widely divergent groups of the Oregon Civic Education league who represents the people of the state of Oregon.
